SLEUTH SLAIN AS HE PROBES KNIFE MURDER

WAS SOLVING DEATH OF CHURCH WORKER

Wide Search Is Started for Ice Peddler; Pick Found Thought to Be Killer's.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Two days after he is believed to have uncovered a "hot tip" on the mysterious knife-murder of Norman R. Bechtel, young Mennonite church worker, City Detective Michael G. Croskey met a similar death tonight in West Philadelphia.

His neck and chest slashed with some sharp instrument, Croskey died without being able to reveal the name of the assailant who attacked him in his private garage.

Bechtel was found stabbed to death on an untenanted estate in the Germantown section of the city last January and all efforts of police to solve the case have met with failure. Strange knife wounds on Bechtel's forehead and chest puzzled authorities, but, they said, there was no similarity between them and the wounds which caused the detective's death.

Boys Tell of Quarrel.

Soon after Croskey collapsed on the street near the garage police found an ice-pick and a heavy screwdriver close to the scene of the killing, but were unable to say at once if they were the death weapons.

Three boys, police said, told of seeing two men arguing with Croskey just before he was killed and of hearing one, a Negro, saying:

Discovery of an ice wagon abandoned not far away led a short time later to a city-wide search for a Negro ice-peddler who, authorities said, had a police record dating back 20 years. There was no ice-pick in the wagon, police stated.

Two Men Seen to Run.

Mrs. Sadie Slotnick, proprietress of a small store near the scene, told police of hearing Croskey cry for help and then of seeing two men running from the neighborhood.

The killing was a signal for intense activity in the police bureau. More than 50 investigators were assigned to the case and Superintendent William B. Mills took personal charge.

Officers with whom Croskey had worked told of his connection with the Bechtel case.

"He was working under cover on the case," they said. "Two days ago he turned up a hot tip and was turned loose on it."

One policeman said Croskey told him only an hour before he was

Bank Bandit Trio Shot and Caught

Oklahoma Vigilantes and Kansas City Detective Bag Whole Gang.

Shawnee, Kans., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Two unidentified men, both wounded and one near death from bullet wounds, were captured near here today, and held as members of a trio who robbed the Shawnee State Savings Bank an hour before, escaping in a fusillade from the guns of vigilantes.

The third robber escaped by forcing Merle Smith, living 6 miles east of Shawnee, to drive him to Kansas City, Mo., where he left the car and disappeared.

Kansas City, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—A man identified by police as the third member of the trio which robbed the Shawnee, Kans., State Savings Bank, was shot and captured here this afternoon by Thomas J. Higgins, captain of detectives. He was found at a hotel.

Washington State Ends 16 Years of Prohibition

Seattle, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Tomorrow Washington State turns its back upon almost sixteen years of "bone-dry" prohibition. An initiative legalizing prohibition in the State was adopted in November, 1914, by a plurality of between 15,000 and 20,000 votes. The statute became effective January 1, 1916, four years before the Nation adopted prohibition.

A month ago the electorate threw out the law by more than 80,000 votes. The repeal was effective in 30 days.

Have Refused Cabinet Post Offers, New York Paper Says It Has Learned.

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The Evening Post says it was informed today that both Owen D. Young and Melvin A. Traylor have been offered posts in the Roosevelt Cabinet and that both have refused.

The report, which the Post said came from "men high in Democratic circles," was that Young was offered the Secretaryship of State and that the Chicago banker was asked to be Secretary of the Treasury.

"Mr. Young," the Post said it had learned, "declined on the ground that, in the present situation, he felt himself unable to give up his present position as chairman of the board of General Electric, both in his own interest and in that of the company. Mr. Traylor's refusal, it is understood, was based on similar grounds."

The paper said the demand for Young's appointment to a Cabinet job had been "almost unanimous in Democratic circles, and that "the belief has been expressed that Mr. Roosevelt would be able to persuade him to accept." Rumors have been current in Chicago, the Post said, that Traylor would be offered the job of Secretary of the Treasury, but his banking associates have consistently predicted that he would decline.

The President-elect has said repeatedly that he would not begin to form his Cabinet until after the first of the year.

Convicts Threaten Riot In Attica, N. Y., Prison

Attica, N. Y., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Disorder verging on rioting developed among convicts in cell block B at Attica State Prison last night, it became known today. The convicts ripped plumbing from the cell blocks, shouted and threatened, but at no time were beyond control, prison officials said.

A report that tear gas had been used to subdue the disturbers was denied at the prison tonight.

Longworth Estate Tax Is Placed at $25,919

Cincinnati, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth must pay an inheritance tax of $25,919, on the estate left by her husband, Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House, it was disclosed today in Probate Court.

The tax was computed on $725,498, the balance left after deduction of $194,082 for debts, cost of administration and $5,000 exemption.

VAST OIL CONCESSION AMONG RICH STAKES

(United Press.)

Threatened disruption of trade relations between Great Britain and Soviet Russia and between Great Britain and Persia may redound to the benefit of the United States, developments abroad indicated yesterday.

Great Britain bluntly threatened to break trade relations with Soviet Russia unless the Soviet government apologizes for a recent newspaper article, accusing the British foreign office of a forgery plot.

Persia has taken a firm stand in its cancellation of the vast oil concession held by the Anglo-Persian Oil Co., which is controlled by the British government.

A high authority in London said important American financial and industrial interests are negotiating for a broad commercial arrangement for the "industrialization of Persia."

U. S. May Take Over.

Inferences drawn in London point to the possibility of the United States taking over the Persian oil concession.

A Persian military mission is in the United States secretly, it was learned, negotiating purchases worth several million dollars for the Persian war ministry.

London, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Great Britain, engaged in serious trade disputes with two nations, today made a forceful demand that Soviet Russia apologize for an article which appeared in a recent issue of a Moscow newspaper.

Sir John Simon, the British foreign secretary, has informed the Russian government that Britain is ready to break off trade relations with the Soviets unless the apology is forthcoming.

Hawaiian Volcano Threatens Again

Kilauea Eruption Similar to That of Year Ago Is Predicted.

Hilo, Island of Hawaii, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Kilauea Volcano, Hawaii's foremost tourist attraction, is threatening new activity, it was declared today by veteran observers of the moods of Pele, Hawaiian goddess of fire.

Activity developed nearly a year ago, just two days before Christmas, and reached a peak on Christmas Day, dying away gradually and ceasing January 5. It was a good show while it lasted, earthquakes shaking the whole archipelago.

The indications this year, say the Kamaainas—the Hawaiian term for persons who have lived in the islands many years—compare closely with those preceding last year's eruption.

Heir Saved

Grandnephew of Ruppert Spared Kidnaping by Nurse's Screams.

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Two men were arrested here today after a chase that started when a nurse screamed for help, fearing they intended to kidnap 6-month-old Murray Vernon, jr., grandnephew of Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees.

The men told police they were David Katz and John Carroll, both of New York. A length of clothes line, a flashlight, and a piece of gauze netting improvised with a loop were found in their car.

Saying they were fur salesmen, the pair approached Thea Brehel, the child's nurse. She became suspicious when she saw they had no furs with them, and screamed. They leaped into their car and fled.

Fred Rupprecht, the family chauffeur, and Anthony Cabolle, a gardener pursued them in another machine. When they fled up a blind road, Rupprecht and Cabolle caught them at the entrance and called police.

The pair were held without bond for a hearing tomorrow. Mrs. Vernon, the child's mother, is the former Cornelia Ruppert, daughter of George Ruppert, brother of the baseball magnate.

BRITAIN ANSWERED ON NEW DEBT PLEA

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The American reply to the second debt note of Great Britain was handed the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, at the residence of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson last night. President Hoover approved the text of the note after Col. Stimson had submitted it at the White House yesterday afternoon.

The text of the note will be revealed either today or tomorrow after the British government has had time to refer all its details to Prime Minister MacDonald and the other members of the government who are now in Paris. The second American note was similar in its general aspects to the first: it reiterated the forthright claim of this Government to the payment of Great Britain's debt installment next Thursday.

The reply to the French note was only begun yesterday by Secretary Stimson and it is expected that some days will elapse before the French reply is ready for delivery to Ambassador Claudel. After formal delivery of the two notes to the respective Ambassadors, President Hoover will perhaps embody the American notes in this formal message to Congress which will deal exclusively with war debts and foreign relations. The possibility still remains, however, that the President will refrain from informing Congress on the debt situation until after December 15.

Secretary Stimson has been drafting the American replies for the past

Leon Trotzky Quits Slow Boat in Rage

Exiled Soviet Chief Will Return to Turkey by Railway.

Marseilles, France, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—A train, and not a boat, as had previously been planned, late today was carrying Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian leader, and his party to the Franco-Italian border on their way from Copenhagen to Turkey.

When Trotzky boarded the steamer Campidoglio, which was to have conveyed him home, and learned that the vessel took a fortnight to reach Istanbul, police said he became furious.

Authorities, he heatedly complained, were dragging him into a trap. He insisted the ship made too much noise and he wanted to remain ashore. This morning the former Bolshevik chieftain declared that Mme. Trotzky, who accompanied him on the brief visit to Denmark, was too ill to make the return voyage by water, and the ministry of the interior gave the party permission to go by rail, if the Italian authorities permitted him to cross their territory.

Plot to Slay Michael, Crown Prince, Balked

London, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—The Bucharest correspondent of the Daily Express reported tonight that police have uncovered what they believe to have been a plot to assassinate Crown Prince Michael, 11-year-old son of King Carol and Princess Helene.

Several bombs were found planted in the garden of the school Michael attends, the dispatch said.

HOUSE GROUPS PROMISE D. C. SHARE IN BEER

Ragon Reminds Body to Provide Special Act for Capital.

LOCAL BILL'S DEBUT LIKELY TOMORROW

Selling in Restaurants, Drug Stores and Groceries Is Aim of Wets.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Washington, in its day the home of famous drinking emporiums where history-making statesmen gathered, is to have its palate tickled by whatever beer and wines are permitted the rest of the country, it was indicated yesterday at meetings of two House committees.

Representative Heartsill Ragon (Democrat), of Arkansas, reminded the ways and means committee, which launched hearings on the Collier and other Volstead modification bills, that Congress is the town council or the state legislature of the District and must provide special legislation to permit the handling of beer and wines here.

In the House District committee, Representative Loring Black (Democrat), of New York, proposed appointment of a special subcommittee of three charged with the duty of drafting legislation which would permit manufacture, distribution, sale and taxing of 4 per cent beer and 12 per cent wines in the District.

Vote Favors Repeal, 12 to 5.

Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, who voted on Monday against Speaker Garner's resolution providing for straight-out repeal of the prohibition amendment, launched a verbal barrage against the proposal, and Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, chairman of the committee, joined the fray, but the upshot was that the committee didn't approve the Black proposal. Study of the votes of committee members shows that on the Garner repeal resolution they were divided, 12 to 5, in favor of the resolution.

Defeat of his subcommittee proposal did not deter Representative Black, who promptly conferred with Rufus Lusk, leader of the Crusaders in Washington, about drafting a model bill for the District. This is expected to be drafted and introduced in the House tomorrow.

Representative Black contended that Congress can act to permit production and sale of beer in the District regardless of what is done about the rest of the country. If congressional sentiment favors a national change, he said, the District law could be very simply amended and made national in scope.

O'Connor Is Witness.

Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat, of New York, was before the ways and means committee when Mr. Ragon brought the District into the question. Mr. O'Connor, who was one of several witnesses heard by the committee, had urged approval of legislation permitting beer. Mr. Ragon asked what should be done about distribution of whatever beer was made legal. Distribution should be left to decision and control by the various States and municipalities, Mr. O'Connor said.

"Yes," agreed Mr. Ragon, "but how about the District of Columbia. We're

New Mexico Coal Mine Blast Kills 14

Bodies of 13 Recovered as 100 Escape Explosion in Depths.

Madrid, N. M., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—From a hole in a bleak hillside the bodies of thirteen coal miners, victims of an explosion in the Morgan-Jones mine almost a mile underground, had been brought tonight to the surface where relatives were waiting to identify them.

One more victim of the explosion was believed to be buried somewhere in the depths of the mine, probably 5,000 feet back from the surface. He was Juan Ecosta, 35. All the fourteen dead were of Mexican descent. Approximately 100 miners who were at work when the explosion occurred escaped.

The explosion, of undetermined cause, occurred shortly after the miners went on duty today. Throughout the day the wives, children and other relatives of the entombed men hovered about the mine entrance waiting a word of hope that never came.

HOOVER ASKS BUDGET SLASH OF $582,000,000; $4,754,352 IN DISTRICT

SCHOOL FUND IS REDUCED

Public Welfare Next on Curtailment List for Next Year.

A slash of $4,754,352 in District appropriations for the next fiscal year, with more than half of the cut accountable to economy act provisions, was recommended to Congress yesterday by President Hoover.

Based on a $7,775,000 Federal lump sum contribution, the 1934 local budget calls for $39,743,270 in total appropriations, compared with $44,487,622 currently appropriated.

As $2,426,095 will be saved by continuing provisions of the economy act, actually the budget requires the District to operate on only $2,328,359 less than is available this fiscal year. The remainder of the $4,754,352 represents only paper savings.

Public schools, as the most costly item in the District budget, and public welfare, the next largest item, share the brunt of the cut. Total school needs were estimated at $10,679,620 against $12,162,730 appropriated last session, while the public welfare estimate of $4,915,360 represents a reduction of $718,408.

Construction Projects.

An estimate of $500,000 for beginning construction of the new Reno High School, an item of $105,000 for a new elementary school near the Logan, a total of $332,000 for two junior high school additions and $625,000 for replacing Calvert Street Bridge over Rock Creek are the outstanding construction items in the new budget.

When it is considered that a $350,000 emergency relief fund was voted last session, and no budget allowance has yet been made for a similar fund this session, the cut in public welfare estimates does not appear so large. The Commissioners will ask for a deficiency appropriation to

Young Is Called In Insull Inquiry

12 New York Bankers Are Summoned Also to Tell of Firm's Deals.

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co., and twelve New York bankers were ordered today to submit to an examination before Referee in Bankruptcy John E. Joyce, acting as special master in connection with Insull Utilities litigation in Illinois.

They are to be examined, at a time specified by Joyce, as to "acts, conduct and property of the bankrupt," the Insull Utilities Investments, Inc.

The order, signed by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe, directed Young and the bankers to appear with books, statements and other documents relating to the Insull Co. and transactions between it and the banks and the General Electric Co.

Hoover Asks Increase In White House Funds

(Associated Press.)

Though he will be out long before his recommendation will do any good, President Hoover asked Congress yesterday to appropriate $6,180 more for the White House executive office than last year.

That sum was snipped off the White House funds by Congress. The net result was that last month a pay cut had to be dealt out to all hands. It took the form of a payless furlough of several days a month for secretaries, stenographers, ushers, &c.

Those holding office under President Roosevelt will profit if Congress accedes.

SHOWDOWN IN SIGHT ON FEDERAL PAY CUT

House Sentiment Is Divided on Hoover Furlough and Other Plans.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A House appropriations subcommittee yesterday finished marking the Treasury-Postoffice appropriations bill and prepared for a showdown tomorrow or Saturday on the President's furlough-pay cut proposals.

The President, himself, yesterday threw more light on those proposals in his budget message to Congress. He tempered furlough recommendations with requests for funds to relieve "administrative" furlough burdens borne by those ture most seriously hit in current appropriation cuts.

The storm of Federal employe protest that followed first announcement of the cut was reflected yesterday in one ringing address from the floor of the House by Representative John J. Boylan (Democrat), New York.

"I say to the President, we will not further cut salaries of faithful Government employes," he said. "We will not reduce these starvation wages."

Not all of the comment was so hopeful that the 11 per cent pay cut can be stopped.

Representative Harold McGugin (Republican), Kansas, said Congress should go further and enact a pay cut averaging 25 per cent when combined with the furlough.

Representative Thomas Blanton (Democrat), Texas, said that 400,000 of the Government's 800,000 employes "ought to be fired," and the remaining half made to do twice as much work.

Representative Florello H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, countered that reduction of forces would "aggravate the situation." He suggested the Government point the way for business to the five-day week by

Capital Woman Loses $2,355 in Gem Theft

Jewelry valued at $2,355 was reported stolen from the home of Mrs. Lillian R. Deland, 3707 Harrison street northwest, late yesterday.

Mrs. Deland told detectives that the burglars apparently entered through a rear window between 5:30 and 7:30 p. m. while she and her husband, F. Harold Deland, were absent. The entire place had been ransacked, but nothing but the jewelry, left in her bedroom, was stolen. Among the numerous pieces taken was a platinum wrist watch set with 36 diamonds worth $1,000.

$492,000,000 Tax Increase Is Listed.

SALES LEVY MAIN POINT

Cut in Public Works, Veterans Cost and Pay Slated.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

New revenue legislation to yield $492,000,000 and a net reduction of $582,000,000 in Federal expenditures for the 1934 fiscal year were recommended to Congress yesterday in President Hoover's annual budget message, which again vigorously urged a balance between the Government's income and outgo as essential to the maintenance of the national credit.

Anticipating a deficit of $1,146,000,000 for the year ending June 30, 1933, on top of a deficit of $2,500,000,000 in 1932 and $903,000,000 in 1931, the President warned that "such a situation can not be continued without disaster to the Federal finances."

"I can not too strongly urge," he said in conclusion, "that every effort be made to limit expenditures and avoid additional obligations, not only in the interest of the heavily burdened taxpayer, but in the interest of the very integrity of the finances of the Federal Government."

Sales Tax Proposal.

A general manufacturers' sales tax of 2¼ per cent, to replace many of the prevailing nonproductive nuisance taxes, was recommended to provide $355,000,000 of new revenue. The additional $137,000,000 would be achieved by renewal of the 1-cent gasoline tax, which, under the terms of the existing revenue law, expires in June, 1933.

The principal items accounting for the reduction in expenditures next year, as compared with appropriations for 1933, are:

Public works	$274,000,000
Veterans cut	89,000,000
Economy act	97,000,000
Pay cut	55,000,000
Red Cross wheat	40,000,000

Additional scattered savings approximating $250,000,000 are accounted for in general retrenchment in reduced prices for stores and supplies, and in smaller per diem forces in the Postoffice and other branches where the pay rolls fluctuate with the volume of business.

Against combined savings of $830,000,000, are set increases of $250,000,000, to leave the net reduction of about $580,000,000.

Foremost among the increases is $122,000,000 for the public debt service, $85,000,000 of which is for increased interest on the enlarged na-

Big Reception by Irene Rich For Post's Toy Fund Today

Children Are Reminded to Bring Gift for Needy at Christmas.

Today's the day for the big reception by Irene Rich, famous film star, appearing at Loew's Fox, for all those who wish to contribute a toy to The Washington Post's toy and doll fund and collection.

And Miss Rich has a surprise of her own for the reception which is scheduled this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Willard room of the Willard Hotel. She has induced Jimmy Savo, comedian on the Fox bill, to join in the party and entertain the children.

The only regulation on the reception is that each child must have a toy for The Post's fund and that each child must be accompanied by an adult. However, this does not bar adults who have no children but who want to aid the toy collection. They,

Farmers Map Plans Today; Visit Congress Tomorrow

Debt Holiday Proponents to Be in Galleries When Pleas Are Presented; All 202 Allowed to Tell of Troubles at Meeting Yesterday.

The rugged sons of the soil who trekked to the Capital to lay before Congress the plight of the farmer today will mold an agricultural relief program, shaped in their minds by batterings on the anvil of adversity.

Their aims, which envisage a general moratorium on agricultural debts, will be presented to Congress tomorrow, while the simply clad farmers, wearing overalls and working clothes, lobby for their proposals among the senators and representatives.

These roughly clad men will enter the galleries of the Senate and House—under strict orders to abide by the rules—while their recommendations are placed before the legislative groups.

Assembled in convention at 423 G street northwest, these growers thundered their grievances, and shouted for: "No Evictions—No Foreclosures." "A Moratorium on Taxes and Interest," and "City Workers—We farmers want your goods. You want our food. Support our demands."

Each of 232 rural citizens was permitted to tell of his difficulties. They were as diverse as the States from which the men came and as heterogeneous as their nationalities, and they held the crowd in rapt attention as the room filled with a blue haze of smoke from the corncob pipes clenched in the teeth of scores of them.

Their speeches were of homespun oratory. Not the flowing addresses to which the Capital is accustomed, but

FOOD HUNGER ARMY DISCARDED IS FOUND

A supply of canned and semiperishable food sufficient to feed the entire hunger army of 3,000 for at least a day was the paradoxical find last night of railroad police just off the embankment leading down from the marchers' camp on New York avenue.

Numerous cases of canned spaghetti and other foodstuffs, sacks and crates of potatoes and onions and other staple vegetables were found. Police were confident that it was left by hunger marchers in order to lighten their journey home.

The cache of hunger army rations was turned over to railroad employes and other persons who asked for portions of it. Metropolitan police had declared that it was up to the railroad company to distribute it as it was found on their property.

Last of Army Leaves.

As the last remnants of the 1932 hunger march were shooed by tired police toward the Key Bridge and Virginia last night, William Reynolds, reelected national chairman of the organization, declared that no more invasions of the Capital will be staged this year.

Victory was declared to have been achieved by the marchers in that it "dramatized the fight for winter relief and unemployment insurance." He added that "despite all discouragement, the demands of the hunger marchers were presented" to both House and Senate.

Police began the heavier work of changing New York avenue back into a highway yesterday morning, routing the main body of the Western column out of the city before noon. The City Refuse Department, which began clearing debris the night before, had the avenue back to its normal appearance by dusk.

Police Are Praised.

Two passenger cars and two trucks were not in shape to run until after dark last night and kept a goodly detachment of police officials and privates waiting impatiently to shunt them over the Key Bridge. Relief was much in evidence on police countenances as the little caravan moved away from the temporary camp.

Firemen went back to their regular duties yesterday morning. The police three-shift system had gotten back to its regular tempo last night.

"The efficiency, loyalty and willingness" of the policemen who stood the long hours of watching during the hunger marchers' sojourn here was highly praised last night in a statement issued by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

Action in House.

Repercussions of the hunger march were heard in the House of Representatives yesterday when Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), New York, declared that "95 per cent of the marchers in Washington were Communists." He added that "it's time the press stopped calling them hunger marchers. They were neither hungry nor did they march. They came here in trucks and had plenty to eat."

Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, criticized interference with the marchers' plan to parade to the Capitol and present their petitions. He said while not in direct agreement with their views, he thought they should have been treated better. Legislation envisaging unemployment insurance and a five-day week was favored by LaGuardia.

A report was received from Winchester last night that the marchers passed through early in the afternoon without disorder and were on their way to Cumberland. Throughout the Old Dominion a heavy guard of State policemen hovered around the hunger caravan.

Army Kept on Move.

The Virginia police kept the hunger marchers on the steady move. Any truck that dropped out because of mechanical disorder was immediately guarded by a policeman who urged its occupants to make it ready quickly.

Winchester authorities revealed yesterday that a report had been received by them last Sunday that a quantity of dynamite and shotguns had been seen in a hunger march car by a West Virginia trooper. This had resulted in the call for National Guard aid when the hunger marchers passed through on the way to Washington.

Authorities here last night declared they had not been apprised of any car containing arms, ammunition or explosives in the hunger motorcade.

The body is being held pending the return of the marchers, who, authorities believe, may be able to furnish information regarding the man.

Probers Summon Election Officials

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 7.—Election officials at John Street School Precinct here for the Novemoer 8 voting were under subpena to appear today for questioning as to the handling and counting of votes there for certain county offices as a result of a charge that fraud was suspected. The charge was made by counsel for Democratic candidates in the course of a recount hearing yesterday.

A change of 27 votes on the recount of this precinct against the Democratic candidate for county commissioner formed the basis for the charge.

Counsel for the Republican candidates, who asked the recount of the entire vote completed this week, announced yesterday it would ask a court order to summon witnesses from one county precinct where, it was charged, two ballots had been offered irregularly.

Lewis Quits Hospital to Aid Wets.

Chicago, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Saying he was perturbed at failure of the liquor repeal bill in the House of Representatives, Senator James Hamilton Lewis checked out of a hospital hurriedly today and said he was "needed in Washington."

SENATE DEMOCRATS HOLD PARTY CAUCUS

Finance Bills Get Priority; Economy and Farm Aid High on Program.

(Associated Press.)

Senate Democrats yesterday advanced a broad program, including votes on prohibition repeal and modification, for accomplishment at this session.

Assured of general cooperation from the Republican independents who supported President-elect Roosevelt, the Democrats have the control of the Senate as well as the House.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, announced the program after a party conference, which fixed the eight-point goal with a view to making unnecessary an extra session of the new Congress next spring.

Priority was given to the general appropriation bills providing funds to run the Government next year. These must be passed before adjournment on March 4 if a special session is to be avoided.

Philippine independence, the Glass banking reform bill, agricultural and unemployment relief, economy, prohibition and ratification of the World Court protocol comprised the rest of the Democratic legislative list.

Harmonious Conference.

Senator Robinson named the ranking members of the committees dealing with farm and unemployment relief and economy to draft the legislation to carry out these proposals.

The conference also adopted a resolution by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, banning confirmation of any but routine nominations by the Republican administration. This is expected to clear the way for more Senate time as well as Democratic appointees under the new administration.

The party's first conference of the session was described as harmonious with virtual unanimity of views Senator Long, of Louisiana, who has been attacking the leadership of Senator Robinson, demanded a place on the program for taxation reform and it was granted. He made no attack on Robinson in the meeting.

Although prohibition came at the end of the list announced by Robinson, the way was left open for calling for votes on repeal and modification whenever reports come from the Senate committees on these subjects.

Repeal May Come Up.

There is a feeling among some of the party leaders that the repeal vote may be reached before the Christmas recess. Senate opinion is believed to be dominant for a resolution providing Federal protection for dry States.

With ratification of the World Court protocol far down on the program, there is a probability that this subject may be left to the special session of the Senate, which is usually called at the start of a new administration for consideration of important nominations by the incoming President.

There is indication that the new Senate will have the required two-thirds majority for ratification of American entry into the court, a majority that is doubtful in the present Senate.

Virginian Dies 3 Months Short of Century Goal

Harrisonburg, Va., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—David F. Pittington, who often expressed a wish to live the full span of a century, died here at the age of 99 years and 9 months.

He came of a family noted for longevity. His sister, Mrs. Anna Taylor, of Rockingham County, died 15 years ago at the age of 110.

Roosevelt Makes Short Stop Here

(Associated Press.)

Franklin D. Roosevelt plans to make a throough study of the whole structure of the Federal Government during a series of talks with experts he will call to Warm Springs late in January.

The plans of the President-elect were disclosed yesterday shortly before he reached Washington for a 15-minute stop before speeding on to New York for a conference on State affairs.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to leave for Warm Springs either January 18 or 20 and immediately after his arrival there will begin an intensive study of the governmental structure and the budgetary system. During his stay there, he will see only those experts who are called to Warm Springs to supply him information.

HOOVER ASKS BUDGET SLASH OF $582,000,000 NEXT YEAR

tional debt. The increase for the 1934 debt retirement fund is $37,266,000.

The detailed schedule of 1934 fiscal operations presented by Secretary of the Treasury Mills carried among anticipated receipts, an item of $328,742,877 as payments from foreign governments on the war debts.

In neither the President's messages nor the supplementary report of Secretary Mills is there any mention or discussion of prohibition modification as a potential source of revenue.

Economies Promised.

On the basis of existing revenue law, income for 1934 was fixed by Secretary Mills at $2,949,162,000, which compares with estimates of $2,624,000,000 for 1933 and actual receipts of $2,121,000,000 in 1932.

The President's message promised further noteworthy economies in 1934 as a result of the consolidation and reorganization program soon to be outlined in a special message to Congress, but the amounts were not computed nor incorporated in any way in the new budget.

To a degree, therefore, these additional savings stand as a potential fund to offset a shrinkage in revenues below the Treasury estimates, and against the possibility of reduced payments from abroad on the war debts.

Cut in Veterans' Cost.

Curtailment of $127,000,000 in non-service-connected disability allowances and services and military pensions paid through the Veterans Administration is recommended as an essential item to the balanced budget, as are reductions of $55,382,000 to be realized through an 11 per cent pay cut for Federal employes.

This cut on all income over $1,000 applies on top of the 8 1-3 per cent reduction now effective through the furlough, which, with other essential provisions of the 1932 economy act, the President urges should be incorporated in the various 1934 appropriation bills as they pass through the House.

Assuming enactment of the pay cut, continuation of the furlough and congressional authorization of the projected reduction in veteran allowances and pensions, the President's budget calls for a total of $4,218,808,344, which compares with 1933 appropriations of $4,800,781,979. The difference is $581,923,625. Included in the 1934 total is $627,293,161 payable directly from postal revenues.

Major Expenditures.

Veterans and pensions	$931,000,000
Postal service	695,000,000
Debt retirement	534,000,000
Interest	725,000,000
Navy	308,000,000
War (military only)	276,000,000
Public works	400,000,000
Total	$3,869,000,000

The balance remaining for all other functions of the Government is approximately $350,000,000.

Including carry-over items appropriated in 1933 aggregating slightly more than $100,000,000, total expenditures in 1934 are estimated in the President's modified budget at $4,415,425,200. After deducting $625,000,000 payable directly from the postal revenues, a balance of $3,790,425,200 remains to be paid from the Treasury.

Estimated Receipts.

The paper deficit, therefore, will be $841,262,487.

Deferring the public debt retirement item of $534,070,300 will reduce this apparent deficit to $307,192,187.

Legislation authorizing the $492,000,000 in added revenues would create a surplus of $185,000,000—if all revenue estimates are sustained in operation, if no expenditures beyond the budget are authorized by Congress, and if the foreign powers actually lay down the $328,000,000 in debt payments carried in Secretary Mills' tabulation of prospective receipts. In addition, Congress must authorize the pay cut, continue the furlough, and slash $127,000,000 from now authorized veterans awards.

Possible Deficit.

If no new taxes are authorized, the 1934 deficit would stand at $307,000,000.

If, then, the foreign debt payments are not realized it will be increased to $635,000,000.

If the pay cut is not authorized, it will be increased further to $690,000,000.

If the economy provisions are not extended, the deficit will amount to $787,000,000.

If the veteran allowances are not cut, it will amount to $914,000,000.

All of these prospective deficits for next year are calculated on the assumption that actual revenues will match the Treasury estimates to the dollar, and that no item of expenditure not submitted in the President's modified budget will be authorized by Congress.

Bearing directly upon this picture is the fact that the 1932 tax revision has yielded to date considerably less than was estimated last May, owing principally to delayed economic recovery. To what degree this factor will curtail the estimated receipts for 1934 is, of course, problematical.

In his review of operations during the current fiscal year, 1933, Secretary Mills said that revenue estimates submitted last May, including new taxes then under consideration, were $3,098,000,000, but that in the light of experience this figure now must be reduced by $474,000,000. He urged, in general, abolition of the so-called nuisance taxes, but did not make public the list of specific items to be eliminated.

Recalling that the original ten-year program of Federal aid for public roads expires with the current fiscal year, President Hoover suggested that no addition authorization in this direction be undertaken, at least until the state of the Treasury appears more robust.

Delay Recommended.

"I earnestly recommend to the Congress that there be no further grant of legislative authority for appropriation for Federal aid to highways until the financial condition of the Treasury justfies such action," the message said.

A similar policy was urged in relation to public buildings and river and harbor works, and flood control, all of which have been advanced beyond immedite needs by the emergency construction program authorized at the last session.

The Navy budget calls for a reduction of 1,700 in the enlisted personnel of the Marine Corps, to 13,600.

"For construction of new vessels the 1934 estimates total $38,845,000," the budget message continues. "This sum, together with the amount of $5,000,000 to be transferred to this account from the naval supply account fund and an estimated balance of $9,525,000 to be carried over from 1933, will make available for 1934 a total of $53,380,000.

$9,500,000 Reduction.

"This amount is ample to continue work at a normal rate of progress on all vessels now under way, and, in addition, on the one 8-inch-gun cruiser to be laid down in January, 1934, and four destroyers to be laid down during the first half of the fiscal year 1934."

The total available for vessel construction in 1934 will be $9,500,000 under the $62,880,000 available in 1933.

In urging the utmost economy in government and the careful revision of revenue laws, Secretary Mills repeated in his annual report the grave admonition uttered by former Secretary Mellon in his 1931 review:

"There is a limit to the extent to which the Government, in our social and economic structure, may wisely divert funds from private employment to governmental use. When we take into consideration the mounting burden of State and local taxes, it is no exaggeration to say that we are approaching that limit."

Gold's Suspension Urged by Senator

Smith Thinks Action Will Raise Prices and Rescue Farmer.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, told newspapermen yesterday he favored a "temporary suspension" of the gold standard to "cheapen the dollar and increase commodity prices."

He added that his idea was for the suspension to hold only "until such time as the distressed condition in agriculture is relieved." As an example, he said cotton was selling for 11 cents a pound in Loverpool, but that this meant only 5 cents in the United States by the time exchange had been made.

"Cheapening the dollar by suspending the gold standard temporarily," Senator Smith concluded, "would raise commodity prices and aid the farmer and industry."

Navy Clothes to Needy, Is Plea Sent to Congress

(Associated Press.)

The Navy yesterday asked Congress to authorize it to distribute clothing no longer needed for its personnel among those who are in want. Secretary Adams proposed legislation allowed the disposal at "nominal prices."

The Secretary said his department had a quantity on hand at the naval supply depot in Brooklyn. He suggested that its sale be allowed to charitable organizations, States and municipalities. The War Department already has distributed a considerable quantity of clothing.

SLENDER HOPE SEEN OF M'CALL VICTORY

Senate Expected to Refuse Confirmation of Woman to Juvenile Court.

Scant hope for Senate confirmation of the appointment of Miss M. Pearl McCall as successor to Judge Kathryn Sellers on the Juvenile Court bench was held out yesterday after a Democratic Senate caucus resolved to approve no presidential appointees for terms extending beyond March 4.

The name of Miss McCall, an Assistant District Attorney, was sent to the Senate last session and referred to the judiciary committee. Yesterday President Hoover resubmitted the name.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, a member of the Senate judiciary committee and a personal friend of Judge Sellers, blocked the committee confirmation of Miss McCall at the last session.

The resolution adopted by Senate Democratic members in caucus yesterday was proposed by Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina. "The Senate," it read, "should not favor confirmation of any person where the term of office extends beyond March 4," except in case of routine appointments and promotions.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday sent to the Senate a list of 43 recess appointments and 3 reappointments.

Included in the list were the names of Roy D. Chapin as Secretary of Commerce; F. Lamont Belin, as Ambassador to Poland; former Representative Charles R. Crisp (Democrat), Georgia, as a member of the Tariff Commission, and Atlee Pomerene and Charles A. Miller, chairman of the board and president, respectively, of the Reconstruction Corporation.

The names submitted for reappointment were those of Ernest I. Lewis, as an Interstate Commerce commissioner; G. Wallace W. Hanger, as a member of the Board of Mediation, and Samuel Purvis, of Georgia, to be United States marshal for the middle district of Georgia.

District Blue Sky Bills Are Opposed

Move to Regulate the Sale of Securities Hits House Snag.

Opposition to both the Bowman and Blaine bills for regulating the sale of securities in the District, at the first meeting of the House District committee yesterday, may block any congressional action on District "blue sky" legislation at the present short session of Congress.

Four members of the committee, Representatives Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland; Black (Democrat), New York; Patman (Democrat), Texas, and Harlan (Republican), Ohio, opposed action by the committee on the measures. Representative Harlan declared District residents would be better off without any legislation.

Following the meeting, Representative Palmisano, chairman of the judiciary subcommittee, promised that the Hartley bill to legalize amateur boxing in the District will be reported to the full committee at its next meeting. Chairman Mary T. Norton urged early subcommittee action on a bill providing an insurance code for the District. She said no controversial District measures will be presented to the House at this session.

Rough Weather Halts Search for Treasure

Baltimore, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Postponement of their quest of $4,000,000, which went to the bottom of the ocean with the British treasure ship De Braake 143 years ago off Lewes, Del., was announced by Clarence A. Jackson, manager of the Baltimore Derrick & Salvage Co.

Jackson said that although members of the expedition, which has explored the region where the ship sank, feel certain they have located the hulk of the De Braake, rough weather has forced them to discontinue their operations until spring.

SPREAD OF TARIFF IS CITED BY O'BRIEN

Almost Prohibitive Barriers Being Erected by All, He Tells Engineers.

Almost prohibitive tariff barriers are being erected in every country in a wave of national spirit growing out of the depression, Robert Lincoln O'Brien, chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, last night told members of the Washington Society of Engineers and members of the engineers' advisory board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Speaking at the annual dinner of the society at the Mayflower Hotel, O'Brien said the world was in a mad race to make each locality self-sufficient in production.

Dumping of goods in export and within the country at a price which represents a loss to the producer is the prevailing custom, and many firms are in business only because they lose slightly less in production than in complete stoppage of business, he stated.

Dr. Charles David Marx, chairman of the engineers advisory board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, told the assembled members of the organization that "there isnt a body in the United States as anxious to extend a helping hand to distressed industry as the finance corporation," but he added, "we must follow the dictates of the Federal act."

"The Romance of Exploration" was the topic Dr. Maynard Owen Williams, of the National Geographic Society, who also spoke. He stated that the engineer was fast closing a world of dreams to the explorer, but that this science accounted for the fact that "we discovered the African pigmy, instead of their discovering us."

Conte de Savoia Docks With Stabilizer Broke

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The liner Conte de Savoia, first ship to be equipped with a device designed to eliminate rolling, arrived on its maiden voyage from Italy today and was greeted by a reception committee of civic and Italian Line officials.

The ship arrived with its $1,000,000 gyro-stabilizing plant out of commission as a result of a leak, with occurred when a discharge valve on the port side broke off.

Kentucky Car Seizures Threatened by Indiana

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—A threat to impound all Kentucky automobiles, both commercial and pleasure, within 48 hours unless Kentucky ceases enforcing truck regulations on Indiana vehicles was made here today by Grover C. Garrott, chief of Indiana State police.

Garnett Addresses Young Democrats

Judge Urges Audience to Give Gov. Roosevelt Loyal Support.

The Young Democrats Club of Washington last night listened to an entertaining address by Judge Lester Garnett, Assistant Attorney General under Woodrow Wilson. He spent nearly half an hour before the meeting relating interesting anecdotes of the last Democratic administration.

Judge Garnett exhorted the younger Democrats to go out and make the most of the opportunity soon to be placed before them "under the leadership of Gov. Roosevelt, a man of courage and integrity." Judge Garnett was elected to honorary membership of the club.

An inaugural committee was appointed to work with the national committee on the March 4 celebration. The club plans to hold a dance at the Willard Hotel December 17, for the purpose of raising funds for a quarterly publication.

SHOWDOWN LOOMS IN HOUSE ON U. S. FURLOUGH-CUT PLAN

closing every department two days a week.

Chairman Byrns Silent.

Appropriations Chairman Joseph W. Byrns maintained his silence on what the Treasury-appropriations bill will contain in the way of a pay cut.

He said it has not yet been definitely decided, adding that he hopes to report the bill to the House tomorrow or Saturday. The full appropriations committee probably will get the measure tomorrow.

Representative Byrns criticized the President's limitation of the cut to the civilian services. If a cut is made, he said, it should be leveled on civil and military establishments alike. The furlough plan exempted enlisted personnel, but reduced the pay of officers.

From the Senate side of the Capitol came statements from Senators Arthur Robinson (Republican), Indiana, and Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York, that they would oppose the President's plan.

"What we need to do is increase purchasing power, and how are you going to do that by reducing salaries?" commented Senator Robinson.

Carey for Survey.

Senator Robert D. Carey (Republican), Wyoming, said all Government salaries should be studied and realigned from the standpoint of services rendered rather than accept a flat percentage cut all down the line. He pointed out there are inequities now in salaries paid for the same services, particularly as between bureau heads. He said he thought low-salaried employes already have taken as much of a cut as they can stand.

Plans for a mass meeting of Government workers for expression of views on the President's recommendations were discussed last night at a meeting of the District Federation of Federal Employes. Resolutions were adopted supporting efforts of the National Federation of Federal Employes in its efforts to protect the Government worker.

The Senate economy committee yesterday brought to a close its hearing of Federal employes on inequalities in the present economy act. Witnesses included W. G. Armstrong, president of the National Rural Carriers Association; John P. Frey, of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor; Raymond J. Roche, of the Washington Printing Pressemen's Union; Edwin Evans and Alfred D. Calvert, the latter two appearing as individuals.

Prefers Cut to Furlough.

Mr. Roche said a straight pay cut would be preferable to the furlough, if it provided for a five-day week and restored annual leave. Mr. Evans suggested a graduated scale of reductions, ranging from 10 per cent on salaries between $1,000 and $2,999, to 50 per cent on salaries of $10,000 and over.

The President's move to relieve departments where the administrative furlough is now being extensively applied was disclosed in budget estimates for those departments. They include State, Justice, Commerce, Labor, Interior, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Civil Service Commission, the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Farm Board.

Urges 5-Day Week.

Representative LaGuardia, in urging a five-day week in Government, told members of the House:

"We were told when we first approved the furlough plan that it would bring about a five-day week. It did not do any such thing. If you want a five-day week that will be passed on to business, you should close every department of Government two days a week. Close the Postoffice Department, the Internal Revenue Bureau and the Customs service, and business will follow."

Representative Loring Black (Democrat), New York, said he looked on the proposed additional cut as a tax imposed by the Government out of all proportion to that visited on other civilians.

"It should be thought of as a tax, because that's what it amounts to," he said.

A drive to defeat the latest pay cut recommendations was launched yesterday by the executive committee of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks.

"It is inconceivable that Congress will translate into action this latest note of despair," said Thomas F. Flaherty, secretary-treasurer of the organization.

BORAH WOULD END HOME LOAN BANKS

Copeland Defends System, But Scores Fort, While Glass Praises Head.

(Associated Press.)

An unexpected move by Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, to abolish the Home Loan Bank system drew prompt support in the Senate yesterday, and an equally spontaneous defense of the law from Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York.

Asserting the system had proved "wholly unsatisfactory," Borah introduced a bill to repeal the act creating it which Congress passed in the closing moments of last session after repeated recommendations by President Hoover.

His proposal precipitated the first Senate debate of the session, in which the banking system was criticized by Senator Cousens (Republican), Michigan, and Democratic Senators Glass, of Virginia; Fletcher, of Florida, and Dill, of Washington.

Copeland replied that the system had not had a fair trial and asserted under proper administration it would save many homes. He characterized its chairman, former Representative Franklin W. Fort, as a "politician" and said he had been "too active in other enterprises."

Fort Criticized.

"This board has not had a fair chance, because its lame-duck president has been devoting his time and thought to other matters, rather than to the interests of this great enterprise," Copeland said.

Couzens replied that Fort had been out campaigning for President Hoover, "when he ought to have been attending to the job for which he was paid," but asserted the entire board was responsible and not the chairman alone. Glass lauded Fort as a man of "exceptional intelligence whose only dereliction was his assumption that he might reelect the President."

"He was just as capable of conducting the affairs of this innocuous organization as any other man," the former Secretary of the Treasury added.

Borah, in introducing his bill, said the act had proved and would continue to prove unsatisfactory "because it is not reaching and will not reach the home owner or those really in need of assistance."

"In my opinion," he said, "the act should either be repealed or drastically amended and I don't believe it could be amended to mean anything."

Present Act "Useless."

Glass said the Senate had been given the impression that banks, real estate associations and others included in the provisions of the law would rush to subscribe to it, but that "as a matter of fact the subscriptions were of such a meager nature that they haven't collected enough to establish two of the twelve banks."

"To my mind," he added, "unless I am convinced to the contrary, that alone shows the fallacy of enacting the law."

Joining the criticism, Couzens said "there isn't a chance in a million" to make a loan under it to a needy mortgage owner.

Fletcher said that although six months had lapsed "not a single loan had been made," and Dill asserted the usefulness of the legislation up to this time had been "absolutely destroyed" by the Senate's refusal to create a home loan division in the Reconstruction Corporation.

Philippine Legislature Kills Recent Measure

Manila, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—After a half-day's delay, the Philippine Legislature convened in special session today, decided it didn't pass a disputed bill at its recent regular session after all, and then adjourned until tomorrow.

A series of stormy caucuses were held over a provision in the appropriation bill increasing allowances to representatives by $1,100. Conferees finally agreed with President Manuel Quezon of the Senate that the provision was never approved by the regular session, which ended less than a month ago.

Embassies' Liquor Shipment Arrives

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 7.—A shipment of 162 cases of preprohibition Christmas cheer was brought into port today by the City of Baltimore without raising any objections from the local dry agents, the wines and spirits being consigned to the various embassies at Washington.

Thirsty Baltimoreans smacked their lips as the liquor was lifted carefully from the liner's hold and deposited equally carefully on the dock in lower Canton.

Included in the shipment were 54 cases of assorted liquors for the Italians; 80 cases of beers and liquors for the Germans; 6 cases of pilsener for the Dutch; 17 cases of champagne for the Spanish, and 5 cases of beer for the British. Waiting on the pier to take charge of the consignment were representatives of the embassies, who had come from Washington to accept delivery of the liquor and see it safely from the pier to Capital cellars.

Long Beach, Calif., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Positive identification of a photograph today sent detectives on the trail of an Australian sailor as the principal suspect in the slaying Monday night of Walter Wanderwell aboard the world adventurer's yacht Carma on the Long Beach water front.

Behind the search was the allegation of a revenge motive, suspicion of attempted blackmail and a previous attack on Wanderwell by the suspect.

Cuthbert Wills, the Carma's chief engineer, made the identification. It was of Wills that a man in a gray suit, speaking through a port hole, inquired the whereabouts of Wanderwell shortly before the fatal shot was fired.

Threat of Mutiny.

The engineer was shown a photograph of a man known as "Curley" Guy, who, the widow, Aloha Wanderwell said, was cast off one of Wanderwell's previous cruise vessels at Panama for inciting mutiny, and who, Mrs. Wanderwell said, attacked her husband recently in a Hollywood apartment.

"I am certain he is the man," Wills said, thus confirming previous partial identifications by members of the projected Wanderwell cruise to the South Seas and by a gambling ship croupier who said he saw a man in gray hurrying from the dock after the shooting.

With Wanderwell's "good luck" whistle to support her theory, Mrs. Wanderwell said she believed her husband may have attempted to "pay off" the man who shot him in the back.

Former Encounter Told.

She said she found the whistle today in the coils of a rope at the foot of a ladder up which the killer is believed to have fled.

"Capt. Wanderwell always carried the whistle in his purse," the widow explained. "I believe he took his purse out of his pocket to give the man some money. Then, thinking he was rid of the visitor, he turned and went back into his cabin, but was followed there and shot to death."

At Seattle, Eugene Babbitt, naval reserve ensign, who signed for a cruise with Wanderwell last June, told of an encounter between Wanderwell and the Australian seaman.

Yacht Called Unseaworthy.

Work of making the Carma shipshape for the South Seas cruise was continued despite the killing and the declaration of United States Coast Guardsmen that the vessel is unseaworthy. In fact, publicity attending the tragedy bade fair to solve the acute problem of finances.

Mrs. Wanderwell announced her husband's plans for the trip would be carried out, and Eugenia Nobel, New York actress, and Florence Wiegel, two members of the party, traveled Los Angeles streets in a bannered automobile, causing a large sale for literature concerning the spectacular world travels of the Wanderwells.

Records show Wanderwell under his real name of Valarian Johannes Pieczynski, was interned as a German agent for a while at Atlanta, Ga., in 1917.

Underwood & Underwood.

Dirt farmers seeking relief from low prices and foreclosures arrive as hunger marchers depart. One group made trek in log-cabin truck, probably as further proof of their nearness to the soil.

FARM BOARD URGES ALTERATIONS IN ACT

Measure to Be Sponsored by Democrats May Include Cotton Purchases.

(Associated Press.)

Changes in the law law under which the Farm Board went into the wheat pits and cotton exchanges and bought huge quantities of those commodities were urged yesterday by the board.

Meanwhile, a distinct possibility arose that the farm relief bill to be sponsored by the Democrats may include legislation to authorize the Federal purchase of 10,000,000 bales of cotton to reduce this year's surplus and a provision looking to future limitation of planting.

Senator Smith, a South Carolina Democrat, yesterday proposed such a course. Simultaneously, Representative Summers (Republican), Washington, said he saw a strong possibility that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation may open the way for the shipment of 15,000,000 bushels of wheat to China in the next few days.

The Farm Board's recommendation was interpreted by agricultural spokesmen on Capitol Hill to mean it was leaning strongly toward the domestic allotment plan recently considered by President-elect Roosevelt.

The proposal was included in a supplement to the board's third annual report. The board suggested changes to "elevate" the income of farmers as an alternative to "mere price stabilization," for which the marketing act now provides.

This should be brought about, he said, in such a way, as to "pay the costs, if any, on a continuous and self-sustaining basis, and to provide an effective system for regulating acreage or quantities sold, or both."

The board also urged amendments to make certain it could make loans to cooperatives engaged in purchasing equipment and materials for farm production.

Another recommendation was to restore to the board's revolving fund sufficient money to enable it to finance properly the development of cooperative associations, and authorization for compromising claims against debtor associations.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, said a bill dealing with the farm mortgage situation would be brought forth by the Senate around Christmas. The market problem, he added, would await a decision of farm organization leaders now in conference.

FARMER MARCHERS TO DECIDE TODAY ON THEIR AID PROGRAM

So that everything would be done in order, a committee called upon Speaker Garner and Vice President Curtis and received assurances of their cooperation in presenting their petitions to the House and Senate.

The meeting, which is known as the Farmers' National Relief Conference, is the outgrowth of the farmers' strike in the Middle West last summer. It will continue for three days.

Gloomy Pictures Painted.

Speaker after speaker aired a gloomy picture of agriculture throughout the country and shouted that the present status could not continue without ruin.

Keynoting the addresses, Fred Strong, of Torrington, Wyo., declared that farmers in his State were unable to pay their taxes, interest and mortgages and were "being turned out of their own homes."

The condition of the milk producers was told by Stephen Negoesou, of Hunterdon County, N. J., who said the producers are not getting for their product what it cost to produce it. "If you could pay your taxes and meet your obligations, you would not be here today," he said.

There was a scattering of women farmers in the crowded hall, and they were as vociferous as any of the men in voicing their complaints."

Mrs. Myrtle "Mother" Brewer, looked upon by the farmers as the "Joan of Arc" of the Farmers Holiday Association strike in Iowa, pleaded for unity among the farmers in promoting a relief program.

Cheered by Audience.

The gray-haired woman, well above 50 years, described herself as a "busted farmer's mother and a busted farmer's wife." "We have been sending our misleaders to Washington to lobby," she told the cheering audience, "but now we have come to attend to our own business and we are going to attend to it."

Another woman farmer, Mrs. Ella Chase, of Sullivan County, N. Y., was nearly swept away by her emotions as she told of her departure from her home where she left her children with the knowledge that she was "going to Washington to help keep them in food, in clothing, and with a roof over their heads." She was wearing a knitted buff tam, a brown sweater, and gray skirt, which she said had been given her by friends in the city.

On the House floor Representative Howard (Democrat), of Nebraska, said President Hoover's annual message had been "magnificent in its silence on agriculture." "Agriculture did not fall into the ditch of depression," he said. "It was pushed there by governmental hands and only governmental hands can lift it out."

In the Senate, Senator Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, said the best way to increase farm commodity prices is to prevent a surplus. "This," he said, "is a plan which has never been resorted to and goes directly to the roots of this evil."

At a night session, Tony Rosenberg, of Newmans Grove, Nebr., was elected permanent chairman. The following were named vice chairmen: Lew Bentzley, Berkasle, Pa.; Fred Strong, Torrington, Wyo., and Stephen Stafford, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Negro.

B. E. F. Included Major, Rail Fund Report Shows

Veterans' Administrator Frank T. Hines yesterday reported to Congress that 5,160 bonus marchers availed themselves of the Government's offer of free transportation home during the time limit fixed by Congress. Gen. Hines returned $23,288 of the $100,000 appropriated for the purpose.

His report disclosed that 66.5 per cent of the veterans availing themselves of the Government's offer had seen overseas service. There were only six or seven duplicate requests for aid, he said, and only eleven detrained before reaching their destination.

Bonus marchers who rode home at Government expense included 1 major, 4 captains, 31 lieutenants, 331 sergeants, 547 corporals and 4,192 privates, he said. Of the total expended, $61,380 went for railway fare and $15,332 for bus fare.

GREAT LAKES REGION HIT BY ZERO BLASTS

New Cold Wave Strikes as Far South as Texas and New Mexico.

(Associated Press.)

Icy blasts swept into the Great Lakes region from the Canadian Northwest last night, sending thermometer readings toward subzero marks throughout the area.

Temperatures dropped steadily yesterday, but the full force of the wintry assault was not expected to be felt until this morning.

Snow blanketed northern Colorado, Wyoming, parts of Montana and Washington, and much of Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas. Southern Colorado and New Mexico were without snow, but reported extreme cold and heavy clouds. Texas received a wintry blast.

The storm suddenly turned the Midwest from enjoyment of a belated spell of springlike temperatures, which reached the 60's in some places, to hurried preparations for the expected subzero visit. Relief agencies made plans to answer calls for aid. Railroads and city officials prepared equipment to keep right of ways and traffic lanes cleared.

New Orleans, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Dixie put extra blankets on its beds tonight as two weeks of balmy weather gave way to another cold wave, with freezing temperatures predicted almost to the Gulf coast.

The Weather Bureau here said north winds would sweep into the South tonight from blizzard-bound regions of Canada. A cold wave was forecast from Texas to Georgia, while low temperatures were predicted for Georgia and Florida.

New York Life Club To Meet Monday

Agents' Group Will Close Year With Special Program.

On Monday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock, at the Mayflower Hotel, the New York Life Agents Club will close its 1932 year with one of its most interesting meetings.

Lemuel C. Sandford, assistant secretary of the New York Life Insurance Co., of New York, will make the principal address. The meeting is to be held in honor of F. Turner Munsell, former agency organizer of the Washington branch office, who is to be the new agency director of the New York Life at Trenton, N. J.

Earl D. Krewson, agency director of the Washington branch, will announce the winners in a recent contest.

A new chairman and committee will be selected by the New York Life Agents Club to serve during the new year. Harry Kirks, agency director of the Baltimore branch, will attend, as will Fred Munsell, inspector of agencies of the Atlantic department. Loren L. Cluster will act as toastmaster, and the luncheon will be arranged by the regular committee, composed of David Samakow, chairman; Sidney Simon, Ralph Cipriano and Frank Sabotka.

Pollard Seeking to End Row Over Forestry Post

Richmond, Va., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Definite efforts are being made by Gov. Pollard to ameliorate the differences between William E. Carson, chairman of the State Conservation and Development Commission, and State Forester Chapin Jones, whom he has discharged, it was learned today.

The governor has viewed the case as one to be decided as a matter of administrative policy, rather than from the standpoint of legal merit. Today he declined to discuss publicly the case, other than to say he expected to announce a decision before the end of the month, when the current order dismissing Mr. Jones from office is to take effect.

Forest Fire Laid to Incendiary.

Luray, Va., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Officers are investigating the origin of a fire which destroyed 2½ acres of valuable timber in the proposed area of the Shenandoah National Park over the week-end. Fire Warden Wilbur Miller said that the blaze, the first to occur in the park area since the Skyline drive was opened, was of incendiary origin.

TELEGRAPHIC DISPATCHES

St. Louis, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The Post-Dispatch said today that with the recent closing of the Ayres National Bank in Jacksonville, Ill., the trustees of Illinois College have discovered that the 103-year-old institution has lost bonds valued at $504,000, or nearly one-third of its endowment.

Madison, Ind., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Two river steamers were burned today in a fire that also destroyed a dry dock and a lumber pile here, with a loss estimated at $200,000.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—John Henry Niemeyer, 93, noted artist and professor emeritus of drawing in the Yale School of Fine Arts, died today.

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, and Mrs. Butler today announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, to Capt. Neville Lawrence, of London, England.

Berkeley, Calif., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Berkeley citizens can have their fingerprints added to police records free of charge, but no line is forming. A. J. Greening, police chief, inviting citizens to be fingerprinted at the newly created Bureau of Personal Identification, said: "If fingerprinted persons get lost, suffer amnesia attacks or get bowled over in traffic accidents, we shall be able to identify them."

Children's Thefts Increased in 1931

(Associated Press.)

An upward curve of children's thefts in the economically straitened year of 1931 was noted in a bulletin on juvenile delinquency published yesterday by the Children's Bureau. The pamphlet is being added to that child care series, prepared under the direction of Miss Grace Abbott, which have proved best sellers among U. S. bulletins.

It urges a new community view point toward so-called bad boys and girls, citing the recommendation of the White House conference on child health and protection "to abandon the practices of finding fault, of laying blame, and to recognize the fact that the causes of delinquency are natural and universal."

Statistics from nineteen courts in communities of more than 100,000 were found to show an upward juvenile delinquency curve from 1927 to 1930.

Father of 3 Is Indicted In School Girl's Death

Doylestown, Pa., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The Bucks County grand jury today returned an indictment charging Charles Arnwine, 25-year-old father of three children, with the slaying of Frances Rempfer, 15-year-old school girl.

Arnwine, who, police say, has confessed the slaying of the school girl in a "suicide pact" as he kissed her in Double Woods, listened impassively to the reading of the true bill.

Futile Fight

Spider, Caught in Clock, Spins Gamely On But to No Avail.

Akron, Ohio, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—For seventeen days a tiny black spider, imprisoned between the dial and the glass face of a shiny blue-enameled alarm clock in the home of C. C. Thompson, has fought an unceasing battle with the hour and minute hands of the timepiece.

How the spider got into the tightly sealed clock no one in the Thompson family knows. Little Mary Louise Thompson, 5, daily is fascinated by the gray strands of the spider's web winding about the hands, but 8-year-old Tommy Thompson has become bored.

Once the spider, with all the perseverance of Robert Bruce's famous insect, managed to fasten his silken lasso to the slow-moving hour hand and span the distance to the minute hand, but as the clock ticked away the tension became too great and the web broke.

Thompson says the black insect may have entered the face of the clock through a small crevice at the shaft which bears the hands. He would like to see the spider free, he says, but that would mean taking the entire clock apart.

Mediator Orders Wage Cut.

Cincinnati, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Reductions of 12½ per cent in the basic pay of milk wagon drivers, shippers, foremen and plant workers in the Cincinnati milk distribution industry were ordered today by Fred Keightly, whose appointment as conciliator ended a recent two-day milk strike here.

Head of Closed Bank In Maryland Is Guilty

Cambridge, Md., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Edgar B. Simmons, 62-year-old president of the closed Citizens' Bank of Hurlock, was convicted with recommendation for mercy by a Circuit Court jury on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses in connection with the bank's failure.

After deliberating four hours, the jury acquitted the banker of a charge of larceny. Simmons was allowed his liberty under continuation of his bail until he will be brought to court to be sentenced.

Sponsor of Jobless Unit At Richmond Is Cleared

Richmond, Va., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Police Justice T. Gray Haddon today dismissed vagrancy charges against Abe Tomkin, organizer of the Richmond Unemployed Council and local leader of the "marcher demonstrators."

The justice said evidence offered against Tomkin was not sufficient to justify conviction under the statutory definition of vagrancy.

Walker Gives Up Seat; Was Senator Two Days

(Associated Press.)

Walter Walker, stocky grinning Westerner, became a senator on Monday and retired yesterday to private life.

After wearing the famous but figurative toga for two days, he saw Karl C. Schuyler, who defeated him in the recent election, take the oath of office and become his successor.

Walker was appointed by Gov. Adams of Colorado to complete the term of the late Senator Waterman. The election intervened, however, and the result was so close that Schuyler's victory could not be certified by the opening of the session on Monday.

Back in 1922, Rebecca Latimer Felton became the first woman to sit in the Senate and held office for one day by appointment of Georgia's Governor.

New Steamship Ready To Leave Newport News

Newport News, Va., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Smoke was pouring from the funnel of the steamship Hayti at her shipyard berth tonight as the crew made her ready for initial sea trials tomorrow. The new vessel will leave her pier at 5 a. m., according to her schedule, with Capt Long, her master, on the bridge.

The Hayti is the second of two ships built here for the Colombian Line. The first, the Colombia, was delivered to her owners about two weeks ago.

2 NEW SCHOOLS PUT IN BUDGET ESTIMATE

1934 Prospectus Trimmed to $10,679,620; Sent to Congress.

Despite a ruthless blue pencil that trimmed 1934 school estimates to $10,679,620, a cut of $1,483,110 under current appropriations, funds for a new high school, a new elementary school and two new junior high school additions are provided in the budget submitted to Congress yesterday.

The new high school would be erected in the Reno section, at Forty-first and Chesapeake streets northwest, at a cost of $1,300,000. Only $500,000 of that amount would be spent in the next fiscal year. The much-needed structure would relieve chronic overcrowding at Western High School.

An eight-room elementary school building is provided for in the budget, to be erected at a cost of $105,000 on a site already purchased in the vicinity of the Logan School.

Gymnasium Facilities.

Ten-room addition with gymnasium facilities would be erected at a cost of $166,000 each at the Deal and Brown Junior High Schools, respectively, the budget disclosed.

Provision was made for a Jefferson Junior High School site and $110,000 set aside for its purchase. Additional land at the Phelps vocational school is called for in a $67,000 estimate, while $25,000 is estimated for additional land at the Syphax school.

Of the total school budget, $1,139,000 was allocated to building and grounds, and that figure represented a cut of $429,500 under current appropriations.

The largest single item in the school budget, for personal services of teachers and librarians, totaled $6,025,700 as compared with $6,399,200 for the 1932 fiscal year.

Night School System.

In spite of the reduced salary title, that sum will purchase the services of 85 more teachers than the amount appropriated in the last fiscal year. The 2,939 teacher total in the 1934 budget compares with 3,894 estimated for the current fiscal year.

The night school system was among the activities hit in budget cuts with only $88,180 estimated for maintenance of the system, comparing with $97,000 appropriated for the current fiscal year.

Appropriations for Americanization work were chopped from $13,000 currently appropriated, to $10,910 in the new budget. For the Community Center Department only $38,390 is appropriated, as against $41,900 for this fiscal year.

An estimate of $74,800 provides for the complete furnishing of the new elementary school in Foxhall Village, the Logan School, the Phelps Vocational School, the Keene School, the Bancroft School, the Douglass-Simmons assembly-gymnasium and the M Street Junior High School Gymnasium.

TOY FUND RECEPTION AT WILLARD TODAY

too, will be admitted if they bring a toy.

All those attending todays reception are requested to enter the hotel at Fourteenth and F streets. Claire Wagner, "Mother of the Willard," will be on hand to aid the children and the reception promises to be a real treat for all present. Miss Rich will greet personally all children and adults accompanying them, while Mr. Savo will provide a real bit of entertainment.

Meanwhile, the fund did not stand still yesterday. Contributions got within striking distance of $300, with indications that the goal of $500 will be passed by Saturday night. In addition to the cash received, many toys and dolls were added to the already large collection.

But the need this year is greater than ever before, and The Post does not want any child to be without some joy-giving toy or doll on Christmas morning. Every little bit helps and every toy contributed will make some needy boy or girl happy.

A highlight of yesterday's contributions was the sum of $5.70 from members of the National Capital Kennel Clubs through Mrs. R. C. Birney, of Aspin Hills Kennels. Names of the dogs matching Ding-How's gifts will be published at a later date for Mrs. Birney, representing Aspin Hill Kennels, says she has not finished with her work.

But this afternoon don't forget the reception at the Willard. Miss Rich wants to meet as many boys and girls as possible and also their parents and guardians. Mr. Savo wants a big crowd so she can really put on a great show. So be there promptly at 4:30 and have a grand time—all the while helping other boys and girls by bringing a toy or a doll to make them happy at Christmas.

Burns Prove Fatal To Retired Farmer

John Ridgely, 78 years old, retired farmer of Gaithersburg, Md., died last night at the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring, Md., as the result of burns received when he attempted to extinguish a brush fire in his yard Tuesday. Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

Mr. Ridgely was burning trash in the yard of his home on Diamond avenue when the flames ignited the grass and the fire started toward a nearby barn. He attempted to stamp out the flames and his clothes caught fire. Ernest L. Fraley, a neighbor, heard the cries for help and hurried to his assistance. He smothered the flames with a blanket.

Mr. Ridgely was removed to the hospital by Ernest C. Gartner, Gaithersburg funeral director, in his ambulance. He suffered critical burns on the legs, body and right arm.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

HERE are a few tricks to try on your old baseball diamond next session, just for practice—triple plays—unassisted.

E. Griffith "Ping" Purdy.

Sure, it's been done by a better man than we are. Gunga Din (thanks to Miss E. E. Wright, Reference Department, District Library, for the spelling), and that by E. Griffith (Ping) Purdy, chief of the Physical Qualifications Section, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Navy Department.

"Ping" Purdy, during his baseball career, 1909-1927, established a record in baseball, that has never been equaled. He has participated in nine triple plays, four of which were unassisted. How do you like those baseballs?

Born Christmas Day, 1891, at Annapolis, Md., "Ping" spent most of his spare time in boyhood on the athletic field of the Naval Academy. Naval Academy terrain is still home to "Ping," for he has been engaged as an official for Naval Academy baseball games.

The family moved to Washington in 1905. During high school days, 1909-10-11-12, "Ping" was chosen the outstanding baseball player of the high schools. He played shortstop. During 1913-14-15-16 he played professional baseball in the North Carolina Association, Virginia League and with the Washington Senators part of 1916.

Navy days began for "Ping" when he enlisted April 10, 1917, and was stationed in France until September, 1919. He was considered the best shortstop in the A. E. F. in 1918-19. He executed one of his famous triple plays unassisted during that period against Gen. Pershing's All-Star team at Paris, France, and which led to the lone defeat suffered by that team.

In 1927 Mr. Purdy gave up the actual playing of ball to become an umpire. He is a member of the District of Columbia Baseball Umpires Association. During his five years as umpire he has been acclaimed one of the best in this region.

His greatest gift is the ability to think quickly and to sense correctly the proper play. To this is coupled his fleetness, permitting him usually to be on top of all plays.

In view of his ability as an umpire, Purdy has been rewarded by most of the leading colleges and universities on the seaboard, Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, Naval Academy and others, to officiate at their games.

But then the chances are "Ping" would have made good just the same had he decided to announce trains, sell bonds or teach dancing. He's that sort of chap—a feller who has earned everything that ever came his way, a fighter, but a gentleman always, in speech, dress and behavior. He fairly bubbles over with enthusiasm, and always has the courage of his convictions. And that's some tribute, but it's well merited.

"I HEAR those distant church bells ringing," began Mr. Fedd (his friends all call him Swami Fedd for short) . . . Yes, it's true! I first thought it might have been due to too much quinine, causing ear noises . . . But it's true! I see Madeline Wert, Miscellaneous Payments and Receipts, Finance Service, Veterans' Administration, has just returned from three weeks' vacation, and methinks wedding bells can't be far around the corner.

Strange as it seems—"Our young daughter doesn't stop her mother and me from going out evenings. Your announcer is George Walker, Customs Bureau. Yes, sleeps from 7 p. m. until 6 or 7 a. m. Oh, for the life of a baby daughter! Sleep, and enough of it. So curfew does ring with daughter's consent.

Had Howard T. Jones, assistant director of prohibition, and Randolph Shaw, general counsel, not attended Philly's Army-Navy game Saturday there would only have been 78,998 present.

Frances Skelly, Prohibition Bureau, is in "the know" on a stunt the Federal Diary plans after Christmas. She suggested postponement till then and thinks the stunt is "a good idea."

That Washington-bound train from Chicago. Who's on? If it isn't Louise Le Combe, herself, Federal Farm Board, returning from Lake Michigan environs and a week's rest from routine.

Dorothy Jackson, president, State Department Branch Local Union, No. 2; Charles D. Dye, vice president, Charlie, will you always be "vice president?" Ga-ga.

"To look at us, you wouldn't guess we were a crate of lemons," volunteers J. B. Sellers, Plant Quarantine, Department of Agriculture, referring to that line about the bureau being housed in the Lemon Building. Right you are, "J. B." Let's substitute peaches for lemons.

Detective Sergeant Mike Dowd, of the Detective Bureau, is back from "the Ould Sod" in County Claire, and is looking forward to his next visit.

NOTICING that the guards at the Commerce Building appeared Monday with big Army pistols strapped to their waists, we inquired the reason of several of the men, but were told to "ask the captain." The captain of the guard, being equally noncommittal, we were finally compelled to rely upon Swami Fedd for an answer. "Easy," replied the venerable seer from Port Said. "The guns are to protect the guards from Congress. During the last session the elected representatives of the pee-pul took away their 30-day annual leave, 30 days' pay for legislative furlough and gave them 115 days' administrative furlough. Out of an average salary of $1,200 per year this leaves them about $700 annually—unless my crystal ball is cockeyed. You guessed it, they're wearing the artillery in plain downright self-defense."

Entire Reconstruction Finance Corporation extends sympathy to Harold Newman, legal department, R. F. C., because of the death of his father in New Orleans.

If I were a pea
And you were she
How could you be
So cruel to me?

THINK of two women, abusing, crushing, ruining one little innocent green pea! Yes, they were caught in the act! The guilty parties? Miss Florence B. King and Miss T. G. Packard, Bureau of Home Economics, Agriculture Department. * * * Miss King, take the stand. Why did you place this poor, tender, helpless, innocent pea on that green slab; place on its tender flesh a compressor connected with complicated gauges and gadgets of various descriptions, and then stand back with a smile of malicious satisfaction, while fat, heavy globules of mercury dropped with monotonous, tortuous certainty of an instrument of the Spanish Inquisition? How could a woman of your tender sympathies stand by so idly while, with each drop of mercury that sweet, little, green pea took on a more agonized flattened expression? Did your heart not contract, tears spring to your eyes, as that frail body finally burst through its delicate skin and with a scarcely audible "squish" became just a green smear, just puree, upon its hard bed? Tell me, if you can, Miss King!

"Oh, Swami, do not judge me too harshly. I am guilty. Yes, I squished that little innocent green pea, but it was all for a good cause, Swami. Besides, it was only half baked and really never knew what happened to it. You see, old seer of mystic Port Said, via of Maine Express, this pea has been threatening the integrity of our great American institution, the American kitchen. It was my duty to the American family; the housewife who cooks and to the men and children who must eat what she cooks to discover what method of cooking would make that pea most beneficial to the human system, most tender and palatable, be the consequences what they may. I must confess this is not the only pea that Miss Packard and I have squished. There have been scores of others, but through their martyrdom, we have discovered just how to cook a pea to make it most tender, succulent and delightful. When our new recipes go throughout the land thousands of farmers will sit around their groaning boards and say, 'I swan, Marthy (or whatever may be the Christian names of their marital companions), I never did taste such good peas before.' . . . And Swami, how about dropping in some Thursday when we make actual cooking and eating tests? (And today's Thursday).

"It is inconceivable that Congress will translate into action this latest note of despair, this proposal in sharp contrast with the rosy preelection pictures of a few months ago of a country that had fought its way through the worst of the depression," said Thomas F. Flaherty, secretary-treasurer, National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, yesterday, referring to President Hoover's latest proposal to slice Federal wages.

"This clamor for reduction in Federal taxes comes from a small, though powerful, group of large taxpayers," said Mr. Flaherty. "Less than 4 per cent of the people pay Federal income tax directly. It is sheer nonsense, therefore, to claim that this drive for lowered Federal taxes is in response to a widespread public demand. The average farmer or wage earner pays no Federal income taxes, or very little. Four-fifths of all such taxes are paid directly by 1 per cent of the people, the wealthy group that can well afford to pay. The federation opposes the President's economy program because it is economically unsound and discriminatory against the employes."

Word comes that S. K. Kushelevsky, regional expert on Poland and Roumania, regional information division, will be on the job soon. Illness.

So there is a Santa Claus, after all! One thousand employes, Bureau of Standards, have a special appointment with Mr. S. Claus in the person of the paymaster. Workers in the bureau will be paid full basic salaries December 15 and December 30. They have been having pay deductions of five days monthly, in lieu of the two and-one-half day legislative furlough, as in other bureaus of the Commerce Department, although Foreign and Domestic Commerce Bureaus, also on a five-day legislative furlough basis, were not included. Arrangements made by Dr. L. J. Briggs, acting director, assisted Standards employes in receiving full basic pay for both December pay days.

Foreign and Domestic Commerce Administrative Assistant Wharton Moore, Florida vacation and several weeks with his son in Jacksonville.

Numerous activities of War Department Federal Employes' Union, No. 261, N. F. F. E., reflected in reports by Mrs. R. K. Pedigo on rents and home buying; William S. Kinney on organization work and public relations; Herbert Solomon on credit union now being formed; Miss Peale Cooper on educational forum, and Miss Loretta Corcoran on the Hospital Guild; President Gertrude E. Coyle says.

Judge V. Simonton, captain, Blowhards, Dynamite Bowling League, Prohibition, so far forgot himself as to roll a 334 set and thereby enabled his team to take the odd game from the Hiandrys.

"The economy act passed by the last session of Congress, and which became law June 30, 1932, contains many injustices, inequalities and contradictions," says M. T. Finnan, secretary, National Association of Letter Carriers. "The Comptroller General of the United States has rendered some 250 decisions involving constructions on the act, which contains a provision whereby city and village letter carriers are given one month's furlough without pay, which is equivalent to a reduction of 8 1-3 per cent of their annual salaries. The law suspends annual leave with pay for city and village letter carriers during the current fiscal year, prohibits automatic promotions, provides that no vacancies are to be filled except upon written authorization of the President and directs that after July 1, 1932, employes who have reached the automatic retiring age shall be separated from the service. The pay for night work is reduced one-half, and no higher rate of compensation for overtime, for work on Sundays and holidays, is allowed. Other provisions in the law impair the working conditions of many of the employes."

Federal Employe Unionists Baseball Team, representing the D. C. locals of the N. F. F. E., who won a trophy in the Departmental League last summer, seek an experienced manager. Elmer Starke, 1932 pilot, has resigned, due to pressure of business.

Hundreds of Federal employes who have depended upon Sam Redfern, American Railway Express Travel Bureau, for vacation and travel advice, learn with pleasure that Sam is recovering rapidly from a recent severe illness. It also is reported that the Kaffee Klatch, a late afternoon institution of the National Press Club, has once more regained the appetite that had absented itself with the beloved Sam.

Miss Lena G. Parks and Mrs. Catherine Bentley presented a dramatic sketch Tuesday night titled "Fleurette and Company," at War Department Union, No. 261, N. F. F. E., attended by 100 members from fourteen bureaus and offices.

Ten teams of Federal clerks have started the Departmental Basket Ball League season, but those holding franchises in the older Government League are still trying to effect perfect organization for their second campaign. Both loops were started last year and enjoyed zestful seasons, the Central Y. M. C. A. sponsoring the Departmental and the National Federation of Federal Employes, through the Federal News, getting the Government loop off to a successful start.

Another Federal Bridge League has started. William S. Kinney, secretary-treasurer of Local No. 261, N. F. F. E., says the Quartermaster's Corps Contract Bridge Club is the second organization of its type to get under way in the District of Columbia this winter. The first was the Federal Bridge League, teams from all over the Government. Three teams are tied for leadership—Personnel, Erasures and Standardization having won three matches. The standings:

Team.	W.	L.	Pct.
Personnel	3	0	1.000
Erasures	3	0	1.000
Standardization	3	0	1.000

Lake Superior Waves Pound Stranded Boat

Munising, Mich., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The grounded steamer Georgian tonight was undergoing a severe pounding by waves churned up by a 50-mile-an-hour wind on Lake Superior.

The boat was abandoned by the crew again last night. It was not possible today to get closer than a mile to the boat, which appeared to have been driven about 400 feet farther inland by the storm.

12 PAVING PROJECTS AND BRIDGE PLANNED

1934 Budget Estimates Also Provide for Widening of Two Thoroughfares.

A dozen streets in three sections of the city are slated for surfacing, two main thoroughfares would be widened, and Calvert Street Bridge replaced by a modern structure under 1934 budget estimates made public yesterday.

Paving of twelve streets in southeast, northeast and northwest Washington, widening of Thirteenth street to 70 feet from Massachusetts avenue to Logan Circle, and general highway repairs would be financed by an appropriation of $2,321,350 from the gasoline tax, an increase of $457,650 over current appropriations.

Total estimates for streets were placed at $3,912,390, a decrease of $188,730 under the current allotment.

The budget calls for widening of Constitution avenue to 73 feet between North Capitol and First streets northwest, and for widening of the same thoroughfare to 80 feet between First and Second streets and between Pennsylvania avenue and Sixth street northwest.

Replacement of Bridge.

The latter project will be financed partly by a $82,100 District appropriation, and partly by the transfer of $55,200 allotted to the Arlington Memorial Bridge in the independent office budget.

The estimate of $625,000 for replacement of old Calvert street bridge over Rock Creek Park, follows appropriation of $40,000 last session for preparation of plans for the construction.

The budget items provide that any street car lines running over the bridge must construct their own underground trolley system and bear the cost of surfacing and resurfacing the space between the tracks and 2 feet outside.

Owners to Be Assessed.

The budget contains a $150,000 estimate for completion of Benning bridge over Anacostia River, construction of which already has begun with the current $300,000 appropriation.

In the provision for widening Thirteenth street northwest, it was stipulated that 40 per cent of the $75,000 cost be levied against the owners of abutting property.

List of Streets Involved.

The following streets are included in paving and repaving projects to be financed by the tax:

Southeast—First street, N street to O street; O street, First street to Second street; Second street, N street to O street.

Northeast—Benning road, Culvert to Kenilworth avenue.

Northwest—Michigan avenue, North Capitol street to Columbia road; Park place, Hobart place to approximately 200 feet north of Columbia road; Hobart place, Fifth street to Michigan avenue and Fifth street, Harvard street to Hobart place; Fourteenth street, Juniper street to Kalmia road; Reservoir road, Foxall road to Conduit road; Thirty-first street, Chesapeake and Ohio Canal to K street and South street, Thirty-first street to Wisconsin avenue; Conduit road, Reservoir road to District Line.

2 HOUSE COMMITTEES PLEDGE CAPITAL ITS SHARE IN BEER

the city council or the State Legislature of the District and we must provide for it. How should we handle it here?"

"I should let them sell it any place they wanted to sell it," replied Mr. O'Connor.

"Do you mean to let them sell it in saloons?"

Will Avoid Saloons.

Later he explained that he believed sale of beer should be permitted in groceries, chain stores, drug stores, restaurants and hotels, and most any other place "so long as its sale was not restricted to a particular group." It was the restriction of its sale to saloons in the old days which was responsible for much of the trouble, he said.

Other witnesses told the committee that legalization of 4 per cent beer, taxed at $5 a barrel of 31 gallons would net the Government $330,945,000 revenue a year; provide employment for 300,000 persons, and prompt investment of something like $360,000,000 in improvement of breweries throughout the country. Only witnesses favoring modification of the Volstead law were heard yesterday. The same side will be heard today when the committee resumes its open hearings in its room in the House Office Building this morning.

Representative James W. Collier (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman, has limited the hearings to six days, the last two of which have been set aside for hearing representatives of the Antisaloon League, the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, and other prohibition organizations.

Mitchell Spurs Action.

Attorney General William Mitchell took a hand in the fight. In his annual report to Congress he urged that whatever is done about modifying the Volstead law or repealing the eighteenth amendment should be done quickly. Nothing could be more detrimental to respect for law, he urged, than to leave the substantive law as it is but to disregard it through failure to enforce it.

Prohibition Administrator Amos W. Woodcock, in his annual report, said that the Prohibition Enforcement Bureau was going to concentrate on commercial rather than private violators of the liquor law. He has asked for the same amount for enforcement next year as he was given for this year.

Senate Democrats in a party conference listed repeal and modification measures as among those which should be voted on at this session of Congress. Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, party leader, said that repeal and modification measures should first be sent to the judiciary committee for a report on their constitutionality and then sent to the finance committee, which would consider the modification measure from the tax aspect.

Meanwhile, despite the fanfare which attended the launching of the ways and means committee hearings and other moves, reports circulated about the Capitol that the President would not sign any beer bill which the wets would accept as adequate.

In his report Attorney General Mitchell did not indicate his own preference, but contented himself with the statement that if there is to be a change the change should be made quickly.

The ways and means committee had before it a refusal of Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills to appear before it on the beer and wine bill. The Treasury had nothing to recommend on the subject, the committee was informed, and no witnesses would be sent before the committee by the department, it was said.

Levi Cooke, Washington lawyer, representing the United States Brewers Association, launched the attack of the wets on the Volstead law before the ways and means committee, and R. J. Huber, of St. Louis, also representing the brewers association, was an able second.

Mr. Cooke took 1914 figures as the basis for his estimation of the amount of revenue which would be derived from a $5 a barrel tax on legal beer of 4 per cent alcoholic content. The present tax is $6 a barrel. On the basis of 1914 consumption, he said, legalized 4 per cent beer, which would be a well-balanced beer, would yield the Federal Treasury $330,945,000 in revenue. He warned against making the tax so high that the workingman couldn't afford to buy a bottle of beer. That would defeat the revenue purpose, he said.

Small 5-Cent Glass.

Representative Bacharach (Republican), of New Jersey, asked whether the proposed $5 Federal tax would permit a 5-cent glass of beer. The 5-cent glass of beer under such a tax would be pretty small, Mr. Huber agreed. He said that the $5 a barrel tax was a reasonable one if States and municipalities did not add further imposts.

U. S. Gets $1,000,000 In Gold From Paris

Yellow Tide Also Brings $5,000,000 From England.

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The incoming tide of gold metal to American shores today brought a shipment of approximately $1,000,000 from France.

This is the largest shipment of yellow metal from France since May of 1931. During the past year France has taken a large volume of gold from this country, but with recent weakness of the French franc against the American dollar, foreign exchange quarters are now inclined to predict a return flow of substantial proportions.

The same steamer also brought 155 boxes, or approximately $5,000,000, in gold from England. The S. S. President Polk brought $525,000 in gold from India, consigned to the National City Bank, and the S. S. Scythia $250,000 from England, consigned to the French-American Banking Corporation. Some of the movement of metal from England was understood to have been for the account of continental European central banks, possibly the Bank of France.

Chicagoan, 17, Risks Chair In Murder Plea of Guilty

Varecha, Second Youth in Week in Slaying Trial, Turns Serious.

Chicago, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Risking the death penalty demanded by the prosecution, 17-year-old James Ignatius Varecha placed himself at the mercy of the court today with a plea of guilty to murder, robbery with a gun and assault to kill.

He was the second boy in his teens to face Chief Justice John Prystalski as a confessed killer within a week.

Neatly groomed, spruced up for today's court appearance, Varecha was no longer the boastful young criminal who shrugged his shoulders as he admitted his career of murder and rape and bragged that he couldn't be sentenced to death, for he was a fugitive from a State hospital.

Politely he answered the question of the court:

"Varecha, have you been made any promises by the State in return for your confession and your guilty pleas?"

"No," he said.

Then he formally changed his earlier pleas of not guilty to guilty of the murder of Frank Jordan in a holdup, the wounding of another and robbery of a third. Because the girl he had confessed assaulting was unable to testify before the grand jury, prosecution on that charge was in abeyance.

Death, life imprisonment, fourteen years or one to fourteen years in prison were the possible penalties Judge Prystalski could impose. Evidence will be heard Monday.

Varecha's defenders said they would urge leniency on the ground that the defendant was mentally ill and irresponsible for the crime, since he was under commitment to a State institution. An alienist has found the boy legally sane, but "a child of ungovernable temper, with a passion for deadly weapons." The State insisted that despite the pleas of guilt, execution in the electric chair would be demanded.

Only Monday another boy, Charles Bertrand Arnold, jr., 16, went before Judge Prystalski to be sentenced to one to fourteen years in the State Reformatory for killing his stepgrandmother. Because of the evidence given in mitigation, Judge Prystalski ignored the murder count and termed the deed manslaughter, fixing the minimum sentence.

PAYNE AGAIN NAMED HEAD OF RED CROSS

Al Smith, Gov. Ritchie and Other Notables Chosen Incorporators.

Several new national personages became incorporators of the American Red Cross yesterday as Judge John Barton Payne was elected chairman for his twelfth year's service in that post.

Incorporators elected to fill vacancies caused by death were former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, New York; Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, of Washington; Mrs. Frederick W. Upham, of Chicago; Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, New York; Gurney E. Newlin, Los Angeles; Senator James Couzens, Michigan, and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland.

Judge Payne's report of relief work of the organization during the year was commended to the gathering by Chief Justice Hughes, presiding. Distribution of 6,524,000 barrels of Federal flour, 50,147,000 yards of cotton cloth and 114,000,000 ready-made garments during 95 disasters, drouth conditions and as unemployment aid measures was reported.

Leaders Congratulated.

Miss Mabel T. Boardman, of Washington, and Mrs. Henry R. Rhea, of Pittsburgh, were reelected members of the central committee for three-year terms. William D. Hoover, of Washington, was elected a member of the board of trustees of the endowment fund to fill a vacancy, and Howard W. Fenton, of Chicago; Harry G. Meem and Corcoran Thom, of Washington, were elected trustees for four-year terms.

Chief Justice Hughes congratulated Judge Payne, the executive officers and staff of the relief organization "for this remarkable report of achievements."

"The Red Cross," he continued, "stands as an exemplar for doing this kind of work with the greatest fidelity and effectiveness."

Volunteer Group to Meet.

The annual meeting of the national committee on volunteer service of the American Red Cross will begin today at the national headquarters building here, with Miss Boardman presiding.

Among prominent members who have signified their intention of attending the committee's sessions, which continue through tomorrow, are Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Mrs. William Howard Taft, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, all of this city. Prominent women from other cities also are expected to attend.

Discussion at this morning's session, beginning at 10 o'clock, will be on the production program of the Red Cross and exchange of information on how chapters are handling the making of millions of garments for the needy from the 500,000 bales of Farm Board cotton being distributed by the Red Cross.

Witness Defends Will Made by Old Employe

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Barney Golub, chief buyer for the late Winfield A. Foreman, wealthy clothing manufacturer of Chicago and Los Angeles, testified in surrogate's court today that Foreman was mentally sound and free from duress when he executed his last will August 25, 1930.

Foreman's widow, Florence Jane Foreman, former actress, who was bequeathed only a $50,000 trust fund in the will, sued to have the document set aside on the ground that Foreman was mentally incapable of drawing a will and was subject to fraud and undue influence.

Adams Addresses Rotary Luncheon

Secretary Says Benefits Derived From Navy Far Outweigh Cost.

The United States Navy was compared to great business organizations in an address yesterday by Secretary of the Navy Adams before the Washington Rotary Club at its luncheon meeting at the Willard Hotel.

No business body is better run, declared Secretary Adams, adding that the benefits derived from the Navy far outweigh its cost. He said the naval expenditures are only about one half of 1 per cent of the national income.

A number of high naval and marine officers attended the luncheon. Arthur C. Christie presided.

LONG ILLNESS FATAL TO THORNTON CARUSI

Georgetown U. Graduate, 89, Was Former Lawyer and Realty Dealer.

When the city's patriarchs gather to tell of their youthful escapades in the then rural sections, one of the best beloved of their number will be absent.

Thornton Carusi, 89, graduate of Georgetown University Law School in '72, having come to Washington when 7 years old, died yesterday among his friends of childhood at the John Dixon Home, 5000 Fourteenth street northwest, early yesterday.

Failing in health for the last several years, he had genially warned his friends that the end was near. His friends gathered and he bade them forewell.

Mr. Carusi was born in Baltimore, and when his family moved to Washington he attended local schools. Graduating from law school, he engaged in the practice of law and real estate. He was also a reporter on local newspapers for a short period.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow from the Walter Reed Chapel. Burial will be in the Congressional Cemetery.

He is survived by a son, Dudley Carusi, of Chicago, and several grandchildren.

MRS. MARY SPARKS DIES.

Wife of Treasury Employe Suffered Fall Down Stairs.

Mrs. Mary E. Sparks, 60, of 1467 Irving street northwest, wife of Joseph B. Sparks, employed at the auditor's office at the Treasury Department, died yesterday in Emergency Hospital from head injuries she suffered when she fell down a flight of stairs in the home of her daughter, Mrs. David Mulquin, 2524 Seventeenth street northwest, Saturday night.

The sister of the late Capt. Robert E. Day, U.S.A., Mrs. Sparks is survived by her husband, three daughters, Mrs. Mulquin, Clarabelle Sparks and Emma Joe Sparks, and a sister, Mrs. Emma A. Martin, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at Hines' funeral parlor at 2 p. m. tomorrow, Dr. John E. Briggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

RITES FOR S. W. CAW.

Retired Policeman Will Be Buried in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow for Sylvester W. Caw, 64, retired policeman, who died Wednesday night at his home, 3602 Eleventh street northwest, after a brief illness.

Caw, who joined the police force after service in the Army, retired last June. He patrolled a beat in the vicinity of Ninth street and New York avenue northwest, and also served on the mounted force.

He is survived by two daughters, Miss Gladys Caw and Mrs. Ralph W. Van Fossen, of Kensington, Md., and a son, Joseph W., of the police bureau of identification. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

FARLEY WOULD PAY PARTY DEBT QUICKLY

(Associated Press.)

Formulation of a program to wipe out the Democratic party's deficit of about $750,000 before President-elect Roosevelt takes office March 4 was proposed yesterday by James A. Farley, chairman of the national committee.

Farley made his proposal in an interview with newspapermen at the Capitol, where he greeted Democratic members of Congress.

The Democrats took over the President's room in the Senate wing to meet with the national chairman and confer about party policies.

Farley said he would meet with party leaders in New York today in an effort to formulate a program for wiping out the deficit. Farley stopped over en route to New York from Warm Springs.

Gov. Woodring of Kansas, a recent caller at Warm Springs, also visited the Capitol.

Chairman Farley called hurriedly on Speaker Garner.

"I only had time to say hello," he said, as he rushed from Garner's office. "I've got to catch a train to New York." The train he had to catch was the one bearing Gov. Roosevelt back to Albany.

$5,754,352 DISTRICT BUDGET CUT ASKED cope with the relief situation, totaling in the neighborhood of $1,500,000.

The 1934 budget contains no estimate for the Municipal Center, nor any provision for the Georgetown Branch Public Library. Only small appropriations for work at the two sites were contained in the current supply bill.

The restraint placed by Congress on enforcement of the Public Utilities Commission's meter order, under which no public funds can be used to require taxicabs to install meters, was retained in the 1934 budget.

Street and Road Plans.

Only twelve streets would be surfaced under the street and highway estimates, which provide in addition for the widening to 70 feet of Thirteenth street from Massachusetts avenue to Logan Circle and for the widening of Constitution avenue between North Capitol and Second streets and between Pennsylvania avenue and Sixth street northwest.

The total amount allotted for highway improvement was $3,723,660, a reduction of $188,730 under current appropriations. For highway repair, $840,000 was set aside in the estimates.

Police and Fire Departments came in for their share of the reduction, the former receiving $3,188,850, a cut of $275,474 under current appropriations, and the Fire Department getting $2,177,370, a slash of $201,750. An increase of $100,000, however, was provided in the police and firemen's relief fund, bringing that item to $900,000.

Other Agencies Reduced.

Other agencies sharply feeling the ax include the Water Department, whose $2,091,330 estimate is $360,280 below the last appropriations; and the sewer department, where the $1,252,900 estimate represented a cut of $339,720.

The $1,015,090 estimate for public buildings and parks, and the $1,036,800 estimated for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, represent reductions of $78,295 and $10,385, respectively.

The $183,620 allotted to public playgrounds showed a cut of $12,200 under this year's allotment.

Women Wets Approve Immediate Beer Action

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Immediate modification of the Volstead act to permit manufacture and sale of beer under State control was indorsed today for "economic and humanitarian reason" by the executive committee of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman, explained after a closed session that the resolution, the first stand for modification taken by the organization, does not need ratification by the annual convention at Washington, April 5 and 6. She said the executive committee has authority to act for the organization in "emergencies."

Dutch Fear Philippine Evacuation.

Honolulu, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Jules de Wael Mayer, an official of the American Cynamid Co. of New York, said here today that Dutch planters, bankers and business men of the Dutch East Indies believed if the United States should grant Philippine independence it would be the first step toward the white man's complete evacuation of the Far East.

REICHSTAG IS SCENE OF VIOLENT RIOTING

Down With Von Hindenburg Is Cry as Reds and Nazis Fly at Each Other.

Berlin, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Shouts of "Down with Von Hindenburg," followed by a Nazi-Communist battle in which spittoons, telephone receivers, tables and desks were used as weapons, marked the second session of the new Reichstag today.

The belligerent demonstration came as the legislature was considering a bill which would establish the right of succession in the event of the death or resignation of Paul von Hindenburg, the 82-year-old president of the Reich.

Despite the turmoil, which required a suspension of the session for more than an hour, the members gave first and second reading to a National Socialist bill amending the constitution so that the chief justice of the supreme court would succeed to the presidency in the event of the death of the incumbent. Final approval on Friday was regarded as certain.

Regarded as Sacrosanct.

Until recently the venerable field marshal who heads the Reich was considered virtually sacrosanct by members of the Reichstag. But within the last few months that attitude has changed.

The first inroad came August 30 when Clara Zetkin, 75-year-old Communist serving as temporary speaker of the old Reichstag because she was the oldest member, demanded the impeachment of Von Hindenburg.

The temporary speaker who presided yesterday at the opening session of this Reichstag—he was Gen. Karl Litzman, 82-year-old National Socialist—followed suit by intimating that history might curse the president for opening the way to bolshevism.

Signal for Disorders.

At today's session the entire Communist delegation shouted "Down with Von Hindenburg!" This manifestation led to altercations in the visitors' gallery, where Deputy Quandt, a Communist member of the Mecklenburg Diet, made derogatory remarks about the president and was jumped upon by uniformed Nazis.

This was a signal for the Communists and Nazi followers of Adolf Hitler in the Reichstag itself to leave the plenary hall for the purpose of helping their respective sympathizers in the gallery.

But they never reached the gallery, for they collided in a cloakroom. About 50 Reichstag members were involved in the fight that developed there.

Chandelier Shattered.

Somebody hurled a spittoon. After that almost everything movable was used. A Nazi was hit on the head with a telephone receiver. Two Communists were targets for inkwells. Tables were lifted high by the sturdy Nazis and flung upon their Communist enemies. A glass chandelier was struck by the warring factions and glass splinters showered the combatants.

After the Reichstag session was resumed trouble threatened again when Herr Torgler, a Communist, protested against the presence of uniformed Nazis, whom he called the soldiers of Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher. Finally order was restored and debate on the interim president measure was resumed.

Nationalist Rejects Offer.

The chancellor, who has been provided with a decree of dissolution with which he will be able to stave off any attempt by the Reichstag to vote nonconfidence in him, emerged from the session without being required to resort to any such drastic measure. The legislature rejected a Communist demand that he be summoned to appear before the members. The next meeting will be held Friday.

Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, leader of the Nationalist party, refused to serve as one of the twelve Reichstag secretaries, a post to which he was elected. Seven of the secretaries are Nazis. Dr. Hugenberg was annoyed because his party failed to obtain any vice presidential post.

"I am afraid I could not do justice to the office in such company," the Nationalist leader said in a note to Speaker Hermann Wilhelm Goering. The appointment automatically went to a Social-Democrat.

Foes of War Debt Cut Firm; Hoover Message Awaited

(Associated Press.)

Reiterated warnings that Congress will not agree to a reduction of war debts—particularly those of France—were heard on Capitol Hill yesterday as House and Senate awaited the promised message from President Hoover on the subject.

The debate came as Secretary Stimson virtually completed an answer to the last British request for an extension of the moratorium. There were indications that he planned also to reply to the last French note. Previously it had been said at the State Department that no answer would be made to either.

The day also saw the receipt of a second note from Belgium appealing for debt relief and extension of the moratorium.

The House debate emphasized congressional opposition to the re-creation of the debt funding commission, which President Hoover has said he would recommend.

Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, a staunch administration supporter and a member of the House ways and means committee, which would handle any debt legislation, said on the floor:

"I, for one, am ready to go to the mat on the settlements as made by the debt funding commission."

He added that these settlements "were both fair and generous to the various nations."

"There has never been any intention on the part of Congress, other than the moratorium of last year, that there should be any change or modification of these agreements," he asserted that Congress alone has the right to change the agreements.

Representative Fish (Republican), New York, argued: "It is time that the Amreican people knew that all of this debt France is asking to cancel or reduce was loaned after the armistice."

The New Yorker asserted, however, that in his opinion Congress, by its declaration against further changes when the moratorium was approved last year, had forestalled consideration of the problem through diplomatic channels.

If Congress should authorize reopening the question, he said that authorization should limit any reduction to a like reduction in the amount foreign nations are spending on arms. Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, also harked back to the moratorium with the statement that "President Hoover didn't have the constitutional authority to act" without the consent of Congress or to make even a preliminary agreement.

"The executive branch has no authority to perform the functions of this House," Blanton said. "I would like to see it made a penitentiary offense for anybody to lend another dollar to France."

CUT IN LAND FORCES IS SOUGHT IN GENEVA

U. S. Arms Envoys Also Will Seek Curb on Tanks and Planes.

Geneva, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The American representatives at the five-powered disarmament negotiations disclosed today some of the "concrete results" which they are striving to have incorporated in a proposed temporary protocol.

The aims of the American delegation include:

1. Reductions in the size of land forces.
2. Definition of the term "horde defense troops" as apart from colonial troops.
3. Abolition of movable artillery larger than 155 centimeters in caliber.
4. Limitatilen of the tonnage and number of tanks.
5. Limitation of the number and size of military airplanes and the fullest publicity regarding their size and type.
6. Complete abolition of chemical warfare.
7. A naval treaty between France and Italy.
8. Recognition of the principle of state supervision of the manufacture of arms and the trade in arms.

Ban on Aerial Bombing.

The Americans had hoped to obtain the abolition of aerial bombing, but they admitted it was impossible to realize it at this time.

It was stressed by the Americans that their proposals did not exclude regional agreements which might later be incorporated in a general disarmament treaty. They asserted that there was no separate American plan, but merely a crystallization of the ideas of all the participants in the disarmament conference.

The representatives of the five powers—the United States, Britain, France, Germany and Italy—met for only an hour today as many of them wished to attend the session of the League of Nations Assembly at which the Manchurian question was being considered. Tonight there was a disarmament dinner at which Baron Konstantin von Neurath, the German foreign minister, and Norman H. Davis, the American delegate, were able to talk over the entire disarmament situation.

Reich Equality Problem.

At American headquarters it was said the Germans, who have been seeking for arms equality, would ask for some sort of commitment, some concrete evidence that the first step toward disarmament by other powers has been taken before considering their future course.

The informal conversations looking to Germany's future participation in the disarmament conference were postponed from this afternoon until Thursday, because of a speech Baron von Neurath, Germany's minister and delegate here, unexpectedly delivered late today.

Diplomatic Reception Set Day Debts Are Due

Diplomatic circles are wondering if there was anything more than coincidence in the selection of December 15 as the date for the diplomatic reception at the White House. On that date the war debt payments are due from France, Great Britain, Belgium, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Roumania, Greece, Jugoslavia, Hungary and Latvia.

His excellency Paul Claudel, Ambassador of the Third French Republic, will preside at the diplomatic head of the line in his new office as dean of the Corps of Diplomats. There seems to be some doubt at the moment that France will have acquitted her debt payments by the time Ambassador Claudel is introducing the members of his staff to the President and Mrs. Hoover.

Warren Delano Robbins, the head of the protocole at the Executive Mansion, declines to see anything significant in the choice of that date. "It was just routine," he declares.

RIDING INSTRUCTOR GUILTY AS SEDUCER

Homewood May Get 5 Years and Fine of $1,000; Is Surprised at Verdict.

New City, N. Y., Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Twelve men, eleven of them married, pondered the amours of Sidney Homewood and Charlotte Ariel Gibson for something less than an hour this afternoon and decided that the man must pay.

It found Homewood, dashing young riding master, had been the aggressor in a twentieth century automobile romance and was guilty of seduction. The penalty is a maximum of five years in jail and $1,000 fine.

While Homewood's penalty was meted out by the jury, Charlotte has been paying hers during the preceding days.

Expecting motherhood to come to her in less than a month, she had been ushered before a courtroom by her father and there made to tell down to the last embarrassing detail the story of her intimacies with Homewood. For a day and a half she had told of her automobile rides with Homewood, of his caresses and his alleged pleadings that she yield to him. She refused, she stoutly maintained until he accused her of being "an iceberg."

He denied he had promised to marry her.

For more than a week the jury had listened to this story. Only occasionally the story was diverting—as when it was brought out that Homewood's Christmas gift to Miss Gibson was a box of carrots for her horse.

Charlotte was not in court to hear the verdict today. Homewood gripped the arms of his chair, half rose, and then dropped back as the foreman pronounced him guilty.

The jurors voted on just two points. First they unanimously decided that Charlotte was chaste before March 1, 1932, the night of her first automobile ride with Homewood. Then they decided her statement that Homewood had promised to marry her was true.

"A girl of her breeding and environment," said Philip Kopler, a juryman, once secretary to former Mayor Gaynor of New York, "would not have yielded without his making love to her and promising that he would marry her."

Miss Gibson is the daughter of an elite family of Tappan, raised in a sheltered manner, educated at private schools, with European tours and lessons in music and art as her background.

Homewood had been her riding master.

U. S. MAY BE ASKED TO AID ORIENT PEACE

Participation of America and Russia in Accord Work, Geneva Plea.

Geneva, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Long discussion by representatives of both small and great powers at the League of Nations special assembly resulted today in a definite proposal that the next effort to settle the Sino-Japanese conflict take the form of a commission of conciliation in which the United States and Russia would participate.

Spokesmen for Britain, France, Italy and Germany expressed the opinion that there still were grounds for hope that conciliation would prove effective. The league must lend its good offices and authority in behalf of a friendly settlement, they said, before considering the coercive measures provided in the league covenant.

Three-Point Resolution.

The suggestion that the United States and Russia take part in the attempt to achieve peace was set forth in a proposed resolution presented to the assembly by the delegations from Spain, the Irish Free State and Czechoslovakia. This resolution had three points:

1. That Japan's militant activity in Manchuria since September 18, 1931 (the date of the attack on Mukden), was not legitimate self-defense.
2. That the establishment of the state of Manchukuo, now administering Manchuria, was not a spontaneous movement, and the present situation in Manchuria is not consistent with existing treaties.
3. That the United States and Russia should be invited to participate in a body appointed to attempt a conciliatory settlement.

Confession in Break From Prison Is Bared

Kansas City, Kans., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Hugh Lartmer, Department of Justice investigator, testified today at the Federal court trial of Harold Fontaine that the former convict had confessed to him the smuggling of firearms and explosives into the Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary to make possible the escape of seven convicts.

Three of the convicts lost their lives, four others, who are awaiting trial, were recaptured and T. B. White, former warden of the prison, was wounded after being taken along as a hostage. The break for liberty occurred December 11, 1931.

LAWS ON PATENTS ARE TERMED VITAL

Chemical Engineers Meeting Hears Karl Fenning on Property Rights.

"Modern business, built upon the monopoly granted by patents, can only avoid expensive litigation by conforming to the clear rules of law relating to this essential and intellectual property," Karl Fenning, former assistant commissioner of patents, told members of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers yesterday.

Mr. Fenning was one of several speakers at a symposium on patents held at the Patent Office yesterday in connection with the twenty-fifth anniversary meeting of the institute.

Others who presented their views on the subject of patents and the rights to intellectual property were R. S. McBride, chairman of the institute's patent committee; Dr. Edward A. Weidlein, director of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research; L. W. Wallace, of the American Engineering Council; Dr. James A. Withrow, of Ohio State University, and Thomas Griswold, of the Dow Chemical Co.

A brief address of greeting was given by Commissioner of Patents Thomas E. Robertson. The members were shown around the Patent Office.

The institute's meeting opened yesterday morning at the Washington Hotel with a general session for the presentation of technical papers. Dr. John Van Nostrand Dorr, of New York, presided and officially opened the meeting.

600 AT MARYLAND PRISON ON STRIKE

Guard Is Doubled After Men Register Protests Over Wage Reductions.

Baltimore, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The guard force at the Maryland State Penitentiary was doubled late today, with the day guards remaining on duty after the night guards had come to work. They were armed with revolvers, sawed-off shotguns and gas grenades.

A five-day strike of 600 inmates against doing their prison work was given by Stuart S. Janney, State director of welfare, as the reason for the doubling of the guard. Previous reports were that the strikers, protesting against reduction in wages, had not been causing any trouble.

"It is obvious," said Janney in a statement, "that a rebellious attitude, even of this type, can not be allowed to continue indefinitely and we all * * * feel that the present situation must now be put to an end.

"Patience is right only until it approaches weakness. Then the prisoners may begin to run the institution."

Forty-five prisoners, classed by prison officials as ringleaders among the strikers, were segregated under heavy guard tonight in an attempt to break the strike.

Penitentiary officials said the removal of the men from their own cells to others in the west wing of the institution was accomplished without the slightest trouble, although during the transfer, they said, knives were found in the quarters of six of the strike leaders.

three or four days in an effort to arrive at some formula which will reconcile the demands of Congress with the fiduciary strength of Great Britain. He has been relying mainly on his assistant, Allen T. Klots, in the preparation of the notes and Assistant Secretary of State Harvey H. Bundy and the economist of the department, Dr. Herbert Feis have been in frequent consultation.

In the midst of the debt exploration in the Department of State, Belgian Ambassador Paul May presented the second Belgian note requesting essentially the same debt treatment as had been embodied in the French note. The Belgian government used the same arguments that had been brought forward by the Quai d'Orsay in formulating the French appeal for postponement and reconsideration of the next fortnight's payment.

The experts of the Department of State have been focusing their explorations chiefly around the paradoxical economic problem involved in the query: "How to pay debts without paying them." The attitude of the American Congress has definitely shown that no other alternative less than actual payment of the debt will be acceptable.

The President, in his message to Congress, announced that he would "recommend to the Congress methods to overcome temporary exchange difficulties in connection with this payment from nations where it may be necessary."

There have been some rifts in the war debt clouds through which have been discerned possibility of payment in national currency with guarantee for the maintenance of the exchange standard. This formula has received the support of Speaker Garner, who stated, after his call at the White House during the Roosevelt visit here, that such an intermediate proposal might be acceptable to Congress.

However, as the researches of Dr. Feis and Mr. Klots progressed in the debt imbroglio, it became more and more apparent that any formula for reconciling the dollar and the pound sterling was almost impossible. Other solutions cropped up in the course of the conversations which were dismissed after thorough examination by the Secretary of State himself.

Debt Action Is Studied At Conference in Paris

Paris, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Government officials representing the financial brains of France thrashed out the war debt question tonight at a meeting presided over by Premier Edouard Herriot. The meeting was held in preparation for tomorrow's momentous Franco-British conference, which was arranged as a result of the refusal of the United States to postpone the December debt installments.

Outstanding among the men who conferred with the premier was former Premier Pierre Laval, who went to Washington last year, when he was the head of the government, and talked debts with President Hoover.

At the conclusion of the Hoover-Laval meeting, a joint communique was issued which many French officials interpreted as meaning that once the European governments settled the question of reparations they might negotiate new debt accords with the United States. The text of this communique, it was understood, was particularly studied at tonight's meeting.

Beaverbrook to Demand Default in Debt Payment

London, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express tomorrow will demand that Great Britain default on her December war debt payment.

In an editorial carrying the caption "no payment!" in heavy black type, the newspaper will urge the Nation to take a resolute stand on the question of the debt payment.

"Britain has no means of paying," the editorial will say, "either in sterling, dollars, goods or gold. The British people have reached the utmost limit and can pay no more. Why does the Government not say it?

Shares Loss Pact Proposed by Court

Judge Suggests Private Accord in Managers' Securities Suit.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Federal Judge John P. Nields today ruled that if Harry J. Mallery, of Flint, Mich., and the Managers Securities Co. can agree as to how much Mr. Mallery is entitled from the company on alleged stock losses, a formal decree may be submitted, but that if they fail to agree, the case would be referred to a master. Mr. Mallery asks the return of approximately 1,200 shares of General Motors stock.

A former official of the Buick Motor Co., Mr. Mallery stated in his complaint he was the owner of 200 shares of class "A" and 200 shares of class "B" stock of the General Motors Corporation. The corporation, he explained, had an option with its officials that when any one of them retired from its employ, he must surrender his class "A" holdings to the Managers Securities Co.

Mr. Mallery states in his complaint that he surrendered his class "A" shares in 1930, but that the market price had dropped considerably at that time from the date he received the shares, and that therefore he suffered a loss. He asks remuneration for this loss.

ANGLO-RUSSIAN ROW MAY AID U. S. TRADE

tion of the Anglo-Persian Oil Co.'s concession in Persia, with the Persian legation indignantly denying any Russian connection with the dispute.

There was no mention of the Anglo-Persian affair in the British demand for an apology from Russia, or in the newspaper article under criticism.

The article appeared in Isvestia on November 13 and charged the British foreign office had instructed its agents to furnish documents, real or bogus, establishing a connection between the Soviet government and the Communist International.

Sir John Simon informed the Soviet ambassador in London that unless Russia apologized for the accusation and took steps to prevent further statements of a similar nature, Britain would not enter negotiations for a new trade agreement with Russia.

Announcement of the demand was made in the House of Commons by Anthony Eden, foreign undersecretary. Sir John further informed the ambassador, Eden said, that he expects a clear statement of the Soviet government's future policy toward Great Britain.

Meanwhile it was learned that the Persian government's note, replying to Great Britain's demand for an explanation of the oil concession cancellation, accuses the oil company, which is controlled by the British government, of having been grossly unfair to Persia.

The note denies the inference drawn by a London newspaper yesterday in publishing a photograph of the Soviet ambassador leaving the Persian Legation in London. The Russian ambassador's visit was merely a courtesy call, the Persian note declared.

Persia's note, explaining her reason for cancelling the valuable concession, was understood to declare that:

1. The concession does not protect the interests of the Persian government.
2. Persia can not be bound by the provisions of the concession since it was granted prior to the establishment of a constitutional regime in Persia.
3. The Anglo-Persian Co. not only took no practical steps to protect the interests of Persia, "but the more the company's expansion increased, the more Persian interests were endangered."

The note expresses "surprise" at the attitude of the British government "and the wording of the British government's letter."

(United Press.)

A Persian army officer, Capt. Saga Cheypani, now is in this country inspecting and purchasing airplane motors and machine guns, the Persian Legation said last night.

Cheypani, who has been in the United States about three weeks, has spent his time in New York, Washington and Hartford, Conn., the legation said. Among the firms he is dealing with is the Pratt & Whitney Corporation, makers of airplane motors.

Adirondacks Feel Slight Earthquake

Thunderlike Rumblings in Distance Heard; Picture Projector Disrupted.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Slight earth tremors jarred the Adirondack Mountain area last night, but caused no inconvenience more serious than disrupting the sound apparatus in a motion picture theater here.

The shocks, felt shortly after 10 p. m., were general throughout the hills. They were accompanied by a sound like that of distant thunder.

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The Carnegie Institute of Washington seismological laboratory here recorded "a strong earthquake" today. Starting at 8:26:43 a. m. (Pacific time) the distance was estimated at approximately 1,500 miles, "probably in Mexico."

THE UNBALANCED BUDGET.

Balancing of the Federal budget has once more become the foremost task confronting Congress. President Hoover's budget message and Secretary Mills' annual report reveal a situation that will develop into national bankruptcy, unless it is corrected. Drastic action is essential to reduce governmental expenditures, and rigorous new taxes must be adopted.

In spite of the high taxes levied by Congress seven months ago, revenue for the current year is now estimated at only $2,624,000,000. The prospective deficit this year is placed at $1,146,000,000, exclusive of statutory debt retirement. The attempt by Congress to balance the budget last spring turns out to be a farce. Only meager economies were effected and unproductive taxes levied. A stern resolve to achieve a balanced budget in the fiscal year 1934 ought to be the spirit of this session.

The present situation can not continue, President Hoover says, "without disaster to the Federal finances." His message concludes with these words:

> I can not too strongly urge that every effort be made to limit expenditures and avoid additional obligation not only in the interest of the already heavily burdened taxpayer, but in the interest of the very integrity and the finances of the Federal Government.

Recovery can not continue, confidence can not be restored so long as the Government fails to put its finances in order. Congress has already trifled too long. Aggressive and courageous action is necessary to repair the damage that has already been done by mortgaging the future to pay for present extravagance.

Appropriations recommended by the President's budget are $830,000,000 below appropriations for the current year, although an increase of $250,000,000 in interest on the national debt, etc., makes the net proposed savings about $580,000,000. If all Mr. Hoover's proposed economies should be carried out, the budget would still be unbalanced by $307,000,000. It is not within the realm of probability that Congress can reduce expenditures to the level of receipts. A new tax program becomes imperative. It appears that the sales tax is the only measure that can meet this emergency.

President Hoover deserves a good deal of credit for judicious trimming of the 1934 budget. He would reduce the expenditures for public works, relying upon the self-liquidation projects to be financed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to relieve unemployment without cost to taxpayers. Funds for Federal-aid highways would be withheld entirely until the condition of the Treasury improves. Extensive economies would be effected in river and harbor work.

The national defense budget has been reduced by $46,000,000, but these economies would not impair the efficiency of the Army and Navy to any appreciable extent. Most of the decrease in the Army budget is in construction work. The housing program is well under way, however, and no hardship will result from this saving. Estimates for maintenance and operation, for public works and for modernization of battleships have been reduced in the Navy budget, but it includes an increase of $21,437,000 for construction of new vessels. A total of $53,380,000 is allotted to continue the work of building up the Navy to treaty strength. Under this program two heavy cruisers would be laid down within the next year; also four destroyers.

Appropriations for the Veterans' Administration, which amount to more than $1,000,000,000 in 1933, would be reduced $127,000,000 by the curtailment of allowances, benefits and treatments for veterans suffering no disability in the war. It is difficult to understand why President Hoover did not extend his recommendations along this line instead of urging another salary cut of $55,000,000 for Federal employes. Savings that might be effected by this pay reduction are a drop in the bucket as compared with the extravagant allotment for pensions and free services to able-bodied men.

On the whole, the budget message is a forceful presentation of the most critical problem Congress must meet. It will put Congress to the test. If Congress refuses to reduce expenditures, if it authorizes further extravagant appropriations not provided for in the budget, or fails to raise the necessary revenue to balance the budget, the responsibility will be squarely upon its own shoulders. Further delay in meeting the issue can only make the nation's burdens greater.

WORKING TOWARD BEER.

The first day's hearing on proposed beer legislation revealed many obstacles in the path. Brewers ask for a law authorizing 4 per cent alcohol by volume, and are willing to pay a tax of $5 a barrel. Bottled beer can be sold at 9 cents a bottle, but if sold by the glass for 5 cents "the glass would have to be pretty small." An additional tax by the States and perhaps by smaller political units is feared, and apparently there is no way to prevent imposition of this added tax.

Home-brewed beer contains 6 or 7 per cent alcohol, according to the counsel of the brewers. The beverage made in the home is cheap, high-powered, and not taxed. Will the public pay a tax, and perhaps a double tax, on feeble beer when it can roll its own?

The present brewing capacity is about 15,000,000 barrels annually, but only about two-thirds of this capacity would be needed for several years. Thus the revenue would not amount to more than $75,000,000, although witnesses for the brewers predicted a revenue of $300,945,000 a year. Eventually the country's beer needs would reach 40,000,000 barrels.

The intrusion of the wine makers complicates beer legislation. The Democratic platform favors immediate manufacture of wine as well as beer; but it might be difficult to produce wine with an alcoholic content low enough to pass muster under the eighteenth amendment.

If the hard-pressed States are to rush in and levy a tax on beer, in addition to the Federal tax, it may be expected that immediately after the new regime has been instituted there will be a demand for reduction of the Federal beer tax. The high cost of beer may become a burning issue. The first day's hearing indicates that the chances of cheap beer for the workingman are already slim. How beer can be dispensed by the glass, without restoring the saloon, is a question that must be thrashed out. Brewers are anxious to obtain legal authority to sell beer by the barrel, as consumption by the glass affords the chief market and encourages quantity production.

THE SHIPPING BOARD.

Opposition will develop in the Senate against confirmation of some of the President's recess appointments. If this opposition should be confined to political appointments, with a view to reserving for the incoming President a free hand in the selection of personnel in sympathy with his political policies, no valid objection could be raised. But if partisanship should express itself in rejection of purely administrative nonpartisan appointees the result would be injurious to the public service, and therefore an embarrassment instead of an advantage to the new administration.

Members of the United States Shipping Board are awaiting confirmation. The present board has been reduced in size for economy's sake, and is composed of experienced specialists who have served for some years to the satisfaction of the Government and the public. The board under Chairman T. V. O'Connor has dealt with many perplexing problems and is now confronted with a most difficult situation on account of decreased ocean trade, shrinkage of freight rates, increasing unemployment on the sea, and other factors of depression. The best possible administration of the American merchant marine is now required; and that is what has been obtained by selecting the present members of the Shipping Board.

The confirmation of this nonpartisan board would make certain that the merchant marine would be capably handled in accordance with law, which is all that any administration desires.

INHERITED CHARACTERISTICS.

Firmly fixed in the popular mind is the view that parents transmit acquired characteristics to their children, despite the contrary theories of most modern scientific observers. A champion of the belief in inherited characteristics has now appeared in Mr. A. F. Dufton, who bases his conclusions on 1,000 men mentioned in the Encyclopedia Britannica. He points out that many eminent men were begotten by fathers of a ripe age who transmitted to their sons some part of their acquired abilities or intelligence.

As example of this view Mr. Dufton cites Francis Bacon, whose father was 52 when he was born; John Herschel, whose father was 54; William Pitt, whose father was 51; Samuel Johnson, whose father was 53, and many others. The ripe minds of these fathers, he believes, were a strong factor in the capabilities of the sons. Though the conclusions are still tentative, Mr. Dufton believes they have laid a foundation for a definite theory.

It is probable that an equal number of eminent sons of young fathers could be found, if any one should make a business of looking for them. However, Mr. Dufton has done more than make a list of such cases. He has studied the subject from various aspects. But granted that more great men are the sons of fathers of a ripe age rather than of very young men, there still remain other influences than heredity to be considered.

Undoubtedly older men can often devote more time to their children than younger men. The older man frequently has an assured income while the younger one is under the necessity of making his way, and so has less leisure. Also, it is the younger man who seeks diversion away from home, while in later years a man stays closer to his fireside. Therefore, it is difficult to tell how much a child receives from his parent through heredity, and how much through environment.

SUGAR TARIFF "LOOPHOLES."

A decision of far-reaching importance has been handed down by the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals. The court held that sugar diluted with water is dutiable under the tariff act as sugar and not as sugar syrup. It is estimated that this decision will save the Government more than $120,000,000 per year in normal times and provide effective protection to a large agricultural industry.

Efforts to bring Cuban sugar into the United States in solution and thus escape the high duty levied by Congress to protect the American sugar industry were made soon after the 1930 tariff act was passed. Importers contended that sugar in this state should be admitted as "sugar syrups not specifically provided for" or as "articles manufactured, in whole or in part." But the collector of customs insisted on taxing such imports as sugar. If he had yielded to the contentions of the importers, a shipment of 500,000 gallons of sugar diluted in water would have paid $1,000 in duty, instead of $70,000, which is the proper charge under the sugar tariff.

Because of the timely action of Commissioner of Customs F. X. A. Eble and the Treasury Department sugar in water has not been admitted under the syrup clause. On October 4, 1930, the Treasury issued a ruling which compelled importers of this mixture to pay full duty for the sugar content. As a result the domestic industry has not been injured and the Government has not been deprived of revenue from this source.

This case is particularly interesting because it entered into the recent campaigns in the sugar-producing States. Senators were bitterly condemned for leaving a loophole in the sugar tariff. Now the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals says there is no loophole in the law. Ever since it was enacted this measure has effectively protected the domestic sugar industry and has brought large sums into the Treasury.

Gov. Roosevelt will call in experts next month to study the Federal structure. This is the first intimation that Jim Watson and Reed Smoot have become boosters of the new administration.

Here's hoping that Gov. Roosevelt will grab off for the New York State deficit the revenues which will be needed by President Roosevelt to meet the Federal deficit.

A brewer testifies that a $5 tax on $15,000,000 barrels of beer would yield a revenue of $300,000,000. Another budget that needs balancing.

A nuisance tax of 2.75 per cent on gross income of lobbies would balance the budget and restore world prosperity.

When in doubt, raise the gasoline tax and cut Federal workers' pay.

Christmas comes, but beer hesitates.

THE REAL AMERICA

From the Chicago Daily News.

Certain English and French newspapers have whipped themselves into a frenzy over America's insistence upon payment of the war debts. All the old gibes about Uncle Shylock have been revived to inflame the public against the Yankees, who are so sordid as to want their money back. The misrepresentation of the American point of view is so thorough and persuasive that the Herriot government may fall if it fulfills France's obligations by paying the United States $19,000,000 on December 15. Propaganda in the Rothermere and Beaverbrook press in England so gravely misrepresents the present fiscal and economic position of Great Britain that it injures British credit at home and abroad.

Some of the noisy fury is inspired by those who believe it conduces to profitable negotiation. Certain European foreign offices are accustomed to influencing public opinion by newspaper fanfare. But much of Europe's present passion arises from the discovery that the United States meant business when it denied any connection between the allies' war debts and German reparations. European statesmen and publicists have assumed that Americans are an easy-going people who finally would see the sweet reasonableness of Europe's proposals for cancellation, and have been confirmed in that pleasant belief by amiable assurances from American tourists and diplomats gone native.

Rarely have the few European newspaper representatives stationed in the United States left their New York and Washington offices to learn what the people of the hinterland thought about the debts or any other question. With two or three exceptions they have been busy feeding their readers stories about American crime and corruption. Yet all the while it has been clear to every one who cared to investigate that the overwhelming majority of Americans expect Europe to pay its debts.

Europe only now begins to sense the true situation. The bad feeling and the commercial hardships arising from Europe's insularism must be charged in part to the failure of the British and French press to report real American sentiment.

A Great Economist.

POST HASTE

Will the President get a vote of thanks for pointing the way to eight-tenths of the Democratic demand for a billion in economies?

Judge Wilkerson declines to be treated again like a hunger marcher by the Senate.

Considering the present source of supply and the union of wine and beer, the modification hearing should be held before a "joint" committee.

"Communists declare march a success." Then everybody's satisfied.

The beer and wine committee will really be more competent to decide about de facto and de jure intoxication before it takes all that conflicting testimony.

This country has its defects; but we're not troubled with a handful of military men getting the idea every few months that they are called upon to take possession of the Government.

We not only favor letting European nations pay in their depreciated currency, but keeping it in a glass case where the people and congressmen can see it.

Secretary Stimson is preparing a second reply to London and Paris. What language can he use this time to make them understand?

The President proposes to pry $580,000,000 net from Federal expenditures. It will take a big lever to budge it. PAUL HUDSON.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE NEW FATHER.

He's forgotten the depression, temporarily at least;
If he had a million dollars he would give the town a feast.
There's a merry little twinkle in his eyes and there's a grin
On his face that's most attractive, and the tilting of his chin
Proves he's very proud of something—very proud and very glad,
And the cause of all this strutting is he's just become a dad!

He's astounded by the splendor and perfection and the charm
Of this glorious arrival. He'll describe him—leg and arm,
Eye and ear and head and body till you'll think the man is mad,
But he isn't. This the truth is: he has just become a dad.

Yes, the mother's doing nicely, but behold the father now!
He should have a dozen medals and a crown upon his brow.
There was never such a baby, never one so good to see,
And unless they have another none so fair will ever be,
But I chuckle as I hear him, for I know I was as bad
And as boastful and as foolish when I first became a dad.

When Machines Do All the Work They Must Work for Jobless Men

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IT doesn't take much of a prophet to foresee the event of economic trends. There is a kind of natural law in economics as in other matters, and things happen as they do because they must.

Capital, for example, flows inevitably from a country that has it to a country that needs it. And no matter which country loses a war, the one that has money is the one that somehow pays for it.

Because of this natural law, and by means of it, this capitalistic America of ours is slowly but surely paving the way for some kind of communism or state ownership.

Suppose men should build a vast machine that would produce all the shoes, hats, clothing, gadgets and play pretties needed by the world. Would the millions thrown out of work reconcile themselves to starvation? They would not. They might be content to loaf, but they would eat. By some means justified by necessity they would share in the wealth produced by the machine.

Believe it or not, something of that sort is happening now.

When the era of labor-saving machines began, apologists said: "The purpose is to give mankind more leisure."

That wasn't true. The purpose was to reduce production costs and nothing more.

When machines do the work, leisure with profit is possible only for those who own the machines or handle them. The leisure of other men is joblessness.

So far, or until 1929, the machine age proved a blessing. Machines lightened labor and the building of machines made people prosperous.

But now the machines are built. America has enough to produce everything the world can use. And within the last decade Europe has built enough more to double that production.

You see the result. Machines geared to produce much more than the world can consume; nations fighting for markets; millions unable to consume because labor-saving machines have left them jobless and broke.

There are but two possible solutions: Common ownership of the machines or controlled and limited production. Capitalism is doomed when it no longer provides paying jobs for customers.

POLITICAL COMMENT

For the General Good.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The meeting of President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt set a precedent which the governors and governors-elect of a number of States have been quick to follow. Soon after the election, Gov. Emmerson of Illinois invited his elected successor, Judge Henry Horner, to Springfield to discuss budget matters and other problems and to sit in with him at the special session of the Legislature. More recently, Gov. Caulfield invited Judge Guy B. Park to be his guest at the executive mansion in Jefferson City. Still another instance of this kind is that in Indiana, where the outgoing Republican governor, Harry G. Leslie, asked Dean Paul V. McNutt, of the Indiana University School of Law, his elected Democratic successor, to the statehouse in order to go over the plan and working of Indiana's county jobless relief system. These conferences between chief executives and chief executives-elect of opposite parties deserve only praise, for they indicate a willingness to put the popular welfare above the wall of partisanship. To Mr. Hoover goes the credit for the example.

Pretty Ambitious.

Rutland Herald.

One of the sobering things that incoming Democratic statesmen hate to talk about is the extent to which they have been committed to programs of economy and more jobs, beer and thrift, more revenues and expansion, farm relief and lower taxes, tariff revision and protection of local industries, a policy of forward march and conservatism. If, in fact, all these promises could be carried out, the political millennium would be here.

Plums Take Their Place.

From now on, or until the incoming administration gets itself oriented, the game of postoffice will be without kisses.

Vanishing Game Birds.

Louisville Herald-Post.

Conservation of game birds has approval, but from the way the States are lining up behind the twentieth amendment "lame ducks" are out of luck.

Fog Horns.

Los Angeles Times.

After listening to numerous political and other addresses over the radio loudspeakers during the campaign, we are beginning to get the full meaning of fog horns.

No Gratitude.

Chanute (Kans.) Tribune.

It is with profound regret that among the names of possible Cabinet members under the new administration those of Gene Tunney and Jim Bausch are conspicuous by their absence. What sort of gratitude is that? Those two were among the first to support the winning ticket. Tunney made two quick trips to Europe and back presumably in the interest of the party. Bausch toured Kansas in a new car with a political tire cover, wearing himself hoarse delivering a fine speech some one had written for him. Probably their efforts were the ones that brought victory. But what do they get for it? Not even a consulship in Central America. Is that gratitude, or is that gratitude?

Place for Vice President.

Detroit News.

Mr. Garner may concentrate on the Vice Presidency as he has on the Speakership and on his prior congressional career. He may in the office make himself far more than the figurehead the Vice President usually is. The opportunity exists. But to assist and, to a large extent, represent him in Congress every President needs a principal aid. A Vice President personally popular and powerful in Congress could be the ideal man to fulfill the large function.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Let Congress Issue Bonus Certificates for Compensation Due and Let Soldiers Discount Them to Foreign Debtors Through Banks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to offer a solution to the bonus problem which I do not think has been previously offered:

Have the Federal Government issue the soldiers a negotiable certificate showing the amount of compensation due and the time at which it is payable. Then have Congress pass a law making these certificates acceptable at their face value on the payment of war debts due this country from foreign countries. The foreign governments would immediately seek to buy the certificates at a slight discount and their steady demand in the market would enable the banks to buy these certificates from the soldiers at the daily quoted prices.

The soldiers would, no doubt, be glad to take 5 per cent discount on the certificates in order to get the cash, the banks which handle them could make 3 per cent on them and still sell them to the foreign governments at 98 and the foreign governments who buy them would make 2 per cent when they turn them in at par on their debts.

This system would not materially upset the balance of the United States Government, and would virtually pay the soldiers' bonus out of the foreign debts and should relieve the United States pressure of this unsettled question. E. H. COOPER.

Opportunity for Young Amateur Musicians to Keep in Training and Feel at Home.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A recently published speech by Mrs. Hoover contained the suggestion that volunteer workers might assist in these difficult times by providing recreational centers for our young people.

For the past ten years I have carried on, in my own home, an activity along these lines, known as the Chadwick Orchestra.

Because I feel that there are many young people who would like to take advantage of this opportunity if they knew of it, I am asking you to kindly accord me a little space in your column.

This orchestra is noncommercial, independent and seeks only to be of service to the community. Members may be of either sex. Age limit is 14 to 30 years. Applicants must have a working knowledge of their chosen instrument. We do not teach. Rehearsals Saturdays, 8 to 10 p. m. Social half-hour follows.

A trained band leader directs the orchestra, which is affiliated with the District Federation of Music Clubs. A 25-cent entrance fee to cover this membership and 10 cents weekly contribution to our music fund is all the financial obligation.

I am anxious to reach young amateurs who can no longer afford lessons, those who have outgrown school affiliations, and the strangers in our midst; to help them retain what they have learned, or pick up what they have lost, but, more than all, I want to open a door where they can wander in and feel at home. Further information may be obtained by calling Potomac 5334.

ALICE CHADWICK.

Recalls Help Given by United States to Debtors and Wonders Why They Don't Reciprocate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Those of your readers who remember the not remote past will recall the admirable address delivered by Lord Balfour to the Congress of the United States immediately after we entered the war. They will also recall the delirious welcome given our troops upon their arrival. And now, how great is the change!

In coldly polite words, we are informed by the British that a debt, half of which was forgiven, can not be paid; that having an income of nearly $4,000,000,000, and a credit at home which enables them to borrow at 3½ per cent, they can not spare enough to meet an obligation which amounts to less than 1-12 of that income.

We paid cash for all their services to our troops, we fought by their side, we fed their people, we helped to rescue them from a great peril, we advanced them money, they agreed to pay part, we forgave the rest; and now, when we are depressed, when our industries are paralyzed and our beggars importunate, in confederation with France they ask another moratorium, and that we, who lent Europe 10 billions and spent on our own armies 16 billions, shall add to the burdens which now afflict us those which properly belong on their shoulders.

I write not in resentment, but in sorrow. The default we may allow, but we can not understand why England should ask us to postpone.

I. H. LIONBERGER.

Says Repeal or Modification of Prohibition Will Prove Beneficial by Keeping Many Tourists at Home.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Among the many sources of profit that will be tapped by the repeal or modification of prohibition is the tourist trade.

Every year many millions of dollars have been spent by Americans traveling abroad. They go on cruises of six days or six months; they spend seasons in Europe or the Caribbean; they summer in the North and winter in the South, somewhere outside the United States.

Since the coming of prohibition the number of these voluntary exiles has increased, because for many of them an impelling desire was to be free for a time from irritating tyranny.

The return of beer and wine means good times for American winter and summer resorts. This is a matter for our rulers to consider studiously.

White House Dinner Tonight in Honor Of Cabinet.

THE PRESIDENT AND MRS. HOOVER will entertain at dinner this evening in honor of the members of the Cabinet and their wives.

Mrs. Hoover, wearing a suit and hat of brown, with a blouse of eggshell crepe, occupied the President's box at the first of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's morning musicales at the Mayflower yesterday morning, when the artists were Miss Hallie Stiles, soprano of the Opera Comique, Paris, and the Chicago Opera Company, and Mr. Edward Johnson, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company. With Mrs. Hoover were Mrs. William S. Culbertson, wife of the United States Ambassador to Chile; Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont and Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons.

An interesting feature of the concert was the charming song, "Dogwood," sung by Mr. Johnson, and composed by Rhea W. Cable, better known to Washington as Mrs. John L. Cable, wife of Representative Cable. After Mr. Johnson had rendered the song, Mrs. Cable was called upon by the audience to take her bow with him.

Luncheon Given By Mrs. Townsend.

The Minister of Canada and Mrs. William Duncan Herridge were the ranking guests at the luncheon given by Mrs. Townsend after the musicale in compliment to the artists, Miss Stiles and Mr. Johnson. The company included Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, Lieut. Col. Marco Pennaroli, Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Sims, Dr. Ivan Franges, secretary of the Legation of Jugoslavia; Mrs. John L. Cable, wife of Representative Cable, whose composition "Dogwood" was sung by Mr. Johnson at the concert; Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Mrs. John Howard, Mrs. Franklyn Terry and her niece, Miss Lillian MacMillan, of New York; Col. and Mrs. Cameron Edwards, of Ottawa, guests of the Canadian Minister and Mrs. Herridge; Mr. and Mrs. Rex Townsend, of New York; Mrs. George Mesta, Mr. U. Grant Smith, Mr. R. Snowden Hill, Mr. Pendleton Turner, Mr. Eben F. Comins, Mr. W. Waverly Taylor and Mr. Celius Dougherty.

Viscountess Astor was a guest in Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's box at the left of the stage, as were Mrs. William R. Castle, jr., and Mrs. Hugh Campbell Wallace. Mrs. William Howard Taft was hostess to a group of friends in her box in the center section.

Mrs. Gann was the guest of Mrs. Harley Peyton Wilson, whose box party included Mrs. Marcus Coolidge, Mrs. Robert Fleming and Mrs. Warren Austin.

Mrs. W. R. Tuckerman Among Entertainers.

Mrs. Walter R. Tuckermon had with her Senora de Alfaro, wife of the Minister of Panama; Baroness Hauenschield, wife of the Counselor of the Austrian Legation; her niece, Miss Alice de Peyster, of New York, and her daughter, Miss Laura Walcott Tuckerman.

Senora de Alfaro was among the guests of Mme. Rosso at luncheon following the concert. Others who entertained at luncheon were Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, Mrs. Mahlon Pitney, Mrs. Ralph Worthington, Mrs. Hollister Sturgis, Mrs. Albert C. Dewey, Mr. Thompson Wailes, Mrs. Oscar Jarecki, Mrs. James Couzens, Mrs. Malcolm Matheson and Mrs. William McMaster Mills.

Others seen in the audience included Mrs. Wade H. Ellis, Mrs. George Marye, Mrs. Frederick Hicks, Miss Perais Chase Myers, Mrs. Alexander Gregg, Miss Anne Randolph, Mrs. Sol Bloom and her daughter, Miss Vera Bloom; Mrs. William F. Dennis, Miss Laura Harlan, Mrs. C. C. Glover, jr., Mrs. W. W. Chiswell, Mrs. Mark Sullivan, Mrs. Hiram Bingham, Mrs. Delos Blodgett, Mrs. Charles G. Matthews, Mrs. Joseph E. Washington, Mrs. Wilton J. Lambert, Mrs. Charles B. Howry, Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, Mrs. Henry Corbin, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. George Mosea, Mrs. Otis Taylor, Mrs. Percy Stewart, Mrs. L. M. Randall and many others.

Boxes Are Filled With Diplomats.

The Italian Embassy was represented by the Charge d'Affaires and the Marchesa Diana, Countess Roncalli, Signora Casardi and other members of the staff. The Minister of Hungary, Count Laszlo Szechenyi, and his daughter, Countess Cornelia Szechenyi, were in their box with a group of guests, and the box of the Danish Minister and Mme. Wadsted was occupied by members of the staff.

Mr. and Mrs. Townsend had in their box the Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. H. H. Sims, and Mr. and Mrs. Rex Townsend.

Mrs. Hayne Ellis had with her Mrs. William V. Pratt, wife of the chief of Naval Operations and a group of friends. Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips, jr., recently returned to Washington from her home near Pittsburgh, also entertained in her box. Mr. William Phelps Eno had given his box to the Minister of Canada and Mrs. William Duncan Herridge, who had with them Col. and Mrs. Cameron Edwards, of Ottawa, and the Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Cintas had with them members of the embassy staff.

Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, wife of the Secretary of State, had assisting her at her reception yesterday Mrs. William R. Castle, wife of the Undersecretary of State; Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, Mrs. James Grafton Rogers, Mrs. Harvey H. Bundy and Mrs. Francis White, wives of the Assistant Secretaries of State, and Mrs. Allen T. Klotz, wife of the Special Assistant to the Secretary of State.

The Ladies of the Senate will give their first luncheon of the season on December 13 at the Senate Office Building.

Representative B. M. Jacobsen, of Iowa, is a guest at the Dodge during this session of Congress. He will be joined by Mrs. Jacobsen after the holidays.

A large group of senators and representatives have established their residence at the Willard for the duration of the congressional season. Among them are Senator E. S. Grammer, Senator A. R. Robinson, Senator M. M. Neely, and Senator Walter Walker, and Representatives P. H. Maloney, G. N. Haugen, R. A. Green, Virginia Jenckes, T. J. B. Robinson, J. W. Ditter, C. D. Millard, H. I. Shott, J. L. Smith and Guy V. Hardy.

Miss Watson Presented To Capital Society.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Adolphus E. Watson entertained at a tea yesterday in their apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue, when they presented their daughter, Miss Priscilla Winslow Watson, to society.

Mrs. Watson was assisted by Mrs. William V. Pratt, wife of the chief of Naval Operations; Mrs. Frank Schofield, Mrs. John Greenslade, Mrs. Alfred Johnson, Mrs Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Edward A. Mitchell, Mrs. Frank Ridgely, Mrs. Harlan G. Scott, of Wilmington, Del.; Miss Elizabeth Howry and Miss Alys Downing.

Assisting the debutante were Miss Frances Simonds, Miss Laura Katherine Field, Miss Louise Tittmann, Miss Mal Sykes, Miss Gertrude Faust, Miss Anne Totten, Miss Catherine DuBois and Miss Florence Harris.

Mrs. Watson wore a gown of blue crepe, and her daughter was in a frock of pale green crepe. She carried an arm-bouquet of Talisman roses, and each of the debutantes assisting wore a corsage of the same flowers.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. William S. Sims, of Newport, have issued invitations for a tea on Saturday at the Junior League Club in Boston, when they will present their daughter, Miss Anne Hitchcock Sims, to society.

Mr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, chief of the division of far Eastern affairs, entertained informally at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton, the company numbering six.

Former Senator and Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, arrived in Washington last night from New York and will be guests at the Mayflower for ten days or two weeks.

Mr. Swagar Sherley and his daughters, Miss Olive Sherley and Miss Mignon Sherley, have returned to their home on Upton street after a visit to Warm Springs, Ga.

Miss Ruth Tuckerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, has returned from Baltimore, where she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Somerville Baldwin and attended the Bachelors' Cotillion.

Miss Elinor Ryan Engaged To Henry Beall Gwynn.

Mrs. Alexander Porter Morse announces the engagement of her granddaughter, Miss Elinor Morse Ryan, of New York, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph James Ryan, of New York, granddaughter of the late Mr. Thomas Fortune Ryan, to Mr. Henry Beall Gwynn, son of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Gwynn, of Washington.

Commander Omenzo Dodge and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Colby Dodge, have returned from a short visit to Philadelphia. Mrs. Dodge will entertain at a luncheon and bridge on Thursday in honor of Mrs. William Keech Wilson.

Mrs. Herbert B. Crosby will entertain at a buffet luncheon tomorrow.

Mr. Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, entertained at luncheon in the crystal room of the Willard yesterday.

Miss Rosa Eberley, of Wardman Park Hotel, entertained 15 guests at the Wednesday Bridge Club meeting here last evening. Supper was served afterward.

Mr. J. L. Gleade has returned to the Powhatan Hotel after a week's absence from the city.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Farley, of New York City, were at the Carlton during their short stay in Washington yesterday, having stopped here en route from Asheville, N. C., to New York.

Mrs. Orville Smith left yesterday to join Judge Smith at their home in Cleveland, where he arrived a few days ago. Judge and Mrs. Smith will return to Washington on the 20th of this month and will have with them their three daughters, who will spend the Christmas holidays with them here at their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel.

Miss Elizabeth Lewis Engaged to O. H. Lindstedt.

Mrs. Thomas Hamilton Lewis has announced the engagement of her daughter, Elizabeth, to Mr. Oscar H. Lindstedt, of Seattle, Wash. No date has been set for the wedding.

Baron J. C. van Eck has arrived in Washington from New York City and is at the Carlton for a brief stay.

Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith and her daughter, Betty, just returned from a week-end trip as the guest of Mrs. Buell G. Miller, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Karl Boy-Ed and Mrs. William Bell Watkins, Berryville, Va., are in New York at the Blackstone Hotel for a few days.

Friday Evening Dancing Class Resumes Tomorrow.

A brilliant company will attend the first meeting of the Friday Evening Dancing Class, which resumes its activities for the season with a dance to be held at the Willard tomorrow.

Organized many years ago, the class used to meet at the home of the late Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, on Massachusetts avenue. In time it outgrew her ballroom and since then the annual series of dances have been held at the Willard.

Several hundred members and their guests plan to attend the party and many will entertain prior to the fete.

Mrs. Edward Mortimer Parrish, of Richmond, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lamar Robinson. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson have recently returned to Washington and are now established at 1867 Kalorama road for the winter.

Miss Ella Louise Raner has moved to her new apartment at 1430 Belmont street.

The Art and Archaeology League of Washington has issued cards for the first studio assembly of the season on Saturday, December 17, at 4 o'clock. Miss Catherine C. Critcher will be hostess at her studio at 1726 Connecticut avenue, and there will be a special exhibit of paintings of the American Indians by Miss Critcher.

Dr. John M. Cooper, professor of anthropology in the Catholic University, who has recently returned from Labrador, will give a talk on "The Labrador Indian at Home."

There will be a subscription dinner dance at the National Woman's Country Club next Wednesday.

Mrs. F. S. Coolidge To Spend Winter Here.

Mrs. Frederick Shutleff Coolidge, noted sponsor for many of the concerts of the Library of Congress, will spend the winter in Washington, having taken an apartment here. Mrs. Coolidge has just joined the committee for the season of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, that gives its first concert here next Tuesday afternoon, at Constitution Hall.

Mrs. Coolidge will, on this occasion, be the guest of Mrs. Adolph Caspar Miller, in her box, to hear the much-talked-of new Russian conductor, Issay Dobrowen, in his first concert at the National Capital as leader of the Philharmonic-Symphony of New York.

Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor will be the hosts for the Arts Club this evening, when the guest of honor will be Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, chief of the division of Far Eastern affairs of the Department of State. Dr. Hornbeck has chosen for his subject "The Conduct of Foreign Relations."

Mrs. Mitchell Carroll will give the third of her illustrated talks at the Arts Club at 4:45 on Friday afternoon, when she will tell of Etruscan life and art. With the cooperation of the Italian Embassy, Mrs. Carroll has obtained pictures for this talk, which have not before been seen in Washington.

Assisting Mme. Simopoulos, honorary chairman, and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, chairman, Miss Ruth Hollingsworth Tuckerman and her committee of six debutantes, will open the Near East exhibit at 1529 Connecticut avenue at 10 o'clock this morning. During the day many prominent members of the committee will serve as hostesses. Among them will be Mrs. William H. King, Mrs. George H. Moses, Mrs. William A. Slade and Mrs. Clarence Phelps Dodge.

Throughout the day members of the Greek Women's Club of Washington, wearing national costumes, will serve coffee and Greek sweets.

Very effective is the combination of ancient legendary designs from Byzantium times and the modern fashion styling. Miss Priscilla Capps, daughter of the former Minister to Greece, is responsible for encouraging the wrinkled peasant women to put smart zipper tops on bags and mousquetaire cuffs and 1932 broad-shouldered effects on the suits and lounging robes.

Republican Women At Home Tomorrow.

There will be an informal at-home of the League of Republican Women at its headquarters, Sixteenth street and Scott circle, tomorrow afternoon from 2 to 5:30 o'clock. Mrs. Edward A. Keys, fourth vice president, will preside at the tea table, assisted by Mrs. Charles McNary, Mrs. Russell Harrison, Miss Grace Burton, Mrs. Carl Casey, Mrs. Victor Kauffmann, Mrs. Annabelle Lee, Miss Alice Whittaker, Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett and Miss Dorinda Rogers.

On Friday, December 16, Mrs. William Howard Taft will be the guest of honor at a musical tea. Mrs. Norma Simonson, soprano, and Mrs. Dorothy Emory, concert pianist, will be the artists. Mrs. Warren J. Haines is the chairman of hostesses.

Mrs. Ellis Logan, 1661 Crescent place, will entertain the members of the District of Columbia Branch of the Woman's National Sabbath Alliance today. Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, will be the honor guest. Mrs. Seymour Lowman will pour tea, assisted by Mrs. Frederick W. Ashley, Mrs. Henry Fenno Sawtelle, Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, Mrs. Sarah Nevins and Mrs. Anson Rogers Tracy.

The Rector's Aid of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, at Connecticut avenue and Bancroft place, of which the Rev. Herbert Scott-Smith is rector, will hold its annual bazaar and turkey dinner today and tomorrow from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock in the evening. The dinner will be served from 5:30 to 8 o'clock. Mrs. Willoughby Chesley and Mrs. Mary T. Jones are in charge of the dinner, assisted by Mrs. Wayne Wirgman, Mrs. Edward A. Keys and Mrs. William Sleet. Sponsoring the bazaar are Mrs. Joseph S. Wall, Mrs. Cassie Cox, Misss Carolene F. Smith, Miss Charlotte Cambpell, Mrs. Chesley, Mrs. Richard Snowden, Mrs. Rose Gouverneur Hoes and Mrs. William R. Benham.

The Georgia State Society will continue its social season with a pre-Christmas dance and card party Monday, December 19 in the main ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. The guests of honor are the members of the Georgia congressional delegation and their wives. Representative W. Carlton Mobley is chairman of the floor committee and will be assisted by Representative Robert Ramspeck, Representative Eugene E. Cox, Mr. William Gray Obear, jr., Mr. Raymond Whitfield, Mr. W. I. Denning, Mr. Marcus George, Mrs. M. C. Tarver jr., Mr. Donald Van der Welle, Mr. Edward Allan, Mr. Boris Dmitriff, Lieut. Charles K. Gailey, Lieut. Thomas M. Lowe and Lieut. William F. Train.

Following the election of officers an entertaining program will be furnished during intermission by the Virginia C. Hunter Studio.

The president extends a special invitation to all Georgians in the vicinity of Washington to be present and to bring their friends.

The Iowa Society will hold a dance and card party at the Willard Hotel Saturday evening, December 17, at 8 o'clock. A special program will also be presented, and members of Congress from the State and other notable guests will attend.

Reputed Brookhart Aid Arraigned in Swindle

Arraigned in Police Court on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, John M. Henshaw, 27 years old, said to have been associated with Senator Smith W. Brookhart, was held under $2,000 bond yesterday.

Henshaw, reputed to have worked with Senator Brookhart on the recent police investigation, sold 357 shares of Transamerica stock to Goodbody & Co., brokers, for which he was paid $1,754. It later developed that the original stock had been lost or stolen and that duplicates had been issued.

Riley's Stables to Go at Auction

Hazy, Noted Sire, Will Be Among Horses Sold Near Millwood.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Another dispersal sale of thoroughbred horse racing stock from the famous Blue Grass section of the Shenandoah Valley will be held December 10 at Montana Hall, former home place of William C. Conrad, Montana mining king, near Millwood, Clarke County.

The entire retinue of the stables of C. Reid Riley will be offered by C. M. Feltner, Berryville, receiver.

Offerings at the Montana Hall sale will include the noted sire, Hazy; 28 brood mares, including Lydia A., Supercilious and Galistoga; yearlings, weanlings, 2-year-olds and 3-year-olds. Mr. Riley was formerly of Washington, D. C.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

FEET and shoes!

What about your feet?

"Oh, really, don't you know, I never pay very much attention to my feet!" You don't have to tell me that because I can see that you don't! If you did you would not wrap them around the chair rungs when you sit, point them to heaven when you cross your knees, let your heels run over, let your ribbon bows fray, your laces break, your silver slippers soil and tarnish, wear the wrong type of shoe with a certain dress or even the right type and the wrong color. In the first place, with the right kind of a shoe on your foot, you are not liable to be so awkward. And the right shoe means the right type for your costume, in the colors and materials correct for that type of shoe, and with any new features, such as straighter heels or short or pointed toes decreed by the mode.

You need not have a different pair of shoes for each dress, but if you invest in three or four pairs at a time you will find that you save much in the long run, are sure to have what you want for each occasion, and your shoes will not get shabby as quickly as one pair worn constantly. A pair of sports shoes, one pair of dressy street shoes, a pair of satin pumps, and a pair of metal evening slippers, and you have a conservative assortment that will last over six months.

And when you sit, cross one knee over the other and let your foot hang gracefully, with the instep arched. Or just point one toe over the other on the floor. Or cross one foot over the other on the floor and point your toes gracefully. When you stand, stand on one foot and point the other in front, or in back, or a little to the side in a relaxed position. When you walk, walk squarely on your foot, without any "teetering," even if you have to practice this for hours with concentration on your feet until they automatically walk squarely and gracefully.

Pay more attention to your feet and shoes, and you will find yourself 100 per cent more graceful, poised and stylish.

Selecting a gift for a man is one of life's most trying moments to the average woman. That's only because she hasn't sent a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet of Men's Gift Suggestions. Because these suggestions are about gifts that are unusual, many of them not expensive, and some are—but most of them just individual and interesting . . . . both as a gift for the giver and for the one who receives it. Better not decide upon those gifts for the men until you have seen this leaflet! Some of them you can make, others must be bought—well, anyhow, why not send for the leaflet and see?

By the way, I do hope you are cutting all these Dah-ray Designs out and saving them for the day when you will wish you had. Start in with this one if you aren't.

In those secrets of our French maid, we have this one for reviving faded carpets: "Dilute the contents of an ox gall in ten quarts of water. Use this liquid freely to moisten the wrong side of the carpet. Then let it dry, and brush carefully. The colors will be found to have been revived astonishingly. Better vacuum the rug first, though." (Yes, and try and find the ox gall, sez I!)

Au revoir.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

GAS YOUR SHOES.

A GREAT professor in a well-known medical school that is a part of a large university turns a few pages in the intimate story of his own life, revealing some experiences that may be of profit to you and to me.

About 50 years ago this great professor was nothing more than a garden variety of small boy. One winter or spring he had a heck of a time with boils on his feet. Most boys indulge in sores on the shins, or shanks, or somewhere down that end of the line, though not many go so far as boils. The family doctor was consulted. A "blood purifier" and iron tonic was prescribed. The child preferred boils, but his mother was the boss and he had to swallow the medicine. The way it worked out should have satisfied both, for the son kept his boils and the mother gave him the medicine. Then came summer, and the lad took off his shoes and started in on his glorious barefooted summer career. His boils got well.

The youth may have had dew itch, or hookworm, or something else, but what he probably had was athlete's foot, or ringworm of the feet. However, that can never be decided now.

Thirty years passed. The boy had become a man, even a sprouting college professor. He had another attack of what appeared to be his boyhood trouble. What was he to do? An ambitious aspirant for a university position can not go barefooted. He was working much with microbes, antiseptics, and fumigants. He decided to compromise. He got a cake box, a soap dish, and a bottle of formaldehyde. The soap dish was placed in the cake box. About two ounces of formaldehyde was put in the soap dish. His shoes were set in the cake box and the top was closed and fastened. At the end of a day the shoes were removed and put in use. That cured his foot disease in short order, even more promptly than was the case when the barefoot treatment was used.

Later came all the furor about athlete's foot. Having always had good social standing he decided to conform to the prevailing requirements for membership in the four hundred. This time he trimmed his assortment of maladies with painful arches. His burden because too great, and he dug up the record of his earlier expertences. He again used the cake box, soap dish, and formaldehyde. All of his troubles disappeared.

Meanwhile he had noted that his shoes had been prone to develop odors, and his feet had not wholly escaped. After exposing shoes to formaldehyde fumes the usual shoe odors were no longer noted. On the other hand, he observed that shoes exposed overnight to gas in this way held the formaldehyde odor for several days. Doubtless the fumigant not only knocked out the ringworm parasites in the shoes during the night of exposure, but it soaked into the shoe material and was fed as a gas to the socks and feet for a number of days.

He suggests that people follow the plan of periodic fumigation of their shoes with formaldehyde, say for eight hours, as a means of prevention and cure of athlete's foot and, possibly, sweating feet and odoriferous feet. Exposure to sulphur fumes might be harder on the fungi in the footwear, but the objection is that it would ruin the shoes.

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

BORN on December 8, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., from 5:45 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Be alert on this December 8 and guard yourself against having a false sense of security. If things seem to be coming decidedly your way, take care lest they suddenly exhibit a reversal in form. Victory may be turned into defeat in a moment, and seemingly without rhyme or reason, such are the forces operating on this date. The sea of love and matrimony will be touched by frequent squalls.

The child born on this December 8 will apparently have difficulty in making a start in his earthly existence. His health early in life will not be the strongest, but fate will be on his side, and in time he should "ride the crest of the wave." Do not push him too much at school. Encourage him in his "play-life" and build up his little body. His mental equipment you will find is all that he will require and more, and he will grasp things quickly.

If December 8 is the date of your birth, you most probably are the sort of person to whom things come easily. Apparently without trying, you do not merely succeed, you succeed outstandingly. Everything you touch or have anything to do with seems to come out advantageously. Consequently you have many friends who seek to ride along with you. They are "fair-weather friends," however, for yours is a cold personality, one that repels rather than encourages friendly advances on the part of others. You are inclined to be nervous and fidgety. You are extremely sensitive, so sensitive, in fact, you imagine at times that you are being slighted or cut by others. In spite of your present success, you greatly fear for the future.

You are inclined to be religious, though when things are going right for you this side of your nature remains under cover. It is when things go slightly wrong that you begin to turn to God. You are an exuberant person and enjoy stimulating mental and physical activity, the latter being primarily for pleasure. You are a kind and considerate mate, a good parent, and you believe in allowing to your children an abundance of freedom and independence.

Successful people born on December 8:

Eli Whitney, inventor.
James M. Brown, banker.
William P. Kellogg, statesman.
W. C. Durant, auto manufacturer.

Culbertson on Bridge

THE FACTOR OF CONTROL.

A SUCCESSFUL partnership in Contract Bridge is based on each player's confidence in the other. It is impossible for two players who do not trust each other to cope successfully with the many situations which arise at the Bridge table. No matter how individually brilliant they are, this distrust is bound eventually to wreck them on certain hands.

Much has been said about the factor of control and most people are under the impression that this means that every partnership should have a captain, or, in other words, that one member of a team should make all the important decisions and decide on the proper place for the hand to play. This is entirely false, and the proof lies in the failure of most husband-and-wife combinations. In these partnerships one or the other always insists on being the dominant figure, and this usually results in the hand being played at an impossible contract.

This does not mean that the factor of control does not exist; as a matter of fact, it intelligently applied, it is one of the most important features of teamwork. One player should not make all the decisions, however, but should make them only when his holdings call for them; otherwise, he should allow the responsibility to rest on the shoulders of his partner. In other words, the captaincy should alternate, being entirely dependent upon the nature of the hand.

Certain hands call for one of the two players to take control of the bidding, and if the partner interferes by attempting some directing tactics of his own, the result is usually horrible. Rather than interfere, he must follow the leads given him and make only those bids which will illuminate the future course of the bidding, for his temporary superior. Consider, for example, the question of Forcing Takeouts. First Hand opens the bidding with one spade and you hold the following hand:

Spades	K 9 7 3
Hearts	A 4 2
Diamonds	A Q 10 6 4
Clubs	5

Obviously, the correct response is three diamonds. Your partner now bids three notrump. Your three diamond bid has taken control of the hand, but only for this one bid. A Slam looks extremely possible, provided, of course, the Opening bid was more than a minimum, and you must, therefore, pass the control back to your partner by bidding only four spades and allowing him to continue if he should so desire. A bid of five spades with this hand would be very bad, as it would practically force your partner to bid six without having discovered whether or not his hand contains extra values. Let us assume that he holds the following cards:

Spades	A Q J 2
Hearts	Q 6 3
Diamonds	9 3 2
Clubs	A J 8

A Slam is highly improbable with this combination of cards. However, over a bid of five spades he would be certain to bid six, as he holds the Knave of Clubs and the Queen of hearts over a minimum. Add the King of diamonds to his hand and he is certain to make some further bid over four spades.

One way of claiming control of a hand is through the use of the Redouble. For instance, partner opens the bidding with one spade. Second Hand doubles and you redouble. This is practically an absolute command to partner to give you the next opportunity to bid. It may mean that whatever bid the opponents choose can be doubled by you for a substantial penalty, or it may merely mean that you are afterward going to raise his suit or bid some suit of your own. Whatever you are going to do, he must allow you an opportunity to do it. The only bid which he is allowed to make is a Double. In other words, if Fourth Hand bids two of some suit over the Redouble, your partner may decide that at this contract a substantial penalty is certain. You may safely pass this bid if your Redouble is not of a bluff nature.

When the opponents are bidding two suits and your partner doubles one of them, if the opponent on the right takes the bid out in the second suit, you must not assume command of the hand by rebidding your own suit or raising your partner's bid. Obviously, your partner is fully aware of the fact that the opponents may run to their other suit. If so, he is probably prepared to double that bid also and does not want any interference from you. By his first Double he has guaranteed willingness to bid again even if it is only to raise your own suit. Failure to appreciate this fact is equivalent to taking charge of a whole situation without the necessary equipment.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

EVERY once in so often there's a protest from "a mere man." And say what we will, we women can not deny that we are interested in the masculine viewpoint. This note is so sensible that it merits the space necessary to repeat:

Dear Miss Pierce:

My mother and sister read your articles religiously and I confess I glance through your column occasionally out of curiosity. The other day you wrote about the romantic trend in hair fashions. I'll admit that an unusual hair arrangement often lifts both wearer and spectator above the humdrum run of things. But how, in the name of beauty, can any head inspirt romance if it is covered with dandruff flakes? To my masculine mind it would seem that complete cleanliness comes first. I've danced above heads exhibiting the latest waves, but it was quite evident that their owner had not combed, brushed or otherwise cleaned her hair. Yes, I've looked down, figuratively as well as literally. What's more, I've felt that if these fashions imbue a fear of brushing and discourage cleanliness, it were better to bring back the severely plain styles of yesterday, unfeminine though they were. What do you think, Miss Pierce?

A MERE MAN.

Painfully, this column has to admit that this "mere man's" observations have not gone haywire. It's sad but true. I've known women to rush into a beauty shop and ask for a wave—no, no shampoo—not enough time for that. Which is dead wrong, of course. A sprinkling of dandruff flakes over the most artistically sculptured head is enough to mar its beauty. As with everything else, cleanliness is the very first step in the care of the hair. We've gone into that many times. A setting should not be resorted to as a means of covering up lack of natural, fundamental loveliness, any more than make-up should be called upon to cover blemishes.

There are several things that cause flakes which are very similar in appearance to dandruff. These are (1) soap dandruff, caused by insufficient rinsing; (2) the use of inferior waving fluids, which leave a residue on the scalp and hair which, when dry, shows up in flakes; (3) the natural shedding of the upper layer of the epidermis, which is nothing more than dead cells. This can easily be brushed away.

Tomorrow we'll start from scratch in the treatment of dandruff—but in the meantime I invite all readers to answer "Mere Man's" challenge. "What do you think?"

100 Families to Benefit By Big Gift of Potatoes

The Central Union Mission has obtained a temporary corner in the potato market and 100 poor families of the city are to benefit from it.

Announcement was made by Superintendent John S. Bennett that a man who called himself "an anonymous friend," has given the mission 100 half bushels of good quality tubers with the request that they be given to families in need. These families are being selected from the mission's list which is large and growing monthly.

LADY ASTOR ENJOYS BUSY DAY IN CAPITAL

Starting with attendance at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's morning musicale yesterday, Lady Nancy Astor maintained a steady vivacity through a barrage of engagements, some scheduled and some unexpected.

Following her discussion of child welfare matters, the Virginia beauty had lunch with Mrs. William R. Castle, wife of the Undersecretary of State.

Though the appearance of Lord and Lady Astor before a House committee to give their views on European matters had been put off, the interest of the English peeress drew her to the Capitol anyhow.

There she was the guest of Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, who is the widow of an Englishman and who knew the former Nancy Langhorne in London.

Soon Mrs. John N. Garner, wife of the Speaker of the House, heard of Lady Astor's presence and came to join the party. Mrs. Garner was followed shortly by the other women members of the House.

Over tall glasses of lemonade, in which bobbing red cherries floated, Lady Astor's blazing blue eyes snapped as she fervently declared: "I'm a feminist" and outlined her reasons therefor.

Pepco Uses Radio In Power Service

Storm Warnings Give Tips on Demands for More Current.

The use of radio warnings of approaching storms to enable the Benning plant of the Potomac Electric Power Co. to anticipate extra demands for current was explained by C. Melvin Sharpe, assistant to the president, in an address to the Optimist Club at its weekly luncheon at the Hotel Hamilton yesterday.

Mr. Sharpe outlined the procedure by which his company is anticipating Washington's increased requirements for electrical current. He stated that the new Buzzards Point plant and an overhead line from Ellicott City will provide an additional supply equal to the needs of the city for years to come and, in addition, insure Washington against any serious interruption to service due to emergencies.

In pointing out the need for a large flow of water, Mr. Sharpe explained that even though the Potomac Electric Power Co. operates steam plants, the Benning plant alone uses more water for condensing purposes than that used by the entire City of Washington.

Former Auditor Wins Verdict for $15,000

A verdict for $15,000 was given Gustave C. Hertz, former auditor for the Commonwealth Finance Co., yesterday in the District Supreme Court when a jury in the court of Justice Joseph W. Cox found that he was entitled to that amount for services rendered to William A. Mills, former disbursing agent for the company.

Hertz contended he had assisted Mills in preparing income tax matters that had saved Mills a payment on an income tax return of $1,600,000. Attorney R. H. McNeil appeared for Hertz.

Man Indicted in $225 Robbery of Cigar Store

The District grand jury yesterday indicted Robert Paull on a charge of robbery in connection with the theft of $225 from the Schulte Cigar Store at Fifteenth and G streets northwest last November.

Paull is alleged to have entered the store while throngs of theater patrons were passing by, and after hitting Arthur B. Snyder, the clerk, on the head with the butt end of a gun, took the money from the store's cash register. After that he is reported to have taken $20 from Snyder.

Health Service Reports Sharp Influenza Gains

(Associated Press.)

The public health service yesterday reported an unusual increase in prevalence of influenza in the Southern and Western United States, amounting to well over 100 per cent in one week. Cases reported for the week ended December 3 totaled 14,291, against 6,306 cases for the previous week.

The increase is not regarded as an epidemic, the service stated, and is not held to be alarming because most of the cases are mild. It was added that previous experience indicates there will probably be an increase in other States during the next two or three weeks.

Night Ducks $29.25 Each.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The price of ducks reached a new high in the Back Bay section today. Pleading guilty to charges of night shooting in violation of the game laws three men were fined $87.75 each. They had bagged nine ducks. The cost per duck, it was figured out, was $29.25.

Davis Calmly Sits At Desk in Senate

Brief Appearance on Floor Ends Rumors on Course Before His Trial.

(Associated Press.)

With no apparent indication that anything unusual was happening, Senator Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania, sauntered into the Senate chamber yesterday, chatted with several colleagues, sat at his desk and, after half an hour, returned to his office.

The Pennsylvanian, who is under Federal indictment charging violation of the lottery law, thus ended speculation as to whether he would appear on the Senate floor before his trial.

However, he refused to say where he had been since the Army-Navy football game in Philadelphia last Saturday. His statement to newspapermen was that he had planned to go to Battle Creek, Mich., but decided to return to Washington when Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, questioned his election campaign account.

District Relief Plea Due in Congress Soon

The District Commissioners and Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, yesterday confered with the Budget Bureau and paved the way for prompt introduction of the District urgency deficiency bill in Congress carrying the item for special unemployment relief.

Welfare officials have recommended that $750,000 be asked for the first half of the next calender year, but it has not been revealed what amount the Commissioners forwarded to the Budget Bureau.

Real Estate Dealer Is Indicted.

H. Latane Lewis, real estate operator, was indicted by the District grand jury yesterday for the alleged embezzlement of $1,076.50 from the estate of Emma S. Spates, of which he had been executor. The indictment, which is in seven counts, alleges that Lewis, who is said to reside in Maryland, took the money for his own use early in 1930 and 1931.

U. S. Urged to Buy Island in Potomac

(Associated Press.)

A bill to round out the Quantico Marine Base by purchasing a 13-acre island in the Potomac River was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Smith, of Alexandria.

The bill would direct the Secretary of the Navy to acquire Scotts Island, Stafford County, at a cost not to exceed $25,000. The island is bounded by the river and Chappawamsic Creek.

Between the island and the marine base there is a swamp. It has been suggested the swamp might be filled in and the island thus be made a part of the mainland.

Hotel Proprietor, 87, Fined on Liquor Count

Joe Schladt, 87-year-old proprietor of one of Washington's oldest hotels, located on Wisconsin avenue near N street northwest, yesterday was told that he must either pay a fine of $500 or serve 60 days in jail following his conviction on charges of sale and second offense possession of liquor in Police Court.

Police informers testified that they had purchased a drink from the man, and had then secured papers which enabled them to raid his antiquated place. A small amount of liquor was found. Schladt was arrested September 22.

True Bill Refused In Janitor's Death.

James Talmadge Nesbit, colored assistant janitor of an apartment house on Rhode Island avenue, which was damaged by fire two weeks ago, yesterday was exonerated by the District grand jury of responsibility in the death of the janitor, William M. Scott, who was found dead at the foot of the dumb-waiter shaft. The action of the jury was in the form of a refusal to indict Nesbit.

PIERCE ARROW and AMOCO SHATTER WORLD MARKS!

NOT long ago on the salt beds at Salduro, Utah, Ab Jenkins, famous Pierce Arrow racing driver, surpassed all performance marks. In a Pierce Arrow "12" stock roadster, Jenkins drove 2710 miles in twenty-four hours for an average of 112.91 miles an hour. Ab Jenkins never left his seat. His only stops were for refueling.

Amoco-Gas was the only motor fuel used. Ab Jenkins, a user of Amoco for years, was so insistent on Amoco-Gas for this demonstration that, at the request of the Pierce Arrow factory, The American Oil Company shipped his supply of Amoco-Gas all the way to Salduro, Utah.

Ab Jenkins had to have a motor fuel that was all net power; that was easy on his motor and easy on him. Only Amoco-Gas would do. The answer is in his new world marks—2710 miles in twenty-four hours for an average of 112.91 miles an hour.

An unbeatable pair—a Pierce Arrow motor and Amoco-Gas—the original special motor fuel. For endurance, power and smoothness, both have no equal.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

PLANS for broadcasting the inauguration of President-elect Roosevelt on March 4 over the N. B. C. are already well under way. At least ten microphone positions, of which half will be mobile, will be set up in the Capital to pick up the ceremonies for transmission by network and short wave to the entire world.

From the moment President-elect Roosevelt leaves his hotel to go to the White House to meet President Hoover the proceedings will be broadcast continuously until after the ceremonies are over.

The mobile transmitters, which will operate on short wave to the pick-up point for the networks, will be located in a transmitter truck, in at least one plane or lighter-than-air craft, at the north portico of the White House, at the Capitol and at the Union Station.

In addition, stationary positions will be set up on the Capitol portico, where the President-elect is sworn in; in the Senate chamber, where the Vice President-elect is sworn in; in the President's reviewing stand, on the steps of the Treasury Building, and at the Peace Monument. It is possible that other positions will be added later, when definite plans are completed. Mobile transmitters will be used to follow both the incoming and retiring Presidents whenever it is possible to do so.

After lunch Mr. Roosevelt will return to the President's reviewing stand to review the inaugural parade in his honor, and this also will be put on the networks.

ACCORDING to present plans about a dozen observers will cooperate to present the inaugural ceremonies to the world. Among them will be David Lawrence, William Hard, Herluf Provensen, Graham McNamee, George Hicks, James Wallington and Carleton Smith.

From the air, the observation truck, the stationary positions and by the use of the portable transmitters, a complete picture of the entire proceedings will be broadcast, including the actual ceremonies of inauguration.

Bert Lahr, Broadway clown; Poldi Mildner, 17-year-old Viennese concert pianist; Glenn Anders, now playing on Broadway in "Another Language," and Gertrude Niesen, musical comedy singer, will be guest artists with Rudy Vallee tonight (WRC, 8 o'clock). Anders will give a scene from "A Farewell to Arms," the play made from Ernest Hemingway's novel. This will be Miss Mildner's initial performance for an American radio audience.

Harry Richman asserts he is against continuous radio work on the theory that the audience grows weary of a regular entertainer.

"Give listeners ten or twelve weeks, lay off for a time; then come back for another limited period and you'll find a ready welcome on the air," is Richman's broadcasting philosophy.

THE Marine Band "Shut-In Hour," originated three years ago by Capt. Taylor Branson, is back on the air over WRC every Thursday morning, from 11:30 to 12:30 o'clock, beginning today.

Arthur Godfrey, who has announced the program since the beginning, will continue in the same capacity this year. Capt. Branson has included Godfrey's composition, "Pale Potomac Moon," in the program and it is probable he will sing a chorus.

Lanny Ross, tenor; Audrey Marsh, soprano; Annette Hanshaw, blues singer; Jules Bledsoe, barytone, and the Hall Johnson Choir will join Charles Winninger for another lively hour's entertainment on Capt. Henry's Maxwell House Show Boat at 9 o'clock tonight.

Said to have been denied the use of short-wave transmitters by the German government to broadcast his speeches direct, supporters of Adolf Hitler have found another way for Hitler's voice to be heard by the people of the United States, thereby beating the German radio censors.

It was through the simple method of having a phonograph record made of one of Hitler's broadcasts, bringing the record to America, where it has already been broadcast by a New York station and will be heard from other stations throughout the country from time to time.

SIGMUND ROMBERG'S "The Student Prince," specially arranged in a tabloid version for radio, will be presented by the Aborn Light Opera Company as the second of its productions for the Five Star Theater (WJSV, 10 p. m.).

Mrs. George Pierce Baker, a graduate, trustee and former acting dean of Radcliffe College, will relate the romance and struggles surrounding the growth of that institution, when she appears on the Woman's Radio Review (WEAF-WTAM network, 3:30 p. m.).

Dr Edward Rand, who holds the Pope Professorship of Latin at Harvard University, will be the principal speaker on a special program observing the 1997th anniversary of the birth of Horace, the Roman poet, over the WJZ network at 8 p. m.

THE Tuesday Evening Music Club will be heard during the Community Chest period over WMAL at 7:45 o'clock tonight. Florence Howard is the director.

Comedians of the silver screen will be introduced during the Hollywood-on-the-Air program over WRC at 12:30 a. m., among them Edgar Kennedy, star of the "Average Man" series; Skeets Gallagher, Harry Sweet, Walter Catlett and Harry Gribbon.

The Five Star Theater, featuring five half-hour performances a week over transcontinental networks, will put approximately $3,500,000 in the pockets of the entertainers and broadcasting organizations, it is understood on good authority. The show is scheduled to run for thirteen weeks. This is the second week.

THE December meeting of the Washington section of the Institute of Radio Engineers will be held at the Kennedy-Warren Apartments tonight. An informal dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m., and at 8 o'clock W. F. Curtis, of the Naval Research Library, will speak on "Review of Ultra-Short Wave Literature."

It was "old home" night for James Wallington, the announcer, when he attended a Friars Club dinner the other evening. Wallington found himself surrounded by Harry Richman, Georgie Price, Willie and Eugene Howard and George Jessel—with all of whom he has appeared on the air as straight man.

THE British Broadcasting Corporation advised the N. B. C. that it received the broadcast of the Army-Navy game "very, very clearly" from Philadelphia and had rebroadcast it throughout England for the benefit of the English football fans. American residents and American ships in English harbors.

ALEXANDRIA'S YULE PARADE IS TONIGHT

City Officials Will Review March Sponsored by Merchants Group.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

The Santa Claus parade to be staged in Alexandria this evening at 7:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Retail Merchants Association, will start from the corner of Prince and Fayette streets, move north to King street; east on King to Royal, south of Royal to Prince, east on Prince to Fairfax, north on Fairfax to Cameron, west on Cameron to Royal, south on Royal to King, and west on King to Henry, south on Henry to Prince, where it will disband.

The following will compose the march: Police escort, grand marshal and aids, Boys' Independent Band, Washington; Mayor Edmund F. Ticer, city officials, Arlington County Post American Legion Drum Corps, Arlington County American Legion Post, Retail Merchants Association, Chamber of Commerce, Business and Professional Women's Club, the Kiwanis Club, the Rotary Club, marshal of the first division, Elliott F. Hoffman, and aids.

Automobiles with the marshals and city officials will stop at a space provided in front of the city hall and there officially receive Santa Claus and review the parade.

John U. Reardon is grand marshal, and his committee is Charles W. King, H. H. Martin, Clyde B. Lanham, Richard M. Green, jr., Vernon Edwards and J. C. Shaw, jr.

Fifty of the hunger marchers passed through Alexandria about 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The delegation was met at Four Mile Run by an escort of Alexandria police and brought through the city by way of Patrick street, the direct route to the Richmond highway, while two Virginia State police cars headed the caravan.

The Alexandria United Charities faces a deficit of several hundred dollars, according to the report submitted Tuesday night by Thomas Chauncey, treasurer. Chairman William A. Smoot and Elliott F. Hoffman, chairman of the finance committee, soon will present an appeal to the public for contributions.

Mr. Chauncey stated last night that last year $4,700 was received from Alexandrians employed in Government in Washington, who specified the contribution they were required to make to the Community Chest be given to the Alexandria United Charities, but this year the ruling of the Government is that all contributions be kept in Washington.

Mrs. Otis H. Hullings was elected permanent secretary, and Mrs. Abram B. Landes, the worker in the ward formerly represented by Mrs. Hullings.

The Mary Custis Lee-Seventeenth Virginia Regiment Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will serve a benefit oyster supper from 5 to 8 o'clock tonight in Lee Camp Hall, 804 Prince street.

Henry C. Moncure, principal of the Alexandria High School, received a letter yesterday from William R. Smithey, chairman, Virginia committee, Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, stating that Alexandria is on the accredited list for the session 1932-33, but calls attention to two matters requiring attention to continue on this list. They are the fact that some of the teachers teach more than 750 pupil-periods weekly, and also that the school does not meet the library requirements.

Dentistry Survey Is Planned by U. S.

Government to Determine How Science Affects Health of Nation.

A fact-finding survey to show what dentistry means to the health of the Nation will be conducted by the United States Public Health Service in cooperation with the American Dental Association, Dr. G. Walter Dittmar, president of the dental association, announced last night at a dinner given in his honor at the Columbia Country Club by the District Dental Society.

Other speakers were Surgeon General H. S. Cumming, Dr. Homer C. Brown, legislative chairman of the American Dental Association; Dr. A. D. Weakley, of the District Dental Society; Rear Admiral Charles E. Riggs, surgeon general of the Navy, and others.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Stores Along Columbia Road Found to Excel in Varieties of Dainties for Christmas; "International" Pastry Shop Is Called Fairyland of Food.

A glimpse of a fairyland of food in a well-known caterer's shop on Columbia road is indeed a high spot in market meandering to report today. Cakes, from the huge, festive fruit cakes, to the toothsome petit fours, scores of kinds of Christmas cookies, candies, desserts, favors and fascinating touches for the table that delight all discriminating housewives; all these the Meanderer saw in this shop that serves Washington so well. No pastry is beyond the skill of this shop, as it is known as "The International Pastry Shop," where one may have made to order foods characteristic of other lands—English, French, Italian, Dutch, German style of culinary irresistibles and find the order satisfactory to the last crumb.

Moreover, in the tete-a-tete the Meanderer had with one of the pleasant Frenchmen who founded this shop a promise was extracted from him to furnish exclusive Christmas recipes for women readers of The Washington Post, recipes that have never been published. The recipes will be ready within a few days, and the Meanderer will be glad to have applications for the recipe leaflets.

Miniature candle holders in the form of Santa Claus figures were some of the seasonal appealing items the Meanderer found in the Frenchmen's pastry shop on Columbia road. Some of the tiny Saint Nicks are quite frolicsome, going so far as to stand on their heads to further the holiday spirit. These gay little decorative figures are certain to win gleeful approval of Washington children.

Blue fish, trout and Boston mackerel are recommended for sea food dinners for the week. The Meanderer found them all for 15 cents a pound in a certain shop in the municipal fish market. It is late in the season for Boston mackerel, the fish marketer said, but assured the Meanderer that the quality of the fish from off the Bay State coast was excellent. Scallops, too, are coming into the local fish shops at low prices. They are large sea scallops. The Meanderer learned of a method of cooking scallops from the chef of a prominent hotel and of ways of using other sea foods, and the recipes are free for the asking to those who will write the Market Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing stamped envelope for reply.

Dutch apple pie filled thickly with apples and topped with butter, cinnamon and sugar, is a popular special this week in a bake shop on Fourteenth street not far from the heart of the shopping district. It is well worth its price of 20 cents. Whipped cream pies in pineapple, banana, chocolate and coconut flavors are 20 cents this week in this emporium of toothsome food.

Fresh dates from California, decidedly different from the dried dates, are now available in most Washington food places. The fresh dates are plump, full-formed, tender and not tricky. If dates are wanted for stuffing, or for cakes, muffins or candy, ask your grocer for hydrated dates, especially prepared for such purposes in cellophane packages.

Brandy, rum, peach and apricot extracts and a sherry preparation, all so useful in holiday cookery, are in plentiful supply in a chain store included in the meanderings along Columbia road. Imported olives in many varieties are on the shelves of this shop and are sold reasonably. A pint jar of large green and ripe olives mixed sells for 38 cents. Olives stuffed with celery and pimientos are among the choice offerings. Pearl onions are but 20 cents for a bottle of the size usually selling for 25 cents elsewhere.

Freshly made spice drops and anise cookies for holiday uses are ready for Christmas food shoppers at a Fourteenth street bakery shop. They sell for three dozen for 25 cents, a very low price for their goodness. At this same home of good things, cheese cakes of best quality sell for 25 and 40 cents, depending on their size.

Caviar is within reach of all of us when an ounce jar of Beluga, or large grain caviar, sells for 30 cents. Another one-ounce jar of Russian caviar of smaller grain sells for 25 cents. The Meanderer found these caviar values in a chain store on Columbia road. Several brands of the delightful little caviar puffs or crackers in tin packages sell for 55 cents in this store of low prices. Coffees sell here for less than in many shops.

Market Meanderings readers may be interested to know that this feature will appear on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week. The interest of Washington women who telephone their inquiries and who write frequently to TheMarket Meanderer is responsible for the additional columns offered.

Telephone questions about items in Market Meanderings to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 52; or address Mildred Reed Bundy, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Harbord Sees Jobs Gain.

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Resuming normal upkeep on America's $30,000,000,000 worth of machines will probably restore jobs to six and a half million workers, said Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, chairman of the board of Radio Corporation of America, tonight to the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

RUTH ETTING TAKES ADVANCE LOOK AT NEW DODGE SIX

New York, N. Y.—Bubbling over with the infectious cheer that has made her Radio's First Lady, Ruth Etting confessed today that she was "madly in love with the new Dodge Six," of which she was given a special pre-showing.

"It's perfectly stunning. But it is so hard to describe. It's so different, so youthful, so sporty. When you see it all you can do is stand and stare. It has the brand of good looks that just hold you speechless," said the famed singer of popular ballads through the Columbia Broadcasting System's network.

"Folks will go wild over this car when they see it. It's the answer to a motorist's prayer: a car that has a gorgeous appearance, but underneath it has a sturdy performance so dependable that you can bank on it."

Automobile circles were a-buzz today with reports that the Dodge organization has sprung a big surprise on the industry and the public by creating a new Dodge Six whose quality and low price will mark it as the outstanding value for the coming year.

Old Ironsides' Voyage Delayed by Weather

The scheduled departure of the frigate Constitution has been delayed by reports of unfavorable weather off Cape Hatteras, and last night "Old Ironsides" remained moored to her dock in the Washington Navy Yard.

The famous vessel was due to leave yesterday for Cuba. No visitors were permitted to board her, and naval officials indicated she would get under way some time after 7 a. m. today.

Atlantan Is Dismissed By Radio Commission

(Associated Press.)

The Radio Commission said yesterday it had dismissed from service George Llewellyn, suspended assistant to the inspector in charge of the Atlanta radio district.

Llewellyn was under suspension on charges of interfering with a Government investigation of the office of his superior, Maj. Walter Van Nostrand. Two girl employes were likewise suspended but later reinstated.

ARLINGTON TO REPAY LOAN IN BALL CASE

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Sufficient funds from real estate taxes have been collected for the county board to clear itself of the $255,000 indebtedness which falls due on or before next Saturday, according to announcement yesterday of County Auditor Elmer F. Newell.

Funds were borrowed last February when it became known that there was a huge alleged shortage in the accounts of former County Treasurer E. Wade Ball.

Of the total amount, Newell says, $127,500 has been paid, $75,000 of which was paid yesterday. The balance will be paid when due.

In addition to paying off all of the county's indebtedness, Newell says he is confident sufficient funds will be collected by County Treasurer Charles T. Jesse to take care of the county pay roll and current accounts for the month.

Since the county school board has $22,000 in its operating fund and is due a payment from the State of approximately $22,000 more in February it is believed it will not be necessary for the school board to incur another debt at this time, although a payment of $12,000 on bonds will become due the early part of February.

In November, 198 deeds were recorded in the Arlington County clerk's office, according to the monthly report issued yesterday. The tax to the State amounted to $481.68.

Other items in the report include: Wills, 6; State tax, $70. Chancery suits, 14; State tax, $21. Actions at law, 5; State tax, $7. Fines collected during the month for violation of the prohibition law amounted to $80, with costs totaling $161.30. Fines collected in cases other than prohibition amounted to $55, the costs amounting to $52.85.

Delinquent real estate taxes collected during the month going to the State amounted to $82.47. The amount collected going to the county was $731.88.

Fees for hunting licenses issued during the month amounted to $2,239.50.

There were fifteen marriage licenses issued.

Arlington Lodge, No. 193, I. O. O. F., at its meeting held last night in Odd Fellows Hall, at Clarendon, nominated the following officers for the new year: For noble grand, Charles F. Edwards; for vice grand, H. G. Messner; for secretary, William L. Bragg; for treasurer, J. W. Meyers; for financial secretary, C. P. Heins, and for trustees, Walter F. Huffman. The election will be held Tuesday night, December 27.

The Arlington County Monarch Club, at 6 p. m. today, at Windsor Arms, will hold its first dinner meeting, having as guests members of the recently organized auxiliary.

Plans will be discussed for aiding the Arlington County Welfare Board in the proposed drive for relief funds. Both organizations will attend the special meeting of the welfare board at the courthouse Monday night, when plans for the drive will be perfected.

Following its annual practice in an effort to stimulate the sale of the tuberculosis Christmas seals, the Arlington County Business and Professional Woman's Club offers two prizes to the school children for the best wrapped package using seals exclusively.

One prize of a $2.50 gold piece will be awarded for the best wrapped package in grades one to three and a like prize for the best package in grades four to six. All packages must be turned over to the principal of the school which the contestant attends not later than Friday, December 16.

The Clarendon Business and Professional Association will meet tonight in the offices of Albert H. Cohen in the Rucker Building.

Mrs. Lula Taylor has been elected president of the Margaret Thomas Circle of the Clarendon Methodist Church. Other officers are Mrs. Freda Davis, vice president; Mrs. Cherrick, secretary, and Mrs. Blanche Shepherd, treasurer.

County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp will be the principal speaker at the monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Patrick Henry School tomorrow night in the school auditorium.

Prince Georges Firemen To Observe Anniversary

The tenth anniversary of the founding of the Prince Georges County Volunteer Firemen's Association will be celebrated at a stag dinner and smoker to be given tonight by the association at the Beaver Dam Country Club.

State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer and Oliver Metzerott, member of the House of Delegates, have been invited. Others invited are Chief George S. Watson of the District Fire Department, Chief Jesse Fisher of Annapolis, president of the State Firemen's Association, and officials of the Arlington, Fairfax and Montgomery County Associations. John J. Fainter, who organized the county association ten years ago, will be unable to be present, being critically ill at his home in Hyattsville.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

TO one who has lived fully—rapidly, romantically, and, at times, heroically—what touchstones of memory repose in a well-planned week in Washington!

Hobart Bosworth.

Here are the bonds of interest, sentiment and attachment that link a disjointed and disturbing present with a mellower and more moderated past, redolent of brave excursions, fine friendships and the glamour of youth's first conquests.

At least, so it has been with Hobart Bosworth, and the charming Mrs. Bosworth during the week ostensibly dedicated to four personal appearances daily at the Earle Theater. But it has been dedicated to far more than that, these brief seven days that unhappily come to an end tonight.

One learns from a friendly visit with this kindly veteran of both the stage and the screen that he came to the National Capital with a definite itinerary of points that were not to be missed, no matter what the press of professional duties or the requirements of social obligations.

A rigid adherence to this carefully planned tour of points that have rather a deeper and more intimate significance for Mr. Bosworth than for the casual sightseer has rolled away the years and brought back phantom handclasps out of an era that is gone. In the mind's eye the great of another day once more live and move and have their being, and events alive with color reform themselves into a gay parade down the golden paths of memory.

It is worth retelling, even bereft of the warmth and intimacy and enthusiasm with which Mr. Bosworth told it to me during a quiet hour in his dressing room Tuesday afternoon.

IT is only a step from the stage entrance of the Earle west on E street to the stage entrance of the National Theater. It will be conceded without argument that the stage entrance of the National is not included among the customary points of historical importance in the Capital of the Nation. In Hobart Bosworth's mind, however, it occupies a position in the forefront of spots hallowed by precious associations.

Down this long, dark passageway—which has not changed appreciably in appearance, and none at all in location, during the various rebuildings of the famous old playhouse upon which the name of Rapley has become so indelibly imprinted—have trod the feet of the stage's illustrious great. Mr. Bosworth tells me, almost with a tear glistening in his benign blue eye, that here was one of the greatest thrills of any that have come to him during this first visit to Washington in fifteen years or so.

Here he stood and saluted the wraiths of that majestic company that bore the name of Augustin Daly, of which he himself was a part for a round decade—Ada Rehan, John Drew, Mrs. Gilbert, Annie Russell, Maude Adams, Otis Skinner and scores more, as well as Julia Marlowe, Mme Bernhardt, Mrs. Fiske, Henrietta Crosman and others of renown who have been his friends and his professional associates and have strode the National's boards.

A scant block or two away, another pause was made on a spot dear to memory—the now vacant site of the playhouse that came down through the generations as Albaugh's Opera House, Chase's Theater and Foli's, originally on Fifteenth street facing what is now Sherman Square, but later with an entrance cut through to Pennsylvania avenue for whatever prestige so gallant a gesture may have entailed.

In 1886, I think it was, Mr. Bosworth appeared in Albaugh's Opera House, in support of Lewis Morrison in two of Shakespeare's least frequently acted plays—"Measure for Measure" and "Cymbeline."

For Mr. Morrison's uses he wrote a play, "Faust," based upon an imposing amount of research work and representing a fair composite of everything ever put on paper about a gentleman of that name, for which he received a cash return of exactly $9. His collaborator in contriving some of the drama's mechanical perfections, was rewarded with a box of cigars, opulently done up in tinfoil, and four quarts of high-proof, spirituous inspiration for future adventures in playwriting.

It is perhaps worthy of note that "Faust" was a sufficiently meritorious work to serve Mr. Morrison as a profitable vehicle over a period of 27 years!

Such, at times, are the emoluments of genius!

PROCEEDING to the Freer Gallery of Art, which, as an artist, Mr. Bosworth deems a priceless treasure house, where the Whistler collection is on view, the browsing about took the form of day-dreaming of the years between 1892 and 1898 when Whistler and Bosworth were cronies in the Old Chelsea section of London.

"Jimmie Whistler, to me," says Mr. Bosworth, "has always been the greatest of etchers, and in the days of our intimate acquaintanceship in London I reveled in his audacity and gloried in his rapier wit. But in the light of certain disclosures following his death, I now confer upon him the added distinction of being the most unconscionable cad that ever lived.

"There can be little defense of the chivalry of a man, no matter how great an artist, who would sell at auction a piece of furniture in the top drawer of which he must have known were bundles of letters revealing the closest secrets of many of his distinguished feminine admirers, with each writer painstakingly identified in Whistler's own handwriting! Among gentlemen, that sort of thing just isn't done!"

From the Freer Galleries to the Folger Shakespeare Memorial Library is not too long a jaunt. In the Folger Library, Mr. Bosworth found himself, perhaps, most completely in his element, for whether it be widely known or not, Hobart Bosworth has played a greater number of Shakespearean roles than any other living American actor, and is, too, I believe, the only living survivor of the Augustin Daly Stock Company ever to have played in a Shakespeare play on the lawn at Stratford-upon-Avon, where he could have tossed a pebble upon the tomb of The Bard.

"I declare myself with some assurance upon the matter of having played more Shakespearean parts than any other American actor," confides Mr. Bosworth, "because Otis Skinner and I thrashed the thing out to our mutual satisfaction some time since. He has played in 17 of Shakespeare's characters. I have played in 21. Our respective records, I think, are not seriously threatened by any other living actor."

AND then the capstone to the radiant structure reared of memory's gossamer stuff! A visit to that relic of America's past glory on the seas, the U. S. S. frigate Constitution, "Old Ironsides," enduring symbol of our Navy's greatness.

For Hobart Bosworth was cut out to be a naval officer. His father was one throughout the Civil War and was mustered out of that struggle between the States with the rank of lieutenant commander. Through the influence of his friend, the father of Charles Gates Dawes, erstwhile Vice President of the United States, the elder Bosworth secured his son "Hobe" an appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. ("Hobe" and "Charlie" Dawes, by the way, were schoolmates.) An interval of a few months intervened between the appointment and actual enrollment, intended to be devoted to mathematics and building up the youthful physique.

Boyish impatience at this juncture overbalanced the potential future admiral's better judgment and he ran away to sea, before the mast, on clipper ships, where he later endeavored to evade a distasteful menial task by protesting to "Bulldog" Penfield, a rowdy bo's'n's mate, that it was beneath the dignity of a descendant of Myles Standish and John and Priscilla Alden to soil himself with a sailing ship's excrement, even in line of duty and on a craft called Sovereign of the Seas.

"So you're descended from the likes of them, are you?" roared the "Bulldog." "Well, I'll give you some quicker ancestry than that—you're just a lousy young son of a so-and-so (Ed. Note—There is a slight discrepancy here in the matter of actual verbiage), now go scrub that deck!"

The deck was scrubbed.

"And not until 55 years later," chuckles Mr. Bosworth, "did I ever reach Annapolis, and then it was to appear in a motion picture called 'Annapolis,' as a warrant officer engaged in getting his son an appointment to the academy! Is that the irony of Fate, I ask you?"

HOBART BOSWORTH, as has perhaps been intimated, descends from a long line of distinguished ancestors, dating back to the Puritans and early Dutch in New York. On his father's side he is lineally descended from Myles Standish, John and Priscilla Alden and five other Mayflower Puritans; on his mother's, from the Van Zandts, of Manhattan, one of the oldest families of early Dutch settlers, whose family vault is in Trinity Churchyard, and whose home was on Wall street and the Battery, and who were the original owners of all of Little Neck, Long Island.

Ninety-three of his ancestors, on his father's side, fought in the Revolution, and Wynant Van Zandt, his great-grandfather, named his son Washington because his uncle, Wynant, had been Gen. George Washington's personal physician at Valley Forge.

Thus there leaves the Capital tonight something more than a personality that has impressed itself upon the annals of the stage and the newer history of the cinema. There departs from our midst a brilliant actor, a patriotic American and a distinguished gentleman, his mind surging with hallowed and imperishable memories.

COUNTY SLASHES 2 SALARIES TO $4,500

Fairfax Officials May Get Still Another Reduction Under State Act.

The board of supervisors of Fairfax County, Va., at its monthly meeting yesterday fixed the salary of the county treasurer and the county commissioner of revenue at $4,500 each. This is a reduction from $5,500, the maximum allowed each officer under the State law. The board also fixed the compensation of the employes of the two offices as recommended by the treasurer and commissioner, which was the same as paid last year.

These salaries also are subject to a further 10 per cent reduction by the State under an act passed during the last session of the State Assembly, which reduces the salaries of all county and State employes. This would make the salary of the treasurer and the commissioner of revenue for the next year at $4,050 each.

Delegate Edmund H. Allen, of Fairfax County, and Hugh Reid, of Arlington County, attended the meeting. Allen asked the board if it is in favor of an extra session of the State Legislature as advocated by Senator Worth Smith, of Louisa County. The board adopted a resolution stating that as far as Fairfax County was concerned that it knew of no reason for calling a special session at this time, and until some reason was put forward by the proponents of the extra session they were opposed to any additional burden on the taxpayers that would be occasioned by such a session.

Representatives from the State auditor's office asked the board to adopt a special combination form of a county warrant check advocated by that office, pointing out that it would be more economical to the county in paying its accounts. The board refused to accept his recommendations when it found out that the State comptroller's office would not take the responsibility of declaring that it complied strictly with the requirements of a county warrant as outlined in the State law even though the attorney general had expressed an opinion that it was legal.

Cab Driver Sentenced In "White Slave" Case

Baltimore, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Carroll Kelbaugh, a taxicab driver, was sentenced by Judge William C. Coleman in United States District Court today to serve four years in the new Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburgh, Pa., on his plea of guilty to violation of the Mann act.

Kelbaugh was charged with transporting Mrs. Virginia Lorraine Grant from Chicago to Catonsville, Md. The defendant's attorney said the driver had taken two men to Chicago and had met the girl. He offered to bring her East. She accepted, he said, and when she got here he placed her in a house in Catonsville.

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

NATIONAL

"JUNO AND THE PAYCOCK." The Abbey Theater Irish Players present a play in three acts by Sean O'Casey, as fourth bill of their week of repertoire. Reviewed by Dorothea Lewis.

—THE CAST—

"Captain" Jack Boyle.....Barry Fitzgerald
"Juno" Boyle.....Eileen Crowe
Her Children—
John Boyle.....Arthur Shields
Mary Boyle.....Kate Curling
"Joxer" Daly.....F. J. McCormick
Mrs. Maisie Madigan...Maureen Delany
"Needles" Nugent.....U. Wright
Mrs. Tancred.....May Craig
Jerry Devine.....P. J. Carolan
Charlie Bentham.....Michael J. Dolan
An Irregular.....Denis O'Dea

Melancholy is strong in the Irishman's soul, and so is mirth, we understand. But even with that understanding, it is hard to believe in the strange combination of these two Irish characteristics in Sean O'Casey's drama so sterlingly and so heartwarmingly presented last night by the Abbey Players.

Mr. O'Casey has written two acts of thin and padded but chuckling, friendly mirth and one act of harsh, cruel melancholy. True he plants a trade-union strike, (which fades into nothing), some political discussion and a son broken by political conflicts in the first two acts and the cry that "No man can do too much for Ireland" at the end of the second to warn us. But somehow these things didn't warn us for the sudden sweeping tragedy that followed. We had laughed too long and heartily by that time.

The Players make the play consistent in one respect—they fill the entire three acts with beautifully complete, delicately shaded acting. Barry Fitzgerald (the publican, Michael James, of "The Playboy") is an indescribable and delicious treat as the colorful, rascally, lovable—until that strange last act—Capt. Jack Boyle, whose life at sea embraced all of one voyage to Liverpool. The brilliant Eileen Crowe, in the less rich, but equally demanding role of Juno Boyle, is both moving and amusing. and F. J. McCormick, as Joxer Daly completed last night's leading trio. Fitzgerald's brogue is the roughest, thickets, grandest language we've heard in a month o' days.

Arthur Shields and Kate Curling, also gave splendid accounts of themselves.

Juno (so named because she was born in June, courted in June and married in June), and her "paycock" of a strutting husband, who prays Heaven to protect him from jobs, fall heir to a fortune, borrow and plunge while waiting for the inheritancesh to come in—all very amusingly; and then pin that stepchild third act, not only learn there is to be no inheritance and lose their furniture and home, but also lose their son and find their daughter disgraced.

So much for a summary, for no American written words can describe the charm and naturalness, homeliness and rooted reality which goes into those first two practically plotless acts—much of the first being spent in solemn contemplation of a lone sausage. A distinguished audience, including the Irish Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley, loved it right rightly and chuckled and applauded until the last act came along to surprise and almost stun it into wondering if the play was meant to prove something after all.

However, you simply must not miss the two acts of Barry Fitzgerald and all of Eileen Crowe and, if you did last night, there'll be a repeat performance just for you next Saturday afternoon.

Yesterday afternoon the indefatigable players presented Lennox Robinson's comedy, "The Whiteheaded Boy," with Eileen Crowe, F. J. McCormick and Barry Fitzgerald also in its cast. Tonight it will be "The Far-Off Hills."

DEMURRER IN DARBY CASE IS SUSTAINED

Indictment of Former Bank Clerk in Rockville Is Ruled Bad.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 7.—A demurrer to an indictment charging John C. Darby, former assistant cashier of the Montgomery County National Bank, at Rockville, with making false entries in the books of the bank, was sustained today by Judge William C. Coleman in the United States District Court.

Judge Coleman held that the indictment was bad because it alleged Darby had made false entries by putting on the books of the bank notes bearing forged signatures, whereas the entries were not false as they were true reports of a fraudulent transaction.

The Government contended at the hearing last Friday that the indictment was sufficient because the forgeries were placed on the books as being real signatures.

Should the case be appealed by the Government it will go directly to the Supreme Court rather than to the Circuit Court of Appeals, according to Charles G. Page, assistant United States attorney, because it involves the interpretation of a Federal statute raised on a demurrer to an indictment.

Darby, who furnished bail of $3,000 after his indictment, is alleged to have forged his wife's name to notes totaling $12,300. He is represented by Attorney Lucien H. Mercier, of Washington.

Man Is Convicted In Shooting Case

Children Pestered Him and He Fired in Air, He Tells Jury in Rockville.

William Swanson, of Cabin John, Md., yesterday was convicted on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon on two children and was fined $150 in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md. In imposing the fine, Judge Arthur D. Willard roundly berated Swanson for shooting at children.

Swanson told the jury he had not fired at the children, but had fired in the air to frighten them and that the buckshot ricocheted from tree limbs and struck the children. He said the party of children had been pestering him until he was greatly perturbed.

Marguerite Golden, of 1453 Harvard street northwest, was the complaining witness. She was shot in the right hip. The other victim, H. Gibson, of 3825 Livingston street northwest, was not present, as his parents had taken him to California. The shooting took place on the towpath of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal near Cabin John. The children had been attending an outing at the estate of J. F. Brashears, Woodrow and Wilson avenues, Cabin John.

Rockville Pike Group Names Wall President

Thomas G. Wall last night was elected president of the Rockville Pike Citizens Association at a meeting in the Montrose (Md.) School. Mrs. John A. Holmes was elected vice president, Mrs. Edwin C. Brandenburg was elected treasurer, and J. W. Wisner, secretary.

Thomas G. Wall, Mrs. Philander Johnson and Burton K. Doyle were elected delegates to the Montgomery County Civic Federation, while Miss Maude Hodgkins, Dr. John A. Holmes and Dr. Charles Killinger were elected alternates. The association discussed plans for future activities at the meeting.

Fairfax to Donate Land for Highway

New Bookkeeping System Wins Approval of School Board.

The school board of Fairfax County, Va., voted to donate a strip of land in front of the school at Groveton and one in front of the colored school at Gum Springs to the State Highway Commission for the widening of the Washington-Richmond highway south of Alexandria. The board stipulated that the gift was conditional on the highway department erecting a concrete retaining wall and fence in front of the Groveton School. Mrs. E. L. Finks, trustee from Mount Vernon District, and Divisional Superintendent W. T. Woodson were appointed a committee to confer with representatives of the highway department.

The board voted to adopt the new uniform system of bookkeeping advocated by the State auditor's office.

A letter was received from Dr. Sidney B. Hall, State superintendent of education, requesting the board to use the utmost economy in school finances so as to maintain the State education standards on a reduced income. A request from the State auditor's office was received asking the board to postpone the making of the estimates for next year's budget until the new budget manual is received along with the new forms of the county budget.

Irish-Trojans May Attract 101,558

Year's Largest Turnout Is Expected Saturday.

Brancheau Only Notre Dame Star Missing at Tucson Drill.

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—When Notre Dame and Southern California meet at Memorial Coliseum (Olympic Stadium) to settle their football differences Saturday a record crowd for the country this season will sit in on the festivities.

This was assured today with less than 15,000 of the 101,558 seats available for purchase through regular channels. A sell out was almost certain.

The season's high in attendance jointly is held by the East and West. Eighty thousand witnessed the Notre Dame-Army game at Yankee Stadium, while the same number of spectators took in the Stanford-California struggle. The Army-Navy classic at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, attracted 79,000.

By way of comparison, Southern California played to 93,000 in its game with Stanford here in the biggest turnout of 1931. With three days to go before the Rambler-Trojan tussle, this figure was expected to be surpassed.

Irish Belie Coach's Predictions.

Of the "sick six" only one man, Ray Brancheau, half back, was not in uniform. Brancheau was taken from a train to a hotel in an ambulance when the squad arrived today, but he walked to and from the ambulance and did not appear seriously ill.

Later Dr. Bernard Kamm, the team physician, said the fleet half back had a temperature of 100 degrees last night, but he was better today and might be in condition to play Saturday.

Joe Sheeketski, Steve Banas, Norman Greeney, Emmett Murphy and Joe Robinson, described by Coach Hartley ("Hunk") Anderson as ill, all participated in the workout.

Dr. Kamm said the team suffered little from its journey and he believed the two-day rest here would restore the men to their best physical condition.

Anderson Enshrouded In Gloom.

But Coach Anderson would not emerge from his shroud of gloom. When the team arrived Anderson solemnly declared the sickness which had beset his team was growing worse as they neared California. He predicted the Trojans "will lick us by at least two touchdowns."

And when he had watched his team kick, pass and run signals for an hour and fifteen minutes this morning he commented, "The team didn't look very good. It was too sluggish. The players are accustomed to playing in snow, rain and cold and the hot weather here is sapping their strength."

What might possibly be the starting line-up was indicated by Coach Anderson's selection of his first eleven today. He placed George Melinkovich at full back; Joe Sheeketsky and Mike Koken at half backs, and Charles Jaskwhich at quarter. The ends were Capt. Paul Host and Ed Kosky. Joe Kurth and Ed Krause were at tackles, Jim Harris and Norman Greeney at guards and Joe Robinson at center.

Jones' Contract Renewed For Period of Five Years

Los Angeles, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Howard Jones, preparing his California football team for its annual battle against Notre Dame, received a new five-year contract today from President R. B. Von Kleinsmid.

Jones' present contract, calling for a reputed salary of $12,000 a year, has another year to run.

"We are renewing Jones' contract now in recognition not only of his ability as coach but for his splendid training of the players in sportsmanship and ideals," President Von Kleinsmid said.

Jones is in his eighth season at University of Southern California. In that time Trojan teams have won 72 games, lost 10 and tied 2, for an average of .878. In the last six years his teams have won or tied for the Coast title five times, and in 1928 and 1931 were rated national champions.

The coach is now 47. He has been a football mentor for 21 years at Yale, Duke, Iowa, Syracuse, Ohio State and U. S. C.

Maryland's Southern Conference Champions Prepare for New Season

Louis Johnden, Post Staff Photographer.

Coach Burton Shipley is pictured addressing the University of Maryland basket ball squad which last year won the Southern Conference championship in the annual tournament at Atlanta. Despite the loss of several veterans, the College Parkers anticipate another successful season with much promising material having graduated from the clever Freshman quintet of last season.

JUDSON AND McMILLAN BATTLE

Savoldi on Program Tonight on Auditorium Mat.

BRUISING near-champions of the grassling racket parade their mountains of flesh and muscle upon the stage of the Washington Auditorium tonight, beginning at 8:30 o'clock, in a series of bouts which will be headlined by a meeting between Jim McMillan, vice president of the I-love-to-Londos-only club, and Frank Judson, handsome former Harvard athletic coach.

McMillan, once a hero in the game, now pursues villainous tactics. Association with hundreds and hundreds of headlocks have changed the facial physiognomy of the former Illinois University football captain into a rather vicious looking gentleman. Of late, for professional reasons, he has taken on some of the tactics of Chief White Feather and other roughies, and such eye-gouging and teeth-kicking is frowned upon by the righteous local wrestling citizens.

Judson Appears on The Rise.

Judson, on the other hand, seems to be definitely on the upgrade in the game. Young, undeniably of the heroic type, Judson has been winning matches three or four times a week of late, and has yet to meet defeat since coming into the professional stockade. Promoter Turner is saying a novena in the hope that Judson will prove another Doc Wilson, the handsome blade who was the first to get the lady customers interested in Washington.

Joe Stecher, former champion, whom many believe would still be out on top if he had more color, meets up with expostulating Renato Gardini, whose chief claim to fame is making speeches after losing. He makes plenty of speeches; in fact he may be too hoarse tonight to respond to the friendly boos of "No speech, no speech!"

Big, willing boys make up the rest of the card, and although none of the crop seems likely to do more than tread water in the strange profession they have chosen, they nevertheless can be counted upon to work harder than the timid headliners of their game. Joe Cox tackles Ernie Dusek and George McLeod takes on Frank Brunowicz.

Ponzi and Rudolph Star in Cue Play

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Leaving almost nothing to be desired in the way of "pool" shots, Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, and Edwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, today paraded through their opening matches in the national billiard championship with a brilliant array of shots that bespoke ill for the defending title holder, Ralph Greenleaf.

Ponzi, making his first serious bid for the national title, turned back Frank Taberski, former champion of Schenectady, N. Y., 125 to 40, in four short innings. Dudolph, also a former title holder, outclassed James Mills, of San Jose, Calif., 125 to 75, in eight innings.

Ralph Greenleaf, the defending champion, took undisputed possession of first place when he won his second game of the tournament, defeating Walter Franklin, of Kansas City, Southern sectional champion, 125 to 53, in eight innings.

ST. STEPHENS PRACTICES.

St. Stephens 135-pound eleven will practice tonight in preparation for Sunday's championship game with Apaches. The workout is scheduled at 8 o'clock at Twenty-fifth and Virginia avenue.

Temple Invests in Warner System to Finance Bonds On New $300,000 Stadium

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

THE engagement of Pop Warner to coach the football team at Temple University, Philadelphia, is a happy sign that at least one school has refused to be intimidated by the recent information that has made for rather inferior football and a decline of that notoriety which is called football glory at other houses of learning.

Temple, having entered the football business late, is not yet ready to hit the sawdust trail and it is to be hoped that the other pious brothers who saw the light after many years of profitable sin and thrifty accumulation will treat Temple with Christian patience until such time as the stadium is paid for. There is none so virtuous as the school which has established a permanent athletic fund, paid off the owings on the stadium, gym, field house and swimming pool and turned square. But the Golden Rule entitles Temple to the same chance and Temple did not enter the business until 1925. There are other institutions in the same predicament which may now be encouraged by the honest example of Temple University to postpone their conversion until they have got theirs, too.

Mr. Warner's Goods On the Market.

In Mr. Warner, Temple has hired a professional who frankly sells what he has to sell for the best price to be had in the market and never gets himself up as a molder of character or spiritual guide to the sensitive young men who come under his instruction. Willingly he yields these functions to their pastors and confines himself to his subject, which is football.

If their character is improved by association with Pop that is just so much velvet, and there is no extra charge, but he has found many of his sensitive young charges to be pretty sophisticated and hard boiled and nobody ever heard of his taking a saucer-eyed full back on his lap and telling him what happens to a drunkard's liver. Similarly, Pop's bearing is such that of the thousands of innocents who have studied football lessons in his class few have ever felt that sympathy which emboldens little boys of 180 pounds and up, serving under other coaches, to pour their little hearts out in the study, after hours.

Warner's Pupils Now His Competitors.

He has troubles of his own, not a few of them arising from his excellence in his line, for he has taught football so well that old Warner boys have become dangerous competitors in his own overcrowded field of endeavor.

Denials to the contrary notwithstanding, Ernie Nevers, who learned football from Pop at Stanford University, became a rival to Pop this year, if not by any conduct or policy of his own, then through the agitation of some of the alumni. Knowing from old experience how soon the pupil of today becomes tomorrow's menace to the livelihood of a head coach, Pop has been a conservative booster, and the one player for whom he really did let himself go, Nevers, had Pop's own indorsement as the greatest player he ever coached for one of his credentials when the alumni sought to remove Pop and install him.

Reputation Represents Ballyhoo Value.

In assuming the sort of job that he goes to at Temple, Pop becomes a capper for the show. The name and reputation of Pop Warner have a ballyhoo value above and beyond the actual merit of his work and will draw money at the gate, if there is any left, in excess of the amount which a football team of the same rating could command.

During the shakedown period of one or two seasons, while the incumbent varsity men are playing out their string and the booking office is haggling for major league dates, this value as an amusement will take care of the difference between the $5,000 salary of the departing head coach, Heinie Miller, and Pop's pay of $15,000. After that, with typical Warner teams going, Temple will move into the money and the present stadium with its capacity of 30,000 head, whose financing is a problem now, probably will be too small, necessitating trips to the Yankee Stadium in New York.

Temple's New Stadium Evolved by Erny.

The Temple stadium represents a blending of college pride and other emotions less lofty. It was built by a real estate promoter, Charlie Erny, a Temple alumnus, in a section of Philadelphia where he was conducting his operations during the boom. Mr. Erny gave a portion of the cost, which was something between $200,000 and $300,000 and took bonds for the rest, but Temple, being so new to football, could not compete with the University of Pennsylvania. Therefore, some of the games, early in the season, were played on Friday evenings and Temple's team was called the Owls.

However, Penn has been deemphasizing football of late, having completed the stadium of Franklin Field with its 80,000 seats and other substantial souvenirs of a pinky scarlet past, so Temple now has a chance to win over the old Penn football trade and earn back Mr. Erny's funds for the glory of his alma mater. It was no more than right, of course, that so generous a donor as Mr. Erny, however mixed his motives may have been, should be honored with the post of chairman of the football committee and his enterprise in hiring Pop Warner, with his proven box-office power, will command the respect of practical men.

West Point Official Denies Rough Play by Notre Dame

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Maj. Philip Fleming, graduate manager of athletics, authorized a complete denial today of published reports that differences had arisen between Army and Notre Dame as a result of alleged roughness in the annual football game in New York November 26.

"I thought I had set at rest any such ridiculous talk two days ago when I announced we already had signed with Notre Dame for the 1933 game, that we were working on a 1934 date and that no reason whatever existed for talk of a rift between us," Maj. Fleming said.

"Army knows how to take its defeats as well as its victories. The first we heard of any charges that Notre Dame players were unduly rough was when we read newspaper stories to that effect. There was absolutely nothing to that. It was a hard game. Some of our players were bruised. No doubt some of the Notre Dame players were, too. That is simply football."

Maj. Fleming said he and the West Point football staff had not yet seen motion pictures of the Army-Notre Dame game, so this offered no basis for statements that the pictures gave grounds for criticism.

"We take movies of all our big games for future reference," said the major. "The pictures of this year's contest with Notre Dame will help when our coaching staff starts planning how to stop the Ramblers next year."

AMERICAN U. FIVE WINS FIRST, 32-16

Sells Stars as Eagles Rout Maryland State Normal.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

OSCAR SELLS, who violates every principle of orthodox grace on the basket ball floor, and whose vast body seems to have been assembled by a kid with an Erector Set, waddled, galloped and leaped about the garish confines of American University's Gymnasium last night to give his team a 32-to-16 victory over a puerile Maryland State Normal squad, in a game which put the local college basket ball season into action.

Sells, leading the closely knit play of the American team with the grace and eclat of a near-sighted buffalo gamboling about the confines of Ye Olde Antique Shoppe, scored nearly half of his team's points, shooting in his weird over-the-head manner from above a mop of riotous yellow hair which sprawled over his forehead and down his face to his chin like a flaxen Niagara.

Sells Plays Through Game.

He was great, barging into the little Towson, Md., kids who are learning to be teachers, grabbing the ball from them and then rocking back on his heels and flipping the ball through the cords. He was a vital factor in the short-passing, quick-breaking attack of American, which functioned in midseason form last night to snow the visitors under at all turns.

Normal never had a chance. Once, shortly after the start of the second half, "Straw" Matz, of Normal, flipped in a long potshot and a foul shot to haul his club to 8-14, but American took the bit in its teeth immediately, starting off with Dick's under-the-basket shot and raced headlong to victory. The alert Eagles, particularly the gangling Sells, broke up at least half of the attempts of the Marylanders to get their passing game working. Doting on long passes, the Normal boys invariably found some fleet American rush into view to intercept.

American Shows Class.

Once American had the ball it worked the horse-hide down the floor with a symphony of movement that showed the brand of basket ball coaching this little school gets every year from Walter Young. Its players darted here and there and always on and on with the shiftiness of waterbugs. The game showed that much will be heard from Gladstone Williams, and it showed once more that the veteran Sells is a star of the first magnitude, with more color than on the smock of a student artist.

The new rules, making their collegiate debuts, had little or no effect on the play of either team. Not one penalty was called for overstaying the 10-second backcourt and the 3-second forecourt decisions of the basket ball fathers.

Lewis Defends Crown Twice on Same Night

New York, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Madison Square Garden will offer something new in the way of heavyweight wrestling championships December 19, when Ed (Strangler) Lewis, recognized in this State as the world's title holder, will defend his crown against two challengers.

Lewis will wrestle Leon Pinetzki, the Polish Pole, and Sammy Stein, Hebrew champion, one after the other. Both matches will be to a finish, one fall to decide.

The novel match was arranged by Promoter Jacques Curley following a boast by Lewis that he could throw any two men in the world on the same night.

Zone Defense Reliance of Maryland

Buscher, Chase and Vincent Nucleus of Combination.

THERE'S a pair of size 12 shoes taking up seating space out at Ritchie Coliseum. They belonged to Boxie Berger. In the same place is a pair of more reasonable shoes, once the property of Ed Ronkin, also going begging. And a bright-eyed, portly little man named Burton Shipley is on the point of advertising for a couple of guys to fill them.

That just about sums up basket ball at College Park, where Maryland's current team scrimmages Georgetown this afternoon as part of its preseason training for an active year of the court game, to be climaxed when the team drops down to Atlanta to play in the Southern Conference championship which it won two years ago, by dint of the playing of Berger and Ronkin.

Men Know Maryland Style.

How to fill their shoes is more of a problem to Ship than tactics and science and so forth, for every last man on the squad is versed in Maryland's type of court warfare. The freshmen from last year were subjected to the same system, under Jack Faber, their coach.

For the time being Ship has decided that Bob Snyder, who actually looks something like Berger, will take Berger's place in the line-up, physically if not spectacularly. "Spider" Chase is the nomination for Ronkin's place. Chase is certain to be Maryland's most colorful player. Last year, as a sophomore, he made sallies in and out of the game with a blare of showmanship that actually brought customers to the games. Spiderly is more than 6 feet tall and about as wide as an E string. Chase is a sensational shot-maker, with a flair for the unusual instead of the conventional shot.

The first team, of course, will include Bucky Buscher and Rufus Vincent, hard-bitten veterans of many a basket ball war, two men who could make any team in the region. Roy Yowell, former Western High center, seems to have about the best chance of any soph of making the team.

Shipley to Keep Team Under Restraint.

Coach Shipley realizes that the spark of genius no longer sputters consistently in his squad, what with his stars taken away by graduation Thus he has decided that this year's team will be kept more under restraint than were the great combinations of the last few years, who, because of long association with one another and native basket ball talent, were allowed to roam almost at will.

For instance, Maryland will go back strictly to the zone defense, whereas last year and the year before saw the Old Line court masters breaking away from this customary Maryland procedure and hiking out on their own now and then.

A quick break is the theme song of the Maryland offense, with no great stress on short passing, as will be the case of G. W. and Georgetown.

Miller Reappointed As Grid Coach at Navy

Baltimore, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The Evening Sun said today that Edgar E. (Rip) Miller, head football coach at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, has been reappointed for another year.

Harvard Waives Rule For Charity Grid Game

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Harvard College today relaxed one of its strictest rules governing undergraduate athletes in order to allow Roger Hallawell, varsity football center, to participate in a North-South charity football game Saturday at Baltimore, Md.

It is the first time in many years that a Harvard football player has been permitted to accept an invitation to play in such a post season game.

Fonseca to Continue As Chisox Manager

Chicago, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Reports to the contrary notwithstanding, Lew Fonseca will manage the Chicago White Sox during the 1933 major league season.

J. Lewis Comiskey, owner of the club, flatly denied that Fonseca, who replaced Donie Bush after the 1931 season, would in turn be supplanted by Jimmy Dykes, third baseman obtained from the Philadelphia Athletics.

Hanley to Be Fordham Grid Coach, Reported

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The Evening Post says that Dick Hanley, coach of the Northwestern football team, has been selected to succeed Maj. Frank W. Cavanaugh as head coach at Fordham University and that his appointment will be announced shortly after January 1.

No announcement has yet come from the university except the word of Graduate Manager Jack Coffey's statement that "we will not be in a position to make any announcement until shortly after the first of the year," but the paper says word has come from two reliable sources that present plans have Hanley as the new coach and that it is "extremely unlikely" there will be any catch in the proceedings.

Ex-Furman Coach Cites Scholarships

$14,000 Worth Given in Year, Amis Says in Suit for Salary.

Greenville, S. C., Dec. 6 (A.P.).—T. B. (Dad) Amis, former head coach at Furman University here, testified in his suit against the school for $3,712.50 back salary today that one year under his regime Furman gave scholarships valued at approximately $14,000 to athletes.

Amis, who is suing for salary alleged to be due him for the nine-month period ended with August, 1932, was replaced by Coach Paul (Dizzy) McLeod.

The former coach testified Furman granted free tuition, free board and other free school expenses to some of its athletes. It was brought out in the testimony that during one year, when Billy Laval, now coach at the University of South Carolina, was coaching Furman, approximately $12,000 was granted in scholarships to athletes.

League Votes New Series Play-Off

By JAMES L. RENICK.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—A plan which would create additional interest in the American Association pennant race and prove remunerative to the players was ratified today by the association magnates attending the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Announcement of the plan left the minor league world flabbergasted, but club owners of the International League quickly announced they would consider a similar move late tonight.

Briefly, the new plan calls for a geographical division of the league into Eastern and Western groups and at the end of the season, for leaders in each division to meet in a seven-game series to decide the pennant. The plan makes it possible for a team finishing fifth in the general averages to win the pennant in the championship series.

Series Follow End of Season September 10.

Under the plan, the association season will end on September 10. The winner of the seven-game series which will follow will meet the International League champion in the annual little world series.

The AA magnates also adopted a plan similar to the bonus. In the past, only the pennant winner has shared in the little series gate receipts, but under the new plan five clubs would come in for a cut of an accumulated pool.

Next season, 5 cents will be taken by the league from each admission, as against 3 cents in previous years. The extra 2 cents will go into the players' pool, from which each player on the pennant-winning team will receive $800 if the series is lost and $1,000 if it was won. The players on the second place club will be guaranteed $600; third place, $400; fourth place, $200, and fifth place players $100 each.

Should the total receipts in the pool, plus the receipts from the little world series, fall short in a bad season, the difference would be made up by club owners. A fund of $40,000 would be needed to finance the player bonus plan.

$4,250 Salary Limit for Texas Leaguers.

A salary limit of $4,250 per month for each club exclusive of the manager's salary was adopted by the Texas League, the Western League and the Southern Association. This limit is slightly higher than that recommended by the committee of five and an attempt will be made to get the committee to change its recommendation.

The deal whereby Oklahoma City and Tulsa of the Western League would be transferred to the Texas League waxed warmer today without any official action being taken.

Believing all the cure-all schemes had been argued pro and con, the National Association attempted to convene for the first time, but after a 20-minute session adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Pin Stars in Doubles Saturday at Arcadia

Four of Washington's best bowlers will be seen in action at the Arcadia alleys Saturday in a special ten-game doubles match between Ollie Pacini and Reds Megaw paired against Paulie Harrison and Maxie Rosenberg. Activities start at 7:30 o'clock.

The second block of five games will be rolled off at a later date on the Temple drives.

Showmanship, Trading Held Vital to the Game.

Reduction in Landis' $65,000 Salary Is Also Intimated.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—On the eve of the annual major league meetings when baseball men and fans alike are wondering what steps, if any, will be taken to lift baseball out of the depression area, the sixteen club owners of the National and American Leagues have spoken their minds.

Their ideas bring out the following prospects:

Salaries of players and cost of upkeep must be cut 20 per cent.

There must be no easing of the rules bearing down on showmanship.

Training season should be shortened, perhaps prescribed by baseball law.

Trading is to be encouraged, if any one will trade.

Radio should be banned for all but world series games.

Ladies' days and boys' days are to be encouraged, along with old timers' games and even field days.

There should be no further reduction in the player limit, now 23 man.

Three Clubs Oppose Reductions.

Three clubs, the Yankees, Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves, oppose a general reduction of expenses that even intimates a reduction in the $65,000 salary of Kenesaw M. Landis.

Owners of these three clubs insist that publicity along these lines is harmful, that every team should set up its own financial standards. But with the remainder of the magnates economy is the outstanding issue.

"Baseball salaries must be cut," said Charles A. Stoneham, "principally for the reason that they were increased in good times, and no increase was made in the cost of seeing a ball game.

"The ball player, for six months' work, is receiving more than the presidents, officials and owners of 99 per cent of other businesses. Baseball is a highly speculative enterprise. The club owners assume all the risks."

CLARK GRIFFITH, WASHINGTON—"The ballplayer alone has not felt the depression. I believe he will be fair enough to realize he must take a 20 per cent reduction. I am opposed to uniform training seasons and radio except for world series."

WILLIAM E. BENSWANGER, PITTSBURGH—"A shorter training season will accomplish as much physical good. Salaries must be kept within bounds. We are against broadcasting; baseball needs the application of business common sense."

Tight Race Needed, Says Evans.

BILLY EVANS, CLEVELAND—"A club needs two things to sell the game strongly to its fans—a good ball club and a tight race. The National League is more willing to make trades. As a result they have had better balance, closer races, and increased receipts. Stronger clubs should dispose of surplus talent to weaker clubs."

GERALD P. NUGENT, PHILLIES—"I believe our player limit should be lowered to 22. One month of spring training is enough. We favor ladies' and boys' days, but are against radio. Baseball is not slipping."

EMIL FUCHS, BOSTON BRAVES—"Players should share in the good fortune of clubs, and also stand their share of financial bad luck. Training season should not start before March 1. I am strong for radio.

ROBERT QUINN, RED SOX—"If ball players will hustle every minute the fans will support baseball. The

GILBERT RIDES 3 WINNERS IN MUD AT JEFFERSON PARK

Mills Trails His Rival By Five

Col. Hatfield Winner in Feature Race for Juveniles.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Johnny Gilbert, the youthful riding sensation from Pittsburg, Kans., went five up on his equally young rival from Colorado, Hank Mills, in their duel for the season's jockey honors today when he booted home three winners at Jefferson Park, while Mills couldn't finish ahead once.

Today's triple gave Gilbert a total of 187 winners for the season against 182 for Mills. The best Hank could do during the afternoon was to finish third on two mounts.

Gilbert scored first on Buck Hero, a long shot, in the opening race. He brought Camp Bess in ahead in the sixth event and booted home another long shot, Ricciardo, which paid $15.60 in the mutuels, in the seventh and last race.

Col. Hatfield Wins Feature.

Heavy overnight rains left the racing strip sloppy, but a hot sun beat down upon the course, making overcoats a burden. The card was headed by a 6-furlong handicap for 2-year-olds, with M. B. Cohen's Col. Hatfield, the odds-on favorite.

The Colonel obliged by scoring a half-length victory over O'Connell & Rector's Paul T., but the many backers of the choice had considerable anxiety before their champion made the grade in a furious drive. Third money fell to H. Stelle's Aurebon, which, with Hank Mills up, lost the place by eight lengths.

Eisenberg and Modesto acted badly at the gate and got off slowly, the former going into the air. Odd Star, a speedy quitter, lashed into an apparently safe lead, then folded up upon reaching the home lane. Col. Hatfield, which had been kept well up, moved to the front but unexpected contention came from Paul T., a slow starter, and the favorite was under pressure to stick it out. Aurebon was an easy third.

Free Admission Looms At Jefferson Race Meet

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Elimination of admission charges for the remainder of Jefferson Park's winter race meeting loomed today as the management made a bid for attendanc comparable to other years and opened a drive on competition offered by downtown establishments where race bets are laid.

Robert S. Eddy, general manager at the track, said the experiment was prompted by Jefferson Park's sixteenth birthday party last Monday, when the gates were thrown open to the public for the day and every inch of space was jammed, in contrast to the indifferent crowds which have passed through the turnstiles in the last two weeks.

Turkey Day Crowd Only Large One.

About 5,000 turned out for the opening program on Thanksgiving Day, but since then the grandstand has not been filled, except for last Monday. Betting through the track's mutuel system has proportionately decreased.

Technically, the Jefferson admission price is $1.50, plus 15 cents tax, but actually it has been cut to around 40 cents to most of the sporting public through widespread distribution of "guest badges" by the management, which are good for admission any day with the 40-cent payment.

Even this concession, Eddy said, has failed to make attendance satisfactory. However, the free day response last Monday, he added, "was far beyond our most sanguine expectations." Whether or not elimination of admissions will be made a standing policy this year will depend on the response to another free day announced for next Monday, Eddy said.

"There is a multiplicity of poolrooms downtown and in adjacent parlshes which have become an alarming menace," Eddy's statement sadi. "They pay absolutely no revenue to the State and form a lure for many people to remain downtown. We believe that viewing the races in the open sunshine not only forms an attractive recreation but is a stimulant for the sport."

Hitting the Headpin

BEN HARE, recent winner of the veterans' tournament, will clash with Chris Graham, winner of the Baltimore bowling championship, tonight at 9 o'clock at the Recreation Alleys in the first of a three-game series to decide the South Atlantic veteran championship. Graham, former tenpin champion from the Monumental City, and his opponent, have rolled the same total for their six games—687.

In a preliminary match Tom Mahoney, second in the Baltimore tourney, will roll Ed Baker, second in the District event. Graham and Mahoney are well known to old timers here, having rolled in many intercity duckpin and tenpin matches.

Chitouras, of the Dry Cleaners, shot a 124 to win high game honors in the Dynamite League last night at Arcadia. Crymes, of Wrecking Crew, had 337 for high set. Wrecking Crew snatched both high team game and set honors with 548 and 1,545.

In the Bankers League, Biglow, of American Security & Trust Co. No. 1, reeled off a 138 high game to tie with Bourdeaux, of Union Trust. Ellis, of National Security & Trust, scored a 377 for high set honors. W. B. Hibbs & Co. had 590 and 1,646 for team honors.

Kinnahan, of Reciprocity, showed the way with a high game of 134 last night in the Civies Club League. He also shot a 348 for high set. The Optimists led with a 551 high team game, while Kiwanis bowled a high team set of 1,588.

In the Ladies' District League matches at Arcadia, the Arcadia girls made a clean sweep of the three games with Bill Woods. Pauline Ford, sharpshooter of the Arcadia team, shot a 116 for high game and 315 for high set. Her team copped game and set honors with 497 and 1,471. Mary Cox led the losers with 112.

Freeburg, of Independent Oil Co., captured individual game honors with a 144 in the North Washington League at Silver Spring. Ralph Boyd, of Rockville, shot 357 for high set. Wayside Market rolled a 573 high team game, and Independent Oil, 1,668 for high team set.

KARL GOCHENOUR rolled a 389 high set to lead Columbia to two victories over Petworth last night in the Men's District League. Gochenour had games of 130, 122, and 137.

The leading Occidental quint turned back Georgetown in two out of three games.

In the National Capital League the leading King's Palace team lost its first match of the season and came close to being shut out, but for a victory in the roll-off in the first game. Farnam's Bowling Shoes, led by Magnus Wood, with 376, and Al Fischer, with 144, turned the trick in the next two games.

Lorraine Guill, eagle-eyed bowler of the King Pin team, conducted her team to a two-game victory over Lucky Strike last night in the Ladies' District League. She rolled the highest set of the league—118, 131, 118 for 367. King Pin led the teams with a 559 high game and 1,575 high set.

Georgetown Recreation swept Meyer-Davis at King Pin, with Bess Ackman shooting a high game of 133 and set of 356. The leading Columbia girls dropped two games to the champion Rendezvous as Irene Scott crashed through with a 128 high game and 348 high set.

Petworth girls beat Recreation two out of three at Lucy Strike. Katherine Federline, of the victors, had high set with 299, and Gladys Mills, of Petworth, 119 for high team game.

John Bogan of Lavulate set a new high team game record with a smashing 162 in the Bureau of Standards League last night at the Columbia alleys. He shot a set of 369. B. T. U. had a 1,592 high team set and Engineers, 558 high team game.

Takoma Phil-Gas won by a whisker from Brightwood Postoffice last night at Takoma by a score of 2-1. But that doesn't tell the story. One of its games was won by one pin and the other on a roll-off after the two clubs had tied.

Colorado Service Station, 3, Takoma Postoffice, 0; Fruit Growers Express, 2, Park View Market, 1, were other results. In the Colorado-Postoffice match, Sincell had a 392 set and a 163 game.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: JEFFERSON PARK, DEC. 7.

Hank Mills is beginning to believe mama isn't a very good mascot. He's been doing his principal riding back in the fields, while Gilbert has stepped away to a five-winner lead. The boys were ready to throw away their badges here today. It looks like free admission will be in order for the remainder of the meeting. Something must be done to compete with the poolrooms downtown which are drawing more customers than the track. I believe the move will lead to a profit in the mutuels. Possibly, with the example set here, the Maryland tracks will cut their price to a buck next spring. As I have said before, few turf fans kick about losing a bet or two, but all seem to begrudge that $1.65 at the gate. The boys in the press box like the idea of the Bowie meeting following Pimlico this spring. I had two winners today.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—SMEAR disappointed me the last time and I can't believe that was the best after the trials shown me. The off track will not hinder this one and I look for the real race. JACK MURPHY moves up with this kind of going and may be pressing the top one. CHIANTI for the show.

SECOND RACE—I'm going to try fighting fire with fire in this. The long shots have been upsetting me, now let's see if I can make the moon-shooters run one, two, three. Here they are MARION ORMONT, PETABIT and MORSNUFF.

THIRD RACE—DRURY will appreciate the soft footing and may provide the boys with an upset in this. THE BREAK and HAL RILEY appear the best of the others.

FOURTH RACE—I'm taking a pair that I followed closely in Maryland to run first and second here. FLIRTING will like this kind of a field as will FLORA CANTER. BLACK FLASH appears best of the juveniles.

FIFTH RACE—I first became acquainted with SANDWRACK in a mud race and I know this one can strut a mean hoof in the going. Forced to put STARBOARD LIGHT second and FIRST MISSION third. The last named is a good take-a-chance wager.

SIXTH RACE—ARROW was a promising juvenile before developing leg trouble and now is reserved for tracks of the kind to prevail tomorrow. Expect this one to shoot straight home at surprising mutuels. PRECEDE and LORD TOURNAMENT to beat the others.

SEVENTH RACE—LILLYBET gets one more chance. RIFF RAFF is at home on this kind of a track. RAFFLER CON gets in light and wouldn't surprise me by taking it all.

THE POST'S CONSENSUS AT JEFFERSON PARK

DUTRA LEADS IN FRISCO OPEN

Shoots Subpar 70 to Win Medal Honor by 2 Strokes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Drives that split every fairway and deft putting gave Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, Calif., National Professional Golfers Association 1932 champion, a subpar 70 and medal honors for the first 18-hole qualifying round of the San Francisco National Open match play tournament today.

The 6-foot, 200-pound Spaniard shaded par figures by the single stroke to show the way over the tricky Lakeside course to some 175 entrants. He was out in 34, with a birdie 3 on the sixth, and came home in 36, even par for the incoming stretch.

Only Dutra was able to match the par test of the course. Two strokes behind him were Jimmy Thomson, of Colorado Springs, and Charley Sheppard, of Oakland, Northern California Open titleholder.

Horton Smith Barely Qualifies.

While most of the better known touring pros were able to land in the ranks of the 64 qualifiers, Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., remained in the running only after the second nine comeback that saw him equal par 36 for a total of 77. He had a disastrous first nine with a 41, three-putting four greens.

Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente, winner of the 1930 tournament, qualified at 78 strokes, along with Al Espinoss, of Akron, Ohio; Ben Coltrin, of Oakland; Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y.; Romie Espinosa, of San Francisco; Russ Conroy, of San Francisco, and Mike Demassey, of Fresno, Calif.

Tied at the 74-stroke station were Mortie Dutra, of Long Beach, Calif.; Willie Hunter, of Los Angeles; Joe Frank, of Milwaukee, and Bud Ward, young amateur from Olympia, Wash.

Georgetown Prep Five Wins at Towson, 34-22

Towson, Md., Dec. 7.—Paced by Tom Keating, Allen and Capt. Nee, Georgetown Prep opened its basket ball season this afternoon with a 34-22 victory over Immaculate High School.

CARDINALS TO START.

The football season is over, but the malady lingers on.

From Catholic University come news that Tommy Whelan, Buster Sheary and Vinny Fraatz, Cardinal backs and end, will start in the North-South charity game to be played in Baltimore Saturday.

ALL-AMERICANS MEET.

Coach Ray Smythe has requested members of the All-American football squad to report for special instructions regarding the remaining schedule today between 4:30 and 7:30 at room 100, Star Building.

Stars from unlimited and 150-pound elevens wishing to join this all-star team are invited to apply during these hours. Teams interested in playing the All-American team should communicate with Mr. Smythe.

DELAWARE-HUDSON WINS.

Delaware & Hudson overwhelmed Washington Preps last night at Central High, 40 to 13. At the turn, the victors were in front, 20 to 9. Garber led in scoring with 10 points.

Armour's Partner Helps With Ace

Ted Johnson, Post Staff Photographer.

Sandy Armour, master of the mashie shot, illustrates above his form and technique. At left Armour is shown at the moment of contact with the ball, the weight shifted back to the left leg, but the head still in back of the ball. At right, Armour starts his follow through, with his right arm straightening and right hand passing over the left and head still behind the ball.

By SANDY ARMOUR
(Congressional Country Club Pro).
As Told to Dave Herman, Post Staff Golf Writer.

IT has been my good fortune to play in a number of matches in which some player in the foursome has made a brilliant mashie shot. Also, I have been a witness to possibly hundreds of spectacular shots made by some of our national stars, but I prefer to recall some outstanding shots at my own course.

I shall never forget that great mashie shot made by my brother, Tommy, over in Edinburgh back in 1914 in a four-ball Scotch championship—one of the finest of that type I have ever seen. Playing his second to a difficult plateau green, with the hole on the left hand side ten feet from the edge, Tommy came within inches of holing out for an eagle from 160 yards away. It was the first big tournament of that kind he had played together with me.

In 1923 at Inwood I saw Bobby Cruickshank execute two beautiful shots to tie Bobby Jones for first place in the national open championship. After taking a 6 on the seventieth hole, Cruickshank played a great mashie shot on the seventy-first for his 4 and needing a birdie 3 to tie, sent a brilliant No. 2 iron shot dead to the pin on the last hole.

Mason Proves Real Help.

I was playing in a four-ball match with Guy Mason as my partner one afternoon. Standing on the sixteenth tee, the state of the match was 1 up and 3 to play in our favor. Our opponents had the honor and played two really excellent shots close to the flag. My shot was on the green, but anything but good. Turning to Mr. Mason I said, 'I need your help now, boy."

The hole measured 135 yards and a smart breeze was right against him. Taking his mashie, he hit one of the most beautiful shots I ever saw him play. The ball flew straight at the flag, dropped about 4 feet from the hole and trickled in for an ace.

Ten weeks later it was my pleasure to see Mason hole one at our then thirteenth with the same club. Two aces in three months!

In another match I played against that sterling combination of Dr. Bruce L. Taylor and John Tierney, the latter being one of our most promising young players. At the seventeenth tee we were 1 up.

Both Hit Good Drives.

Tierney and I hit good drives down the left side of the fairway. I was perhaps a little in front, but to the right, so that it was rather difficult to tell just who had to play first. Without hesitation I said, "I'm away, John." I figured that if I put the next one close it wouldn't make John's shot any easier. And put it close I did, but not close enough, as it turned out.

Then Tierney hit a crisp shot with his mashie that never left the flag and finished in the hole for a deuce. It was holed from easily 150 yards.

Only a week ago I ran into another brilliant shot playing with Luther Steward, jr., and his father. At the eleventh hole, 430 yards, the younger Steward had a powerful drive. He took out his mashie and holed his second shot for a deuce.

Water Polo Saturday In Pool at Shoreham

Washington's first glimpse of indoor water polo, rated by many as the roughest sport in the sports-world, may be had Saturday night at the Shoreham pool when teams representing the Washington Canoe Club and the Baltimore Y. M. C. A. hold a slugfest.

Officials of the contest stated last night that the rule against holding a player under the water more than five minutes will be rigidly enforced.

Cantwell to Be Feted Tonight by "G" Club

The varsity G club, of Georgetown, will hold a testimonial dinner tonight at the University Club in honor of Thomas A. Cantwell, past general chairman of the League of Boys Letter Men.

Mr. Cantwell will be presented with the Georgetown University athletic medal for his work in connection with the varsity G dinners which annually give honor to Hilltop athletes.

A. A. U. Official Off On Didrikson Quiz

New Orleans Head Goes to Dallas to Make Investigation.

New Orleans, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Lawrence di Benedetto, chairman of the registration committee of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union, said today he wotuld leave here tonight for Dallas, Tex., to investigate the charges of Mildred Babe Didrikson, woman athlete, that the use of her indorsement in an automobile advertisement was without her permission.

The union suspended her from amateur competition as a result of the advertisement.

Mr. Benedetto said he would arrive at Dallas about noon tomorrow. He said he would not hand down any ruling on Miss Didrikson's status until after a decision has been reached later by the registration committee.

District Court Officials To Discuss New Rules

A round-table discussion of the new basket ball rules will be held at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night at 8 o'clock by the District Basket Ball Officials Association. All court coaches, players and fans of Washington are invited to attend.

Government League Fives Meet Tonight

Teams planning entrance in the Government Basket Ball League will elect officers and formulate final plans for their second championship season this evening in the Hurley-Wright Building, Eighteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. The meeting starts at 8 p. m. in room 311, and prexy Vic Gauzza urges all representatives to appear.

Stocks Continue Advances On Favorable Trade Data

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Stocks were mildly ambitious today, but had some difficulty in adding to gains of the previous session. However, the tone was generally firm and the market closed with a small average advance.

The President's budget message recommending sweeping economies, together with a stronger pound sterling, favorable terms of the new Government financing and indications that car loadings for last week had made a reasonably good increase from the Thanksgiving Day period, were mentioned in Wall street as reasons for maintainance of the upward trend. Wheat firmed, while bonds looked stouter.

If stock market professionals had turned to the buying side they would have found meager support from the outside. Prices bubbled up briskly for a time in the morning, and the tape fell a minute or two behind, but this effervescence quickly lost its vigor and quotations slid off in much quieter trading during the afternoon. Oils had a flurry that had better staying powers, their move anticipating the Texas Railroad Commission's order for a reduction in allowable output.

Save for small fractional losses by U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone and a few others, leading issues showed general, if narrow, net advances, although even at their best quotations had been scarcely more than a point higher. Union Pacific sagged a point and American Waterworks lost on its dividend reduction to a $1 annual basis from $2. Texas Corporation and Standard Oil of New Jersey improved a point. International Telephone steadied with more favorable reports regarding its Spanish "situation." Du Pont, Chrysler, Harvester, Montgomery Ward, International Silver, Case, Missouri Pacific, Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio were up fractions to about a point. Sales totaled 1,194,349 shares.

Sterling's rise of approximately 4 cents seemed to reflect covering by shorts, who hesitated to maintain a given position for very long, in view of the debt uncertainties. French francs yielded slightly; meanwhile, a $1,000,008 French gold shipment reached New York, the largest since May, 1931, and the possibility of further imports still lurked in the franc's proximity to the gold point.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Wed.	Tues.
Advances	286	330
Declines	148	130
Unchanged	160	117
Total issues traded	594	577

Stocks.

Advances of two-tenths of a point were recorded after an early struggle to continue Tuesday's upturn. The market, however, maintained a firm tone, and sales mounted slightly to 1,194,349 shares. Improvement in the pound, a rise in grains and the President's message on economies aided the upward trend.

Bonds.

United States and foreign government loans led bonds out of low ground into a cheerful advance. Three-tenths of a point average gain changed the market movement. The volume of sales increased to $9,416,000. Industrials and rails joined the advance.

Curb.

Early gains were trimmed somewhat under a pressure in late trading. The turnover remained at the former mark of 180,000 shares. Oils and utilities closed higher. Most gains were small.

Wheat.

Possibilities of crop damage to winter wheat by a cold wave caused a brisk upturn in prices. Also a 3,000,000-bushel Canadian export business was a bullish factor. December wheat sold at 44¾ to 44⅞ cents.

Cotton.

The market closed 1 to 5 points down after various fluctuations. Southern selling and liquidating were blamed. March contracts sold at 5.74. Liverpool reported that hedging and Bombay selling were offset by local buying.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Business was quiet on the stock exchange pending debt payment developments, but overnight Wall street advices and the advance in sterling exchange helped gilt-edged securitis. Transatlantic and gold mining shares also improved. Realizing later caused a shading in prices, and the closing was irregular.

Paris—A better tendency was maintained on the bourse, although the market was irregular and hesitant at times. Optimism regarding international problems continues. The closing was steady.

EARLY CURB UPTURN REDUCED IN TRADING

Oils and Utilities Advance as Sales Continue at 180,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The curb market managed to extend the advances of the previous session today, but encountered some opposition in the latter part of the session, and final prices in several instances were off from the day's best.

The day's volume of 180,000 shares duplicated that of yesterday. Electric Bond & Share continued to churn about actively, and after rising ¾ of a point, reacted in the final dealings to close with a net loss of ⅝ of a point.

Utilities generally finished higher, however. Net gains of 1 to ? points were registered in American Gas, Commonwealth Edison, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Columbia Gas preferred, and Montreal Light. Duke Power made one of its infrequent appearances at 53½, up 6½ since it last traded.

Oils were generally firm, although gains were limited to minor fractions in such issues as Gulf and Indiana.

Among the mining issues Lake Shore ran into profit taking and closed a fraction lower. Industrials were irregularly higher. Aluminum gained 3, then lost half its advance. Novadel Agene rose ¾ to another 1932 peak. Pan-American Airways appeared at 23, up nearly 3 points, and Irving Airchute gained nearly a point. Parker Rust lost a couple of points.

Electric Power Production Boosted During Past Week

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The National Electric Light Association reported today that power production in the United States increased last week, but the rise was considerably smaller than occurred in the comparable period of the preceding three years.

Output totaled 1,510,337,000 kilowatt hours against 1,475,268,000 for the week ended November 26. This improvement of 35,069,000 compared with increases of roughly 71,000,000 kilowatt hours in 1931, 75,000,000 in 1930, and 88,000,000 in 1929. The percentage decrease from 1931 was 9.6 against a decline of 7.8 per cent in the previous week.

The Atlantic seaboard showed production as 7.7 per rent under 1931, against a recession of 5.6 per cent the week before; New England alone, 7.3 per cent against 3.7; central industrial region, 12.3 per rent against 10.2 per cent, and Pacific Coast States, 7.9 per cent, unchanged.

Capital Groups Offer New Issue

Abner Drury Brewery, Inc., Shares Being Sold to Investors.

Local interests are offering a participation of 30,000 shares of a new company known as the Abner Drury Brewery, Inc., on a when, as and if issued basis (which will obtain a lease from the Abner Drury Co. for a period of approximately five years, with an option to purchase the property).

The Abner Drury Co., it is stated, is the only brewery located in the District of Columbia which is now operating under a Government permit and which is equipped to manufacture, sell and distribute near-beer for beverage purposes. In the event of modification or a change of existing laws to permit the manufacture and sale of beer for beverage purposes in the District of Columbia containing a greater alcoholic content than one-half of 1 per cent, the corporation will be in a position immediately to brew and sell such beer as may be permitted.

The famous "Royal Pilsen" brand is well known in Washington and the company still has with it the German brewmaster, who has been in its employ since 1897.

59,880 Barrels Cut From Texas Oil Yield

Austin, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The State Railroad Commission today revised allowables of Texas oil fields to cut an aggregate of 59,880 barrels daily from the permissible output, effective Saturday.

The new aggregate total of Texas fields was fixed at 789,745 barrels daily, against 849,625 barrels daily under the old schedule. The east Texas field allowable was reduced from 325,000 to 310,000 barrels daily.

Pound Leads Rise In Exchange Mart

Sterling Gains 3 3-4 Cents at $3.24 1-2 by Cable; Franc Declines.

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—The British pound sterling resumed its leadership of the foreign exchange market today, gaining 3¾ cents at a cable rate of $3.24½. At the same time the French franc was again under some pressure, easing one-sixteenth of a cent, to 3.90 7-16 cents, while the gold currencies of Belgium and Holland were soft and the Swiss franc was barely steady.

Further recovery of sterling was attributed by some dealers partly to extensive short covering by speculators who were apprehensive of some support for the pound from the Bank of England control. Banking circles also were of the opinion that the British treasury had already obtained sufficient dollar balances here to meet its war loan payment on December 15.

Informed financial quarters were of the opinion that sterling recently had received no official support and that wide fluctuations might be expected, as long as the war loan uncertainties were present. The Scandinavians and Canadian dollars firmed in sympathy with the pound, and moderate gains were registered by Italian lire, Japanese yen, Shanghai taels and Mexican pesos. Spansh pesetas eased fractionally.

Print Cloths in Demand.

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Print cloths sold freely today on a basis of 3⅛ cents for December-February deliveries of some lines. Other goods were quiet. Burlap was unchanged. Moderate sales of overcoatings and dress materials were reported. February sales of rayon are being made by some of the smaller factors.

BONDS SENT HIGHER IN CHEERFUL SALES

Three-Tenths Gain Recorded as Turnover Climbs to $9,416,000.

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Led by United States and foreign government loans, the bond market reversed its declining trend today and gave the most cheerful performance of the last several weeks.

While gains of 1 to 3 or more points in the domestic section were principally confined to rail and utility specialties of the more speculative types, firmness was the rule in most categories and minus signs were greatly in the minority.

Sales totaled $9,416,000, par value, the largest turnover since October 13, while the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds advanced three-tenths of a point.

In the Federal list Liberty 3½s and Treasury 3¾s of 1940-43 were up fractionally to new 1932 highs. The most active of this group, however, were Treasury 3s and 3½s, which advanced 6-32ds and 4-32ds of a point each. Announcement of the Treasury's new financing terms for December involving an offering of $600,000,000 of notes and certificates at the lowest known rate for the latter, brought a demand for the longer term Government issues.

Gains of a point or more were recorded by bonds of Great Britain, Argentina, Australia, Belgium, France, Germany, New South Wales, Norway, Sydney City and Prussian Free State. French 7s and 7½s were up to new year's tops, although the 7s reacted in late trading. Japanese issues turned soft after earlier firmness.

In the domestic sector the best gains were registered by some bonds of Allegheny Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, all of the Canadian railways, Chicago Great Western, Burlington, Chesapeake Corporation, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande, International Telephone, Erie, Great Northern, Illinois Central, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Frisco, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Texas & Pacific and Union Pacific. Both American Telephone debenture 5s equaled their year's highs and Consolidated Gas 4½s and Brooklyn Gas 5s sold at their best prices for 1932.

Steel Ingot Production Drops to 16 Per Cent

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Steel ingot production this week is off 1 percentage point, to 16 per cent of the country's capacity, Iron Age said today. Shrinkage in new business and shipping orders in the last few weeks "indicates further curtailment this month, particularly in the final fortnight."

"In States such as Ohio," said the review, "where there is a tax on inventories at the end of the year, some plants will operate little or no steel-making capacity late in the month, but as an offset other companies will try to find extra work, so that they may fatten the Christmas pay envelopes of employes. Such efforts may tend to prevent a sharp drop in steel mill activity."

WHEAT VALUES RISE ON WEATHER REPORT

Cold Wave Expected to Hit Winter Crop; Corn and Oats Advance.

Chicago, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Possibilities of severe crop damage to United States winter wheat by a cold wave tonight led to a brisk upturn in grain prices today.

Another factor which tended to hoist the wheat market was an estimate that export business from Canada in the last 48 hours had aggregated 3,000,000 bushels.

Wheat closed firm, ⅜ to 1⅛ above yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ to ½ up; oats, also ⅛ to ½ advance, and provisions varying fom 15 cents decline to 7 cents gain.

Indications pointed to subzero temperatures overspeading a wide area, and there was much apprehension expressed regarding the effect on wheat, West and Southwest in particular. A lively advance in British exchange was also construed as bullish, together with predictions of lightweight grain in sections of Argentina this season.

Another Strength Factor.

A further strengthening factor was evidence that domestic millers today were actively purchasing future deliveries of wheat here.

Despite big export purchasing of Canadian wheat, the Winnipeg market appeared to be inclined to drag.

Resistance shown to upturns in securities at New York served also at times to act as a curb on wheat market gains, and so, too, did word of more favorable weather for the wheat harvest in Argentina, together with caution regarding uncertain effects of farm legislation at Washington.

Corn and oats were responsive to wheat price gains and to wintry weather prospects.

TREASURY TO OFFER $600,000,000 LOANS

Issues to Be Split Up Into Notes and Certificates of Indebtedness.

(Associated Press.)

The Treasury is to undertake at least $600,000,000 of new financing to meet December payments.

Secretary Mills announced last night subscriptions would be taken for $350,000,000 or more in four-year, 2¾ per cent notes and $250,000,000 or more in one-year certificates of indebtedness bearing 3 to 4 per cent interest.

The rate of interest on the securities reflected the easy money rates now prevailing and was said by officials to be the lowest on that class of securities in recent years.

Needs for Money.

The money derived from the sale will be used in paying $604,000,000 in one-year 3¼ per cent notes which mature on December 15, and $100,000,000 interest on the public debt due that day.

The Treasury notes will be dated December 15 and mature on December 15, 1936, while the certificates will mature on December 15, 1933. The notes and certificates will be exempt from all taxation, both as to principal and interest, except estate and inheritance taxes.

Secretary Mills said that subscriptions for the notes in which the maturing notes are offered in payment would be given preferred allotment up to not less than $210,000,000, and for the certificates up to not less than $150,000,000.

Total Securities Issued.

The $600,000,000 issue will bring to $8,100,000,000 the amount of securities issued by the Government in the present fiscal year, starting last July 1. On August 1 it sold two note issues, totaling $710,000,000, while on September 15, it floated certificates and note issues amounting to $1,285,000,000. On October 15 it sold $508,000,000 worth of notes.

Although the December financing takes care of the Government's immediate needs, it faces the necessity of retiring $1,450,000,000 more of securities before the end of the fiscal year, next June 30.

In February, $144,000,000 of one-year certificates come due, with $660,000,000 in the same sort of paper maturing on March 15. The same day the "baby" bonds bearing 2 per cent interest and issued for the committee directing President Hoover's antihoarding drive must be paid.

Only $33,000,000 of the bonds were sold. In May, $239,000,000 of certificates fall due, and on June 15 another batch of the same kind of securities amounting to $374,000,000 matures.

It had been expected in financial circles that the Government would borrow a greater amount, but the Treasury asked only for enough to meet the payments that must be made on December 15.

The expectation of a larger offering was based on the fact that the Government has a large deficit for the present fiscal year, which on December 3 amounted to $751,619,646.

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, K. C., is asked by Sir Simon Flaquer, a noted English solicitor, to defend Mrs. Paradine, who has been arrested for the murder of her husband, who had been blinded in the war and had been decorated with the V. C. Sir Simon tells Keane that Mrs. Paradine is a beautiful Dane, who had been rescued from a life of degradation in Copenhagen by an American diplomat, taken as a servant to America and later made her way to England. She'd married Maj. Paradine after the war. He agrees to handle the case and becomes immediately intensely interested in it.

Sir Malcolm is happily married to Gay, but when he calls on Mrs. Paradine at Holloway jail he feels the strange fascination of his beautiful client. He is worried because Lord Horfield might be named as judge of the trial and endeavors to be friendly to him. He and Gay give a little dinner party to which they ask Lord and Lady Horfield.

LORD HORFIELD smiled and his pale tongue showed for a moment, feeling its way around his lower teeth.

"A strange face, but beautiful, somehow. There was a painful scene when I had played the last bar. Paradine got up from his chair and began to make his way toward the door. His face—it was quite awful. No one should have seen it. No one should ever see a man's face when—there are things that should be hidden from every one. He stumbled against an armchair. Then she went to him, to help him away. When she touched him—he broke up altogether. The knowledge that a woman was seeing him in that state seemed to drive him mad. He said something to her that I shan't forget. He thrust her away and managed somehow to find a door for himself and get out. We were left together. And I must say she was marvelous. She began to discuss—of all composers, Mozart! Not a word of allusion to what had happened, but—just Mozart! A most extraordinary woman!"

"Any more wine, Lord Horfield?"

"No, thank you, Keane. I've had my allowance."

"And won't any of you——? Then shall we go upstairs?"

In the drawing room Arthur Lieberstein presently sat down at the Steinway piano and played his transcription of "The Blue Danube." While he was enchanting them all, Lord Horfield, over a faint smile, watched Keane, who sat with his long legs crossed looking down.

As Sir Simon was leaving later on with his wife and daughter he whispered in Keane's ear:

"We shan't want Lieberstein as a witness, shall we?"

* * * * * * *

When their guests had gone Keane, who was looking preoccupied, said to Gay:

"Nearly midnight! They stayed late, so I hope they enjoyed it."

"We didn't go into dinner till twenty minutes to nine. And then Arthur Lieberstein's playing!"

"Marvelous, wasn't it? But I quite understand that——"

He stopped short.

"Yes—what?" said Gay.

"There's something tormenting in that music, and in the way he plays it. I thought, 'Thank God, I'm happy. Otherwise, I simply couldn't stand such music.'"

"That was it!" said Gay. "Well, bedtime. Must you work tonight, Malcolm?"

"I'm afraid I must, dear. But I'll try to make it short."

As she was going out of the room Gay said over her shoulder:

"I don't know how you manage to get back to your working brain at midnight after hearing music like Arthur Lieberstein's. I couldn't."

"I have to," said Keane. "It's my life job."

And he felt, for the first time, that she was resenting his work. For a moment he thought of giving it up and staying with her. But what Lieberstein had told him that night about Col. Paradine had acted as a spur to his working brain. He longed to be shut up alone in his library.

When he was there he opened the long drawer in his writing table and took out the photograph he had bought in Regent street. It had 'ain there face downward. He had long ago taken it out of its envelope. He sat down, placed it in front of him on the table and studied it for a long time.

She was strange, enigmatic, perhaps, full of very peculiar and individual beauty that must appeal strongly to certain people, but that might not attract every one. There was something remote in her appearance. And then that very curious blank look which had puzzled him once or twice when he had been with her! Was it a natural look that came without her knowing that it came? Or was it an expression deliberately assumed by her? Or was it merely a sort of trick, a mannerism? He could not be sure about that. Anyhow, when it came, it rendered her quite unreadable.

Suddenly, Keane found himself wondering what Gay would think of this woman? He had a great wish to carry the photograph to their bedroom, show it to her and say:

"What sort of woman is that? Tell me frankly what you think about her."

He had a great wish; he had also a great reluctance. And he took up the photograph, dropped it into the drawer and shut the drawer on it.

He wasn't going to do that, wasn't going to show the photograph to Gay. Gay had nothing to do with his cases, and this was a case.

* * * * * * *

And now to study it once more.

The magistrate before whom Mrs Paradine's case came up at Bow street was Sir Charles Draker, the premier magistrate of London, a man whom Keane knew well and greatly respected. The proceedings ended, as Keane and Sir Simon had foreseen, in the committal of Mrs. Paradine for trial at the Old Bailey, bail being refused. During the hearings before the magistrate the public were not admitted, but the press were, and long accounts of the proceedings appeared in the principal papers. In consequence all the world began to talk about the case and Mrs. Paradine's name was in every mouth. Her character was debated, her antecedents were discussed, her probable fate was canvassed, and her photographs were sold by the thousand.

Mrs. Paradine was admirable throughout this prelude to the great ordeal of her trial. She pleaded, of course, not guilty, and by the advice of her solicitor and counsel reserved her evidence till the trial. Her demeanor in the police court Keane thought was perfect. She was simple, apparently composed, unemotional, yet gave no impression of hardness. She had no tricks, no feminine wiles intended to create an effect upon the court, did not seem either cast down and fearful or brazenly confident. When her humble beginnings were described she showed no shame of the snob unveiled. Nor did she strike the pathetic note. Yet in what might perhaps be thought by some her detachment there was nothing inhuman. She was not a woman deliberately presenting herself as an enigma. She seemed an unusual woman not trying to be unusual, but being just simply herself.

Both Sir Simon and Keane believed that the impression she made upon the court was excellent. But they did not tell her so. They had agreed together that nothing must be done to create or foster self-consciousness in her.

As a practical lawyer Keane realized that the evidence against her was strong.

There was unfortunately no doubt that Col. Paradine's death was not a natural one. He had been done to death, either by himself or by some one else. If he had not been blind it might, perhaps, have been possible to convince a jury that he had committed suicide, but a blind man could not have managed deliberately to poison himself, as Col. Paradine had been poisoned, without assistance. And if his wife had helped him to death—even at his own request—and this she absolutely denied—it would be practically impossible to make a jury believe that she had not been an intentional murderess, acting from self-interest and not under the influence of the dead man. A jury might easily be induced to think that such a man as Col. Paradine was known to have been had to find life in blindness sufficiently intolerable to wish to be out of it. Keane could imagine himself with exquisite subtlety leading them step by step to such a conviction. But though they might even sympathize with a desire for, and an intention to commit, suicide in such circumstances that would not save Mrs. Paradine if they suspected her of being an accessory.

When brooding over the case Keane's mind incessantly returned to one figure in it who was going to be called at the trial as a witness by the crown, Paradine's valet, William Marsh.

This man, who had been a private in Col. Paradine's regiment and had at one time been his batman, had not held the position of an ordinary valet in the Paradine household. Owing to his master's affliction of blindness he had been more in his intimacy than a valet generally is with the one whom he serves. He had often taken the colonel out, gone with him for walks, kept him company when he would otherwise have been alone. They had been more together than master and servant are as a rule. The colonel depended on William Marsh and there seemed little doubt that Marsh had a fanatical admiration for, and devotion to the colonel.

Fanatical! That was the point, that was the danger point, in connection with William Marsh, and Keane always had it in his mind when he was brooding over the Paradine case. A fanatic, yet full of the major virtues, faithful, courageous, warm hearted, implacably honest. Decorated, too, like his master, though not with the Victoria Cross. The sort of a man the British public responds to with all the heat of its boiling sentimentality, the sort of man to carry immense weight with a British jury.

And this man was hostile to Mrs. Paradine; this man apparently believed that she had murdered the blind man.

THE ONCE OVER

H. I. PHILLIPS

THE NEW AUTO LICENSE PLATES.

SCENE—Any registration bureau.

Q.—How long have you driven an automobile?

A.—One hundred years.

Q.—That's impossible.

A.—Well, coming home last week-end in a line of Sunday drivers it certainly seemed that long.

* * * *

Q.—Were you ever arrested for violating the automobile laws?

A.—No, but I've had lots of offers.

* * * *

Q.—Has your license ever been revoked?

A.—Once or twice.

* * * *

Q.—What for?

A.—For not moving over and letting a bigger car go by.

* * * *

Q.—When your license was revoked, how long did it keep you from operating a car?

A.—It didn't stop me at all. I kept right on driving.

Q.—You mean to say you drove without a license?

A.—Yes; in fact, I never even missed it!

* * * *

Q.—Has there ever been any insanity in your family?

A.—Only since they began putting stop lights at every crossing.

* * * *

Q.—How many thousand miles have you driven a car?

A.—Roughly?

Q.—No, in the city limits.

A.—I couldn't tell without going back over my tires.

* * * *

Q.—Now, what color plates would you like this year?

A.—What colors have you?

Q.—I asked you first.

A.—All right; I'll take yellow with black letters.

Q.—All we have is red with blue letters?

A.—I'll take those. Do I get any allowance on my old plates?

Q.—No; we had to cut that out. People were always asking too much for them on the ground they had used them only one season.

A.—After all, a license plate doesn't really get well broken in until it's been operated a year or so.

Q.—You think so?

A.—I have a friend who has driven the same license plate for the last five years and he says it is as good as new.

Q.—Do you believe that?

A.—Sure. You see, he never abused it!

* * * *

A.—Will you take a check?

Q.—No. I've never seen you before.

Owner Reports Theft of All Fixtures From 4 Vacant Houses.

Apparently weight, bulk and type of loot means nothing to the modern-day housebreaker.

Louis P. Shoemaker, of 1719 K street northwest, reported to police yesterday that burglars had ransacked four vacant houses, of which he is owner, at 34, 36, 46 and 48 G street southwest, and made off with all the plumbing and electrical fixtures, and topped the loot off with four coal stoves, one from each house, all of which is valued at about $700.

St. Patrick

Sesqui-Millennium of His Landing in Erin to Be Marked at C. U.

The sesquimillennium of the landing of St. Patrick in Ireland in the year 432 will be observed in a series of three public meetings at Catholic University which will begin this afternoon in the auditorium of the Music Building.

The Rev. Dr. James E. Geary will speak today on "Celts" and the Right Rev. Mgr. Hugh T. Henry will speak on "Poems of St. Patrick." Dr. Patrick J. Lennox, professor of English language and literature, will preside.

Another meeting will be held at 8 p. m. Sunday and the last on next Wednesday at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Harry Steele Moyer, of 3901 Connecticut avenue, was elected regent of the College of Notre Dame of Maryland Alumni Association at a meeting of the executive committee yesterday afternoon. Mrs. John Ellington was named secretary-treasurer.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL TO BE NAMED FOR WOODROW WILSON

Foxhall Village Elementary to Honor Memory of Rose Lees Hardy.

Washington's new senior high school, to be built in the Fort Reno section, will be named after Woodrow Wilson, it was decided by the Board of Education yesterday. An appropriation for the school, plans for which have been drawn, is included in the new school budget, presented to Congress yesterday.

The memory of Miss Rose Lees Hardy, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of elementary education, who died recently, will be honored in the naming of the new elementary school in Foxhall Village.

The board voted to abolish the position held by Miss Hardy, as an economy measure, and substituted a director of elementary school instruction at a lower salary. The appointment will be made in the near future.

Two Other Schools Named.

Names were given two other new schools, the new junior high school to be established in the M street building to be named after Robert H. Terrell, former Municipal Court Judge, and the elementary school to be established in the old Business School building, after Archibald H. Grimke, one of the founders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and for a number of years United States Minister to Haiti.

On recommendation of Superintendent Frank W. Ballou, the board opposed the proposal of the Federation of Citizens Associations that graduates of the teachers colleges be given preference in senior and junior high school positions over experienced teachers from other cities.

Dr. Ballou pointed out that the teacher colleges graduates are qualified only to teach in the elementary schools. Objection was voiced by Mrs. Mary McNeil, who said that the more experienced teachers should be assigned to instruct young children, "as the latter need the benefit of the more mature training."

Book Stores Defended.

A stanch defense of local book stores against competition by school book stores was given by Superintendent Ballou when he submitted a proposal that the book store at McKinley High School be discontinued after the present stock of books and educational supplies is exhausted.

Book store proprietors had objected to the operation of the school book store. Dr. Ballou said that while he regretted the tone of the book store owners, he agreed with them that they were being subjected to unfair competition.

Henry Gilligan, board member, after learning that the school store is a convenience to night school students, asked that the matter go over to the next meeting.

Gifts to Chest.

Dr. Ballou reported that 72 per cent of the school employes contributed to the Community Chest. Of 4,000 employes, 2,881 made pledges, contributing a total of $27,861 of a quota of $50,583.

The superintendent also announced that teachers' debts to local business establishments have been reduced to the extent of six cases in the white schools and two in the colored. Satisfactory arrangements have been made in all the other cases, he said.

The board approved the recommendation of Mrs. Marion Wade Doyle, chairman of the personnel committee, that the superintendent investigate the possibility of arranging a high school rating for the benefit of children of lower than average intelligence.

Cooperation Is Urged.

Mrs. Doyle recommended a closer cooperation with the research department of public schools, which arranges intelligence and achievement tests, through a committee of teachers. The time consumed in correcting tests should be reduced, she said. Continuation of the child-guidance clinic was urged by Mrs. Doyle.

The board approved the plan for consolidation of night-school classes after the end of the half year. This consolidation will mean elimination of a number of teachers, but it is necessary because of lowered enrollment in the night schools after the end of the first term, Dr. Ballou pointed out. This reduction in enrollment occurs yearly.

The board voted to ask District authorities to move a cab station on T street, between Seventh and Eighth streets, "because it is a menace to school children in that neighborhood."

CORRECTING INSCRIPTION ERROR

Workmen are shown sandblasting the inscription from the recently dedicated memorial to the late Cardinal Gibbons erected in the small park in front of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart. An error caused the year of Cardinal Gibbons' birth to be inscribed as 1834 instead of 1836, necessitating the removal of the first inscription to make way for a correct one.

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION WANTS VOTED BOARD

Appointment of Officials Is Denounced, Only Three Upholding System.

An overwhelming vote in favor of an elective school board was given by the District Public School Association last night at the conclusion of more than two hours of debate, in which the present method of appointing the board by justices of the District Supreme Court was torn to shreds.

Only three persons out of the more than 50 present favored the appointive method. They were former Representative John H. Small, of North Carolina, now a resident of the District; B. Agee Bowles, president of the Georgetown Citizens Association and a resident of Arlington County, and J. E. Hall, of the Bloomingdale Civic Association, a colored organization.

Stengle and Stull Speak.

Charles I. Stengle, president of the association, and a former Representative from New York, and Harry M. Stull, chairman of the education committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, led the attack on the appointive board. Mr. Stull declared that although the District Supreme Court jurists are of the highest caliber they "are incompetent to appoint members of the Board of Education because they don't know what we want in the District and we have no way of telling them. "He criticized the Board of Education for "having done practically nothing for vocational education in the District."

Mr. Stengle predicted that if Congress passes a bill providing for an elective school board, that there will be enough volunteers to man the ballot boxes to save the expense of an election.

Gilligan Praised.

Mr. Small and Mr. Bowles predicted that Congress will never give the District an elective school board. They said it was senseless to single out one unit of District government for election, but both agreed that there might well be another method of naming board members.

When Mr. Stull was in the midst of his harangue against the appointment of board members, Henry Gilligan, militant Board of Education member and champion of the people's rights, entered the District boardroom where the meeting was taking place.

Mr. Stull suddenly said:

"There has never been a finer member of the Board of Education than Henry Gilligan. If the other members voted as he does we'd get what we want."

There was a volley of applause.

OBSERVANCE TODAY OF PATRONAL FEAST

Archbishop Curley to Celebrate Mass and Dedicate Georgetown Hall.

The Patronal Feast of Catholic University, the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary, will be observed at 10:30 a. m. today by a solemn pontifical mass, celebrated by the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and chancellor of the university, in the Crypt of the National Shrine.

The sermon will be preached by Dr. John A. Ryan, dean of the faculty of theology. Music will be furnished by a male choir of 100 voices under direction of Dr. Leo Behrendt.

The Very Rev. William J. Kerby will be assistant priest and the deacons of honor will be the Rev. Dr. Edward B. Jordan and the Rev. Dr. Leo L. McVay. The master of ceremonies will be the Rev. Dr. Edward Roelker.

It is also the patronal feast day of the Immaculate Conception Church at Eighth and N streets northwest.

Solemn High Mass.

A solemn high mass will be sung at 10:15 a. m., at which the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the church, will be celebrant. He will be assisted by the Rev. J. Kelly Reese and the Rev. S. A. Czyz. A mass will be said at 12:15 p. m. in the grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes.

The celebration of the feast will culminate in the most important service of the day—the solemn closing of the Immaculate Conception novena, which will take place at 7:45 o'clock tonight. The sermon will be given by the Rev. Peter Quinn, noted Marist missionary. To the congregation attending this closing service will be given the papal blessing, miraculous medals and rotagravures of Murillo's "Immaculate Conception."

Hall to Be Dedicated.

Archbishop Curley will dedicate the new science recitation hall at Georgetown University at 4 p. m. on the campus of the College of Arts and Sciences.

The exercises will be attended by a large assemblage of faculty members and their families, for whom President W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., and Dean Vincent J. Hart, S. J., of the college, will entertain at a reception in Copley Lounge, immediately following the dedication ceremony.

Others to Attend.

Assisting Archbishop Curley will be the Right Rev. Mgr. James Hugh Ryan, the rector of the Catholic University of America, and the Very Rev. Vincent McCormick, Jesuit rector of Woodstock College, Woodstock, Md. Several prominent Jesuit educators from the Maryland-New York province of the society also will attend.

The new science hall will be known as the Gravenor-White Building and forms the second unit of the college quadrangle being projected on the old athletic field at the Hilltop. It is rapidly nearing completion.

In the event of rain this afternoon, it was said, Archbishop Curley will be conducted through the building as he blesses each portion.

Woolworth Calls For Building Bids

New Structure on Seventh Street Site Is Seen in Action.

The F. W. Woolworth Co. contemplates a possible new building on the site of its present location at 900 Seventh street northwest, where it has had a store for 20 years. This is seen in a call by the company's architectural department at Philadelphia for bids on construction of a two-story and basement granite and limestone store building 88 by 60 feet at the above address.

Bids will be opened at Philadelphia December 16. Besides the general ons, there are bids called on marble and bronze work, oil-burning system, cafeteria and store equipment, drinking fountains, elevator, &c.

Among those to submit bids for the general contract are the James Stewart Co., of New York City, and the following local firms: Charles H. Tompkins Co., George E. Wyne, R. Wilmer Bolling, Arthur L. Smith & Co., C. J. Cassidy Co., Inc., C. Wohlgemuth, jr., Bahen & Wright, James Baird Co., Inc., Walter B. Avery, Baer & Scholz and John W. Cowper Co., Inc.

COURT STEP TAKEN BY DISTRICT TO GET BRIDGE REPAIR DEBT

Sale of Enough Property of Terminal Company to Pay Sum Is Asked.

The District Government yesterday carried to the District Supreme Court its attempt to collect $73,772.28 from the Washington Terminal Co. for repair work done on the New York Avenue Bridge over the company's tracks last year.

The court was asked to appoint trustees to sell so much of the properties of the Terminal Co. as would wipe out the alleged debt to the District. Corporation Counsel Bride and Assistant Corporation Counsels R. E. Lynch and W. H. Wahly signed the petition.

Required by Act.

The court is informed in the papers that by an act of Congress of 1903 the Terminal Co. was required to construct the necessary viaducts over its tracks at New York avenue and was required to maintain them. The complaint recites that the bridge was not kept in repair, that it deteriorated, was obsolete and inadequate and was repaired by the District after repeated requests had been ignored by the Terminal Co.

Refused Reimbursement.

Since the District repaired the bridge it had made repeated requests for reimbursement, but has been refused. Under another act of Congress of February, 1931, the Commissioners were directed to seek a lien on the company's property for the amount of the bill. That is the action taken yesterday.

Move Is Seen Reducing Post-Yule Exchanges

As a result of the early-shopping movement, Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, yesterday said the volume of after-Christmas exchanges of goods will be materially reduced this year.

He pointed out that the movement, started last month, has prompted shoppers to make more careful selections and eliminated many purchases which otherwise would have been made during the usual last-minute rush.

Havenner Lauded By Chamber Heads

His Work as President of Citizens' Federation Commended.

A resolution of gratitude and praise for Dr. George C. Havenner, retiring president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, was adopted yesterday by the board of directors of the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

The board also approved the report of its special subcommittee on a referendum of the United States Chamber of Commerce relating to railroad legislation. Reports were heard from John S. Wynne, chairman of the committee on aviation; Robert E. Swope, chairman of the committee on manufactures; and John H. Davis, chairman of the conventions and publicity committee.

The resolution concerning Dr. Havenner states that the people of Washington owe a debt of gratitude to him for his four years of service as executive head of the important federation.

DISTRICT PRINTERS BACK 5-DAY WEEK

Work Reduction Effective on New Year's if Voted Over Country.

In a referendum vote, taken in all union composing rooms in the city yesterday, Columbia Typographical Union adopted an amendment to the laws of the International Union providing for the inauguration of the five-day-week on newspapers. The vote was 1,205 to 725.

Other propositions to change the rate of dues and to amend the pension laws were defeated while three minor amendments were adopted.

The five-day-week if adopted by a majority vote over the entire country will become effective in all newspapers employing union members on January 1, 1933.

A statement issued by the union through Clyde M. Mills, its president, said:

"The shorter work week has been in effect in a number of cities for more than two years, and in addition several millions of dollars have been contributed by working members to pay out-of-work benefits to the unemployed printers.

"Despite severe unemployment conditions among newspaper printers newspaper employer associations have consistently refused to recognize the shorter work week as a necessity and in the 1932 convention of the International Union, held in September, approved and ordered sent to referendum vote the proposition to inaugurate the reform among its members.

"More than 27 per cent of the total monetary unemployment benefits paid to unemployed members of unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, not including payment for work divided among its unemployed members, has been contributed by working members of the International Typographical Union. This is conclusive proof of the absolute necessity of a shorter work week in the printing industry. Columbia Typographical Union has paid in excess of $20,000 in unemployment benefits to its members since last February."

McKinley Student Wins Poster Prize

INDICTMENTS NAME DR. PURDY AND WIFE

$10,000 Fraud Charged by D. C. Matron; Woman to Be Sought in Detroit.

The District grand jury yesterday indicted Dr. Frank Leroy Purdy and his wife, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Field Purdy, on accusations of obtaining almost $10,000 from Mrs. Florence Means Kay, widow of Dr. Edgar D. Kay, through alleged false pretenses.

Mrs. Kay, who resides at 1840 Mintwood place northwest, is said to have given the Purdys various large sums of money in the first part of 1931 on the alleged representations that there was a chest of gold and silver, valued at $60,000,000, which was then en route to the Chase National Bank and New York from London.

The money was to be used in meeting the cost of transporting the huge amount to this country. The indictment is in eleven counts, each count charging the receipt of sums of money ranging from $175 to $5,000.

Dr. Purdy was arrested in his apartment at the Shoreham last spring when Assistant Chief Deputy United States Marshal John Clarkson crawled through a servidor in the apartment and took him into custody. He is at liberty on a bond of $5,000. His wife has never been apprehended, but Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray said he understood she was in Detroit, where attempts will be made to locate her.

Capital Banks to Take Community Chest Cash

Washington banks again this year will cooperate with the Community Chest by receiving payments on pledges. This was announced yesterday by C. H. Pope, president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, following a meeting of that organization.

Under this plan contributors will be able ot pay their Community Chest pledges at their local banks, just as they pay their public utilities bills. The banks also are preparing to receive additional pledges for the Chest from any person who may have been overlooked or who from any other cause failed to give in the recent campaign.

TRANSFER OF PHONE DETAILS TO STATES PARLEY TOPIC TODAY

I. C. C. Seeking Removal of Obstacles in Program of Reducing Rates.

Ways and means of transferring from the Interstate Commerce Commission to State public utilities commissions telephone accounting and depreciation so as to remove the present obstacle to rate reductions in the District and the various States will be considered today at a conference of commissioners of four States with Riley E. Elgen, vice chairman of the local body.

The conference is of particular local significance because of the pending litigation over the rate reduction ordered of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. by the District commission.

One of Main Contentions.

One of the main contentions of the telephone company in this legal battle is that all matters of depreciation must be decided by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"I think Congress should change this procedure," Mr. Elgen said yesterday, "so that telephone rate reductions become more flexible. While the Interstate Commerce Commission has jurisdiction over the accounting and depreciation of all telephone companies, only about 10 per cent of the country's telephone business is of an interstate nature."

Commissioners Meet Today.

All of the commissioners who will meet at the District Building today are members of a section of the special committee on telephone depreciation of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners. Besides Mr. Elgen, it comprises George C. Peery, of Virginia; I. Wade Coffman, of West Virginia, and Harold E. West, of Maryland. A member of the Pennsylvania commission, has also asked permission to attend.

Following this parley Mr. West will confer with the District Commission relative to the valuation hearing which the District body will hold jointly with the Maryland Public Service Commission early in February. Valuations of the Washington Gas Light Co. and its subsidiaries in Montgomery County are being made by the two bodies.

Woman Reports $80 Lost to Purse Thief

Miss Mary G. McCusker, 29 M street northwest, last night reported that a colored man snatched her purse, containing $80 in cash and bonds, as she was passing an alley on M street, between First street and New York avenue northwest.

She told police she chased the man when he dashed down the alley, but he escaped.

Two Injured When Car Hits Telephone Pole

John T. Burns, 48, 423 Oneida place northwest, and Eugene Davy, of New Jersey, were injured yesterday afternoon when their car crashed into a telephone pole on Military road near Sixteenth street.

French Teachers to Meet Saturday.

The Washington Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French will be held at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning, at 800 Sixteenth street northwest. Officers for the ensuing year will be elected. Following the business session and program, a luncheon will be served.

FRIDAY DECEMBER 9, 1932 SPORTS

CLEVELAND OFFERS NATS TWO PLAYERS FOR BOSS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

A NEW NOTE in horse racing has been sounded by Jefferson Park track officials, who have indicated that racegoers will be admitted free during the remainder of the meeting.

But Jefferson Park's decision to dispense with the admission fee is not entirely altruistic. It has all the earmarks of a sagacious business move calculated to divert thousands of dollars of wagers from the bookies' poolrooms into the track's mutuel machines, which cough up a goodly percentage to the track management for every dollar bet.

And Jefferson Park would benefit no little despite a small loss in admission fees. Scores of poolrooms in New Orleans, operating in competition with the race track, have drained the race course of much of its attendance, with the consequence that the track has been missing out on its "take" from the machines, which represents the life blood of most of the Nation's racing associations.

Better Won Pool Room.

Time was when the New Orleans poolrooms quoted odds that surpassed anything to be had at the track. But too many coups resulted in the abandonment of this practice.

This department knows the case of a bettor who came into possession of an entire poolroom as a result of this practice. He got down on the "morning line" odds quoted in the poolroom, placing a small parlay on his two choices. Each was quoted at 20 to 1.

The bettor went to the track to see his selections run and was nearly stunned when both stepped down in front. But the odds on each had been hammered down to 8 to 5. On the way back from the track to collect at the poolroom he was mentally spending his small fortune. Stepping up to the closed door he was greeted by a sign pasted on the glass that was all too significant. "The shop is yours," it read. And the rent was overdue.

Maryland Race Calendar Altered.

The face of the Maryland racing map for 1933 underwent drastic alterations early this week when Bowie yielded the April date for its spring meeting and selected two weeks in May.

As a result, the Eastern racing season which customarily opens on or about April 1, has been set back until April 16 when Havre de Grace's meet begins, while Bowie, which was the scene of the Eastern debut each year, will follow the Pimlico meeting the last two weeks in May.

The uncertain weather of early April was the prime reason for Bowie's change in dates, but the Prince Georges track has made a ten-strike in obtaining its May dates. The meeting thus will include Decoration Day, which is calculated to rival Thanksgiving Day as a crowd magnet with its resultant profits to the track.

Jockey War Still Rages.

Twenty-three more days remain for Johnny Gilbert and Hank Mills to settle the jockey championship of 1932, with both these lads now riding furiously at Jefferson Park for the honor of piloting the year's most winners.

Gilbert, who went into the Jefferson meeting one win to the rear of Mills, has forged four victories to the front, but from now on it is to

G. W. Quintet Wins Debut By 54-28

Hertzler Is Brilliant as Colonials Rout Shenandoah.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

SHOWING spasmodic flashes of great basket ball, and then lapsing into the doldrums of mediocrity, George Washington University's collection of giants and lilliputian courtmen blew a stubborn little Shenandoah College five into defeat last night by a score of 54-28.

About 1,000 fans crushed their ways into the piano-box G. W. gymnasium, whose capacity is 500. Spectators lined the court, two and three rows deep. At the end near the doors, all was needed was a little olive oil to complete the picture of a can of sardines. The doors were locked five minutes before the start of the game, and the last few members of the press got through the crush with the aid of Jumbo Demming, the Colonials' 240-pound freshman football player.

Shenandoah, whose aggregate height per player was a good two feet under that of the Colonials, was a truly stubborn foe, weaving in and out of the beanpole legs of the G. W. Gullivers to great effect.

Colonials Turn on Gas.

They held the Colonials quite even when the Colonials were playing so-so basket ball, but when the eventual winners hit upon all five cylinders, and began to play the kind of basket ball that is naturally stored up in them they rode over the boys from the sylvan wastes of the Shenandoah Valley.

Ty Hertzler, 6-foot-5 G. W. center, was the standout of the game. His play under each basket was well-nigh flawless. He was as fast as any man on the floor and the way he was snatching the ball off the backboards on the defense and leaping high in the air to push wayward shots in on the offense brought him cheer after cheer. Actually, upon one occasion, Otts Zahn let fly a long pot shot which was falling 2 feet short of the loop when Hertzler heaved his 210-pound bulk into the air, even with the loop, grabbed the ball and flipped it in, while in the air.

Hertzler yielded high-scoring honors to Forrest Burgess, who, although his customary long shooting was way off, flipped in enough snowbirds to tally 15 points. Wick Parrack, leading D. C. scorer last year, booted in 12 points by dint of his enormous height and native ability.

Burgess Gets First "Snowbird."

G. W. scored in the first second of play, when Hertzler got the tap-off, slapped it to Parrack, who in turn fired the ball to Forrest Burgess as Burgess sped under the basket like a streak and snowbirded the ball through the cords. Shenandoah looked best about midway in the first half, when it pulled up to 9 to 16, but by half-time the score stood 33 to 14 and the game was beyond recall.

It was G. W. substitutes that injected the most color in the game. Ox Wickham, 245-pound 6-foot-5 center was a riot during his five-minute stay in the battle. He did three things that caused resounding cheers—shot a basket while falling over backward, sat down with a crash and "guarded" a Shenandoah so thoroughly that it catapulted the little fellow into the fourth row of spectators. Johnny Fenlon, hero of G. W.'s football year, came into the game late in the fray to receive a three-minute ovation.

4-Way Tie for Lead In Title Cue Event

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Jimmy Caras, 21-year-old Wilmington, Del., star, today won his second game in the national pocket billiard championship tournament, defeating James Mills, of San Jose, Calif., 125 to 76, in nineteen innings.

The victory placed Caras in a tie for first place with the defending champion, Ralph Greenleaf. Caras had a high run of 27 and another cluster of 23, while Mills' best clusters were runs of 32 and 30.

Pasquale Natalie, Chicago veteran, joined Caras and Greenleaf in a three-way tie for first place when he defeated Walter Franklin, of Kansas City, 125 to 73, in 26 innings. Natalie compiled a high run of 41 in the last inning, while Franklin's best cluster was 27, made in the tenth.

Erwin Rudolph, veteran Chicagoan, defeated George Kelly, of Philadelphia, tonight, 125 to 46, to make it a four-cornered tie for top honors.

Government League Names Steward Head

Luther Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, last night was elected to serve in a similar capacity at a meeting of the Government Basket Ball League. Stewart was instrumental in organizing the loop, which is starting in on its second season.

Vic Gauzza was elected vice president and J. Earle Moser chosen secretary-treasurer.

Five teams will seek the championship and the cup awarded the winner by the National Federation of Federal Employes. They are Bureau of Investigation, Boiling Field, Union Printers, G. P. O. and Naval Hospital. It was agreed to post franchise fees before December 15. Play will begin the first week in January.

By BOB BARNETT
(Chevy Chase Club Pro),
As Told to Dave Herman, Post Staff Writer.

THE mashie niblick, a comparative newcomer to the golf bag, is now used as much as the original clubs. I believe it came into use about 20 years ago, and since then has taken a little more from the mashie, a stick from which it received half of its name.

The iron clubs generally are divided into two classifications—the long irons, which include the mashie or No. 5, and the short irons, which include the spade mashie and mashie niblick. The latter club is the most used of this particular group, because at present a great number of golfers carry two or more in their bags. This gives them a greater variety of shots and ranges—from the bunker shot to the full mashie niblick, which takes in the range of the old lofting iron and mashie. The mashie niblick is used up to 150 yards.

McLeod Versatile With Club.

To illustrate the differences in ranges of shots as played by recognized masters of the mashie niblick, I consider Fred McLeod a most versatile player with this club; yet he will not use his mashie niblick for a shot even if it is 100 yards. On the other hand, there is Leo Diegel, who scores remarkably low with the aid of this club, and who will employ his mashie niblick for a shot as far as 160 yards. But McLeod, in my opinion, can accomplish the most with the mashie niblick and has the greatest variety of shots with this club. Walter Hagen and Willie MacFarlane are two other famous professionals who rank highest for their ability with this club and who have won fame with it.

In playing a normal mashie niblick shot, say from 60 to 100 yards, I stand square to the ball and keep my hands a little ahead of the clubhead. I overlap with two fingers, with the left thumb off the shaft. Willie MacFarlane, Harry Hampton and Leo Diegel are other pros who make their shots with this grip.

The swing for the mashie niblick shot may be summed up briefly as follows:

Blade Square to The Ball.

Try to keep the blade of the club square to the ball throughout the entire swing and very definitely try to meet the ball with the face of the club in this position and descending. In playing all mashie niblick shots restrict the driving power. Therefore the weight is kept a little more on the left foot for such shots, more so than when using long distance clubs.

HALLOWELL CHANGES MIND.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Roger Hallowell, Harvard varsity football center, who had intended to play in the all-North-all-South charity football game in Baltimore Saturday, has changed his mind.

Hallowell yesterday was prepared to go, but today announced he would remain in Cambridge.

Ruling Tomorrow In Didrikson Case

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Lawrence Di Benedetto, chairman of the registration committee of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union, announced today his committee would rule Saturday on the eligibility of Mildren Babe Didrikson to participate further in amateur athletics.

Di Benedetto conducted a hearing behind closed doors and expected to take his information before the registration body in New Orleans. Other members are D. A. Magabgad and Claude Simons.

Miss Didrikson 19-year-old Olympic star, testified she did not sanction an advertisement quoting her as indorsing a certain make of motor car and Gordon Perry, owner of a motor agency here, said she did not authorize him to use her name in praise of the car.

National release last Sunday of the advertisement, which included a picture of Miss Didrikson leaping a hurdle, led to her suspension.

Perry testified Miss Didrikson was shown the advertisement before it appeared in any publication and that she refused to approve it. He said he had sent it to the New York agency which handles advertising for the car.

Carnera and Levinsky Set for Fight Tonight

Chicago, Dec. 8 (U.P.).—Primo Carnera, bulky Italian heavyweight aspirant, and King Levinsky, wild-swinging Chicagoan, today finished workouts for their ten-round bout at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night. The fight is expected somehow to figure in the heavyweight titular situation.

Carnera, in addition to a weight advantage of about 70 pounds, will carry into the ring the hope that a decisive victory over Levinsky will bring about subsequent ring engagements against Max Baer, Max Schmeling and ultimately a title scrap against Jack Sharkey.

DISCUSS COURT RULES.

Players and coaches are invited to attend tonight's meeting of the Approved Board of Basket Ball officials to be held at 8 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. for the purpose of interpretating the rules. All members of the association are requested to attend.

Central Five Wins Debut From Boys Club, 31 to 14

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

CENTRAL'S highly touted basket ball team lived up to advance notices last night at the Boys Club where it opened its season by swamping the home team 31-14, in a fast, rough game.

Off to a slow start and as nervous as a small boy passing a cemetery at night, Central was far from impressive in the early minutes of the game. But as it warmed to its task the Blue seemed to dispel the stage-fright hindering its work and was setting a merry pace for its rival in the end.

Keyser and Tipton Impress.

Most impressive was Cliff Keyser's work at center, and Ollie Tipton's guarding. Handling the leather as though it were a baseball, Keyser completely bewildered the opposition with his bullet-like passes. Tipton, in addition to playing a fine floor game, led both teams in scoring with five double-deckers, many long pot shots, and a successful try from the charity stripe.

The game revealed a surprisingly weak second team for Central. Shooed from the bench by Coach Bert Coggins into action in the last period, the reserves exhibited a weak offense and only an excess amount of fighting spirit defensively.

Panella's eagle eye collected seven points for the losers. Hartnett's floor-work and Money's steady play at the tap-off station were the only other commendable features of the Boys Club play.

Notre Dame's Air Defense Menaced

By BRIAN BELL.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—A football battle of the clouds was in prospect as Notre Dame today completed its Arizona preliminaries and packed to move on to Los Angeles. Southern California and Saturday were just around the corner.

If the Ramblers and Trojans find they can not carry the ball against great forward walls, and they are not sure they can, they will throw it. Then the air will be filled with music and forward passes.

Although Southern California has been practicing for days in secrecy, no confidence is violated when it is said Coach Howard Jones has had his Trojans practicing for hours on forward passes—going both ways—offense and defense.

Griffith Key Man To Plans.

A modern Homer, Quarter Back Homer Griffith, is the key man in the plans of Troy and Coach Jones wishes he had two Homers. It is not possible for Griffith to play the full game under the exacting demands of a Jones-coached quarter back.

Southern California probably will start with one novel condition prevailing for a game with Notre Dame. The Trojans have one of the strongest lines in their history, so strong, in fact, that it has overflowed into the back field. Of the starting back field quartet, two members opened the season as linemen—Bob Ehskine, former tackle and end, and Kenneth (Red) Bright, former center.

The practice at Southern California has tapered off until it has developed into more of a vocal than physical exercise.

The advance sale has reached 95,000, within 6,500 seats of capacity. Speculators who did their football shopping early were asking and getting 100 per cent profit on choice seats.

Anderson Grooms Irish.

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Coach "Hunk" Anderson today gave his Notre Dame Ramblers zero-hour instructions for their football battle against Southern California at Los Angeles Saturday.

Plans have been laid with care. But Coach Anderson still views with alarm—at least in the presence of newspapermen—the annihilation he said he believes awaits the Irish when they attempt to scale the walls of Troy.

Approaches to the University of Arizona Stadium, where the Ramblers worked again today, and all points from which a view of the field could be obtained were shut by vast expanses of canvas. City policemen were summoned to see that no one got past the canvas shields. The Irish mentor issued a brief statement saying the secret session would be devoted to development of the opening attack to be used against Southern California. The weather was warm.

Notre Dame 10-7 Choice To Beat S. California

Los Angeles, Dec. 8 (U.P.).—The Southern California football team, defending national champion and holder of a record of eighteen consecutive victories, has been made an under dog in its contest with Notre Dame here Saturday.

Spring street brokers tonight quoted the Irish on the long end of 10 to 7 odds, and said there was little U. S. C. money, even at that price.

Trojans and Irish Extend Grid Series Through 1935

Los Angeles, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—University of Southern California athletic officials announced late today that the home-and-home football series with Notre Dame has been extended through 1935.

Georgia Tech Leaves Today for Coast Fray

Atlanta, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Twenty-eight Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech packed their bags tonight after a final workout at Grant Field and made ready to leave tomorrow night for the West Coast and their final football game of the season December 17 with the California Bears.

The team will reach San Francisco Tuesday morning and will go to Berkeley, to remain until game time. The first stop will be at St. Louis Saturday.

Influenza continues to take its toll of the Tech gridmen, with Roy McArthur, quarter back, remaining away from practice. Tom Cain, tackle, was out of bed but did not practice. Jim Slocum, end, kept Cain company in watching the players workout.

Ace Hudkins on Stand, Defends $50,000 Suit

Los Angeles, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Ace Hudkins, boxer, took the stand today to defend himself against a charge he inflicted $50,000 worth of injuries on Leonard Parks in a nonprofessional exhibition of fisticuffs last January 9.

Parks objected to the blowing of a motor car horn, Hudkins testified, adding that Parks and a companion both struck him. He said he didn't beat Parks, as charged.

"I just pushed him," the boxer went on. "I pushed him on the arm or the shoulder, and he fell."

AL BROWN WINS.

Sock Succeeds as Science Fails Jim McMillan on Mat

IN one of the most thrilling finishes the rassling boys have been able to concoct this semester, Jim McMillan, the old Illinois football player who took the Curley cure, defeated handsome Frank Judson, formerly of Harvard, last night at the Washington Auditorium at the conclusion of 41 minutes of orthodox wrestling.

Getting rough all of a sudden, after about 35 minutes of straight and conservative grappling, in which science took the place of sock, the boys warmed up with the end in sight and enacted a little tableau that brought a crowd of 3,000 to its feet and sent hundreds to the ringside to heckle the winner.

The final action started when Judson, after a couple of easy flying mares, pinned McMillan to the mat with a crash near the ropes and flopped on his shoulders. Cyclone Burns dropped on his tummy near the scene of the prostrate men, jabbed his fingertips under McMillan's shoulders and began to count. He got up to two, within one of the fatal number, hesitated a fraction of a second, and McMillan squirmed under the ropes.

He came back with a good right to Judson's jaw, followed up with a series of thor-hammers and a butt or two in the stomach. Then he threw Judson out of the ring three times. On the second trip out Judson landed off the mat, on the nude wood of the ring flanges. The third time he got stuck in the ropes and McMillan helped him along with a couple of nice kicks in the teeth, and when Judson was climbing back hit him with a flying butt before he got back in the ring. Judson was easy meat after that.

One preliminary stole the show. It was a bloody 30-minute draw amongst Joe Cox, Ernie Dusek and Bennah Bortnick, the umpire. It was tough going all the time, and it was uncertain to the end which of the three would be thrown, although the popular selection was Bortnick. It ended in a draw after most of the time had been spent down in the audience trading makeshift rights. One of the funniest things of this strange out-of-the-ring act was when Cox stood in the middle of the ring and Dusek, standing outside the ropes, looked so mad and made so many threatening gestures that it seemed for a moment as if he were going in the ring and wrestle.

Joe Savoldi had to hit Jim Healyn with the Auditorium mortgage to make him give up in twelve minutes, after Healyn had weathered four of the reformed Notre Dame full back's tackles. George McLeod destroyed Frank Brunowicz in sixteen minutes or so with some hold or other, while Joe Stecher and Renato Gardini drew.

FLYWEIGHTS CLASH FOR TITLE

Labarba Is Favorite Over Chocolate in Garden Tonight.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—At least one-third, possibly more, of the confusion that has settled over the head of the featherweight division can be cleared tomorrow night with the third meeting of Kid Chocolate, recognized in New York State as king of the 126-pounders, and Fidel Labarba, of Los Angeles. They are matched for fifteen rounds in Madison Square Garden for the title.

Twice in the past the slender, glistening Negro boy from Cuba has met the bulldog charges of Labarba, once the champion of the flyweights, with honors even. But that was before Chocolate hammered down Lew Feldman here a few months ago to take over the mantle in these parts that Bat Battalino dropped on the weighing-in scales a year ago.

Cuban's Title Claim Considered Best.

While Chocolate's title rights are restricted to the confines of New York State, his claim for general recognition is considered the best that has been put forward.

The Cuban has held his ground in topnotch competition with the best of the lightweights, Tony Canzoneri, Jackie Berg, Al Singer and the rest. He has run wild through the mediocre featherweight field and found few genuine foes among the 126-pounders. Chocolate dropped a close decision to Battalino before increasing weight forced Bat into the lightweight class.

Rival claimants for the featherweight throne are Baby Arizmendi, champion in California, who has not run the gantlet of outstanding competition comparable to Chocolate's opposition, and Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, National Boxing Association champion, who was defeated by Lew Feldman.

Labarba's Style Annoys Kid.

The odds slightly favor Labarba, a crouching, left-hook specialist who drums incessantly for the body. In both previous fights, each for ten rounds, Fidel's weaving, punching style bothered the Negro prancer. The title distance adds to the chances of the Californian, a durable, cagey veteran who improves the farther he goes.

Chocolate has been tiring lately near the close of his important matches. Although still in his early twenties, the Cuban has fought over 200 times.

A ten-round semifinal between Frank Battaglia, Winnipeg belter, and Chick Devlin, San Francisco middleweight, has attracted almost as much attention as the main bout. They fought here a few weeks ago to a draw.

SMITH UPSET IN GOLF ON COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—While Big Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, and Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente, crashed through for victories to maintain their status as favorites, other ranking entries were swept out of competition today in first-round upsets of the San Francisco national open match play golf tournament.

In the outstanding reversal, Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., one of the country's leading money golfers, failed to meet the challenge of Romie Espinosa and bowed to the young San Francisco pro, 2 and 1.

Espinosa moved into an early lead which he maintained throughout. He was 3 up at the ninth and 1 under par when the match ended on the seventeenth. Smith's putting was bad.

Diegel Gets Flying Start.

Diegel started off in whirlwind fashion to take a big lead over Mike Murra, of Wichita, Kans., but he was lucy to pull out with a nineteenth-hole victory. Diegel was 4 up at one time in the first nine, and 2 up at the turn, but Murra produced brilliant golf to even up the count on the seventeenth.

After qualifying with a 75 yesterday, Roland Mackenzie, of Washington, D. C., who recently turned professional, triumphed in one of the longest and hardest fought matches of the day. It was nip and tuck between him and Lawrence Elmstedt, of Pleasanton, Calif., before the latter finally succumbed on the second extra hole.

Another upset victim was Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., who passed out of the picture before the superior stroking of W. J. Schwartz, of St. Louis, 1 up.

The brother golfing act dominated the Lakeside course fairway today with three Espinosas, two Frys, two Navis, two Goggins, and the two Dutras coming through. Romie Espinosa's win over Smith was the day's highlight while his brothers Al and Abe defeated Joe Ferrando, 5 and 4, and John Foge, 3 and 2, respectively.

Mark Fry, of Oakland, defeated Ralph Guldahl, of St. Louis, 4 and 3, and Earl Fry, of Alameda, won from Herman Hellman, 1 up. Joe Navi and Louis Navi, local caddies, won from Ben Coltrin, 2 and 1, and John Black, 1 up, respectively.

Tomorrow's second round pairings: Olin Dutra vs. Hambrick, Conroy vs. McHugh, Schwartz vs. Lopresti, Walsh vs. Willie Goggin, Thomson vs. White, Mortie Dutra vs. Beer, Al Espinosa vs. Battini, McLeod vs. Brazil, Sheppard vs. Mark Fry, Demasssey vs. Wood, Diegel vs. Dick Goggin, Trev Smith vs. Sweeny, Joe Navi vs. Abe Espinosa, Romie Espinosa vs. Fritz Smith, Hunter vs. Mackenzie, Earl Fry vs. Louis Navi.

Jack Russell Mentioned In Deal

Billy Evans Eager to Obtain Nats' Young First Baseman.

Griffith Will Discuss Trade With Cronin Next Week.

Special to The Washington Post.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 8.—The Cleveland Indians today took the first definite step toward strengthening their club for the 1933 pennant race when they offered Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Club, an infielder, pitcher and a cash consideration for Harley Boss, sensational young first baseman who played last summer with Chattanooga, Washington farm and Southern Association pennant winner.

Griffith, who has declared his determination to bolster his pitching staff, said he would get in touch with Joe Cronin, newly appointed manager of the Nationals, and would give the Cleveland Club an answer at the joint major league meeting in New York next week.

Billy Evans, general manager of the Indians, who is here with Griffith at the annual minor league meeting, said tonight he was more than optimistic about the Tribe's chances to obtain Boss. He declined to reveal the identity of the players offered in exchange for Boss.

Chattanooga Would Get Infielder.

It is believed, however, that the infielder Cleveland is offering is one who would fit into the Chattanooga line-up and the pitcher one who would help the Nats in the pennant scramble next year.

The infielder probably will be Bruce Conatser, young first baseman, who played first in a number of games with the Indians last season. He came up from New Orleans and exhibited plenty of promise of developing into a first-class ball player.

The pitcher might be Jack Russell, veteran right-hander, obtained by the Indians from the Boston Red Sox in a trade for Pete Jablonowski. Russell turned back Washington four times in six tries last season and also pitched a winning brand of ball against the Yankees and Athletics.

Pitcher Belve Bean Also Considered.

Should the Nats insist upon a younger hurler, the Indians might be induced to part with Belve Bean, giant right-hander, who enjoyed a winning season with Toledo in the American Association last season.

Griffith made an offer for Wesley Ferrell, Indian ace, but this proposition was turned down cold. He also tried to interest Evans in a deal that would bring either Mel Harder or Oral Hildebrand to the Nats, but did not offer enough to interest Cleveland officials.

Basket Ball Player Hurt In Game at Central Gym

Collision with the brick wall of Central High School Gymnasium during a basket ball scrimmage resulted in a slight concussion of the brain and possible fractured skull sustained by Herbert Young, of the United Typewriter Grays Team last night.

Young, 24 years old, of 108 Seventh street northeast, was playing against a combination of the Shoils and Georgetown Preparatory School teams in a practice game when he tripped during a scrimmage under the basket and catapulted into the brick wall. He was removed to Garfield Hospital, a block distant, where his condition was said to be not serious.

DERBY LISTED MAY 6.

Louisville, Dec. 8 (U.P.).—The Kentucky Derby of 1933, the fifty-ninth running of the event, will be held May 6, according to well-founded reports here today. The date will not be officially set for some time.

JEAN LAFITTE NECK WINNER IN JEFFERSON PARK FEATURE

Deemster Up To Earn Place

Mintmagi Delights Its Backers With $31 Mutuel in Third.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Jean Lafitte, 5-year-old son of Sand Mole, carried the blue and olive green banner of Mrs. H. J. Johnson to a hard earned victory in the mile and 70 yards of the fifth event here this afternoon. Holding on gamely a neck back came F. H. Carpenter's Deemster to take place money from Sand Wrack by a half length. The winner, paying $7.20, covered the distance in 1:49 flat over a heavy track.

Martin showed good judgment in reserving Jean Lafitte off the pace for 6 furlongs while well within striking distance. Deemster had all his speed and maintained a daylight advantage over Bill Orange and Jena Wachs to the stretch. Then Martin brought Jean Lafitte along with a steady rush, having more left than Deemster for the final drive. Sand Wrack made up considerable ground to be third. Starboard Light could never catch the leaders.

Mills Rides First Winner Of Meeting.

Hank Mills, recently deposed by Johnny Gilbert in the race for jockey honors, rode his first winner at this meeting when he scored on Lilybet, even-money favorite, in the last race on the card. Riff Raff and Nisia finished second and third. Gilbert is still 4 up on Mills.

Chianti, the veteran sprinter, and the young Monte Parke proved a winning combination in the day's opener and rewarded their many backers by scoring a driving victory at odds of $5.20 for $2. Fort Worth finished a length back of the winner and five spans before Uforme. The three money horses dominated the running, Uforme stealing away to a long lead in the first quarter, then giving away to Fort Worth. Parke had Chianti ready to strike all the time, and making his move in the stretch, overtook Fort Worth in a drive.

Forget Not found the bad going exactly to his liking and survived a hard drive to head The Spaniard, a field horse, out of the second purse. Robot was third, a length and a half away. The well-backed Overboard appeared a winner until well into the stretch, where he shortened his stride and allowed Forget Not to assume command. The Spaniard finished full of run and was menacing the winner with every stride at the end. Forget Not returned $11.80.

Mintmagi Wins Third, Paying $31.20.

Mintmagi had his running shoes on in the third race and drove to half a length victory to return $31.20. Hal Riley, with Gilbert up, took the place from Balderdash by a length.

After delaying the start, Mintmagi was away slowly, but he made up ground in leaps and bounds, once in his stride, and, collaring Buster B., the early leader, in the stretch, held on gamely when Hal Riley made a strong closing bid. The daily double was split today, holders of Forget Not combination tickets receiving $7.80 for $2, while those whose tickets included Mintmagi received $20.60. There was no ticket sold on the Forget Not-Mintmagi combination.

Two-year-old fillies had their chance in the fourth event, a 6-furlong claiming number, with Ottie M. emerging on top by a length, under energetic handling by L. Hardy. Figuriste barely took the place from Black Flash. Ottie M. held sway for the full journey, Hardy saving enough for the driving finish. Figuriste figured prominently at all times, but was hard pressed to withstand Black Flash's strong rally in the closing strides. The winner returned $16.60.

Tricycle Rolls Home In Sixth.

Tricycle had no trouble beating eleven other platers in the sixth race. The gelded son of Tryster breezed home with four lengths to spare over Chipola. Country Tom was third. Jockey West kept Tricycle close up until ready to make his move, turning for home. The winner then drew far away with no show of effort. Lord Tournament, as usual, showed a lot of early speed but eliminated himself by running out.

NORTH FACES SOUTH ON GRIDIRON

Stars Play Tomorrow in Charity Game at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Two score football players, corralled from Maine to the Gulf of Mexico, extended themselves today in a semifinal workout for "the battle of the blue and the gray," the North-South football game.

The Northern players, under the guidance of Dr. John B. (Jock) Sutherland, of Pittsburgh; Mal Stevens, of Yale, and Eddie Baker, former Pittsburgh player, were putting on the finishing touches in the Baltimore Stadium, the scene of Saturday's conflict.

The Southern players likewise were taking the fine points of the game, with Dick Harlow, Western Maryland coach, in charge. Their practice was held in the Johns Hopkins University Stadium.

Cooler weather proved a big help, permitting more strenuous practice than has been the case early in the week when almost midsummer temperatures prevailed.

The complete line-up of the two squads was announced today:

Backs—Cliff Aulman, Geneva; Bob Chase, Brown; Robert Deacle, W. and J.; Bill Gilban, Brown; Jack Ames, Princeton; W. Ratamers, St. Thomas, and Leon Whitlock, Temple.

Ends—S. Cooper, Geneva; Dick Hickey, Villanova; Bill Karr, West Virginia; E. W. Vavra, N. Y. U.; Harold Vermuth, Lafayette.

Centers—Martie Gezzie, Villanova; H. L. Reese, Temple.

Ends—Praatz, Catholic University; Romey Hunter, Marshall; Tom Swayze, Mississippi; Dan Wood, Furman.

Graham's scores were 100, 143, 103—346. Hare spotted the wood for games of 104, 115, 115—334. Baker's strong second game, which amounted to 135, almost proved to be the undoing of Mahoney. The latter's consistency was the principal factor in his success. Mahoney's scores were 112, 109, 117—338, while Baker rolled 88, 135, 114—337.

The second and final blocks will be rolled in Baltimore next week.

Alice McQuinn led the Ladies Federal League at Arcadia with her 129 game and 349 set, the latter equaling the season record. Agriculture rolled 499 and 1,511 to win team honors.

Survey led its rivals in the Interior Department League with its 536 game and 1,562 set. Crowley's 358 and 136 was the best of the individual scoring.

In the I. C. C. Examiners League, also at Columbia, Ferriter and Fowler divided individual honors with a 356 set and 129 game, respectively, while Value topped the teams with 535 and 1,544.

Fountain Hams outdistanced Lucky Strike in their National Capital League match on the latter's drives last night, winning the odd game. The Hams rolled 615, 648 and 577 to Lucky Strike's 591, 596 and another 596. McGolrick's 158 game and 420 set topped the winning team, while Lovett, with 142 and 368 was best for the losers.

Davidson mopped up in the Automotive loop at Lucky Strike, rolling 138 and 356, Stanley Horner's 549 game and even 1,600 for set topped the team efforts.

Aeronautics and Domestic Commerce divided honors in the Commerce-Interbureau loop at Lucky Strike, the former rolling a 1,570 set and the latter a 557 game. Gazley's 137 game and Falck's 344 set took the individual awards.

Hare's 136 and Casson's 371 were the best of the lot in the Independent League at the Strike. Internal Revenue massaged the maples for a 575 game, while Justice knocked the pins silly for a 1,663 set count.

Penfold's work was outstanding in the War Department loop at Arcadia. He finished with a 386 set, including a high game of 136. Finance, No. 2, chalked up a 586 game and Barbettes pinned a 1,684 set.

Phil King, of Princeton, rattled the maples for high game, 134, and high set, 343, in the Intercollegiate Alumni League last night. V. M. I. turned in a 533 game and Maryland finished with the best set, 1,538.

Fling's 376 and 147 copped the laurels in the North of Washington Church League at Silver Spring. St. John's outrolled the teams with its 574 game and 1,568 set.

Western Trounces St. Alban's, 31-21

Western's ambitious court team sidled over into the win side of the ledger for the first time this season yesterday, dropping St. Alban's with a couple of hard lefts to the button and a few more points. The final tally revealed Coach Cliff Moore's worries to be 10 points in front of the visitors, 31-21.

Joe Brennan led the assault on the cords for the red-shirted crew, ringing in seven goals from the field and sinking a charity shot for 15 points. Bieri's work at forward for the visitors was of high order.

Western assumed the lead at the outset of the fray and never relinquished it. St. Alban's rallied in the third period, but when pressed the home team pulled away to a comfortable lead. McGee's guarding featured St. Alban's defense.

Landers and Mack In Portner Feature

Billy Landers, the blond little buzzsaw from Norfolk, Va., will battle Jimmy Mack, of Philadelphia, in the feature 8-rounder of next Tuesday's boxing program at Portner's Arena in Alexandria for the benefit of the Day Nursery, Matchmaker Frankie Mann last night announced.

Landers has a host of friends here and is remembered for his stirring duels with Benny Schwartz. Mack has been sought since the sensational bout with Eddie Burl.

K. O. Stetz, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., who boasts a record of 14 straight knockouts, will box Arthur DeBeve, veteran of over 600 ring battles, in an eight-rounder.

LORTON ELEVEN BOOKING.

Lorton Reformatory's 150-pound grid team has an open date Sunday, December 18, and is endeavoring to book a strong Washington team. Terry's, Brookland and Centennials are especially challenged. Teams can make arrangements through Harry Dramow, at Columbia 2709, before 6 p. m.

ROOSEVELT'S FIVE FACES OPENER

Meets Emerson Today; Eastern, G. U. Prep in Contests.

THREE additional schoolboy quintets are scheduled to make their initial appearance of the season this afternoon, while another plays for the third time this week. Roosevelt and Emerson clash on the former's court in the first game for each, Eastern encounters the Boys Club at Eastern, and Georgetown Prep will be host to Rockville High School.

Eastern's work against the Boys Club will garner the best part of the fans' attention. Coach Mike Kelley has a wealth of seasoned talent to defend the championship won last season and much is expected of the crafty Irishman. The squad has pursued its work in approved pro fashion in practice sessions, but how it will fare against outside teams remains to be seen.

Central Seen Favorite For Series.

The Boys Club met and was defeated by Central last night, and Central is rated the favorite to win the title from Eastern if the crown is to change hands.

Emerson is an unknown quantity, but Roosevelt's strength is but a trifle more apparent. Faced with the tremendous task of molding a basket ball team of a few experienced players and a vast number of green ones, after losing three top-notchers through transfers, Coach Lynn Woodworth has developed a capable team, one that will have to be reckoned with in the series.

Georgetown Prep has two victories tucked under its belt and should increase this by one today. With four regulars returned from last season, the Prepmen are due for one of their best seasons on the court.

C. U. TO TRY SHORT PASS SYSTEM

Sophomores Bidding for Regular Posts as Forwards.

(This is the fourth of a series of articles dealing with the prospects of local college basket ball teams, by Bob Considine.)

LOST in a corner of the vast zeppelin hangar known as Catholic University gymnasium, a small squad of basket ball players is being whipped into form pending the opening next week of a short but active basket ball season. The Cardinals are coached by Forrest Cotton, former Notre Dame athlete, who used to play basket ball at South Bend on Notre Dame's memorable indoor dirt court.

Cotton has a peculiar situation out at C. U. For the past three years the Cards have been the greatest in-and-out team in local business. The year before last it won tremendously stirring victories over such teams as Duquesne and George Washington, only to lose to Ben Franklin and half the other "breathers" on the schedule. Things were little better last year.

Cards Find "Snowbirds" Difficult.

The reason is simple enough. For some reason, no C. U. player in the past several years has been able to perform the simplest of all scoring plays, a "snowbird" from directly under the basket. Consequently there has been nothing to do about it except let the boys try long shooting, and in this department Buster Sheary and Eddie White have shown sometimes spectacular aim, but at other times have proved only human and missed repeatedly, which probably has been the direct cause of an in-and-out record.

In two sophomore forwards, Cotton believes he has a combination that is going to round out his team of long-shooting veterans and make C. U. dangerous from close in. They are Gene Augusterfer and Pat Montague, fleet, sturdy youths, who cut and break well and loom as real menaces to opposing teams. Bob McVean, junior, is also an able forward.

Sheary, White and Capt. Lou Spinelli have the guarding positions well taken care of for the year. Sheary is still mixed up in football, inasmuch as he will play in the North-South game Saturday, but will be in form quickly enough to appear against Maryland State Normal next Wednesday. There's quite a race on for center. Galliher, 6-feet-2, is back from last year and looking better, but is being pushed by Rosenfield, Donovan and Gearty.

The team will dote more on short passing this year, in fact the passing game of the team is being stressed to the utmost now. It is almost a new department of the game for most of the squad, who heretofore have had only to work the ball down to midcourt, from which point Sheary or White would let one fly for the basket.

Coach Cotton is working out a new pivot play which utilizes a pivot man standing near the sideline. Defensively, the team will use the man-for-man system, with particular attention placed on switching partners, the most difficult maneuver of this individual guarding, and one, which if properly worked out, will frustrate pick-off plays.

Former Maryland Stars Beaten in Debut, 49-41

St. John's Club, of Baltimore, helped open the Hyattsville court last night, downing Lustine-Nicholson, 49-41, in a fast and exciting game. Boasting a line-up that included four players who were regulars at Maryland University last season, the home team was favored to win, but the furious attack of the Baltimoreans in the second half gained the victory.

In a preliminary game Company F defeated the Shade Shop tossers after two extra periods of play.

Tech Grid Heroes Honored at Dinner

Members of the champion Tech High School football team were guests of the Circle T Club last night at a victory dinner attended by over 150 supporters of the school. Senator Millard Tydings, of Maryland, was the principal speaker.

The gathering was thrown into an uproar when Coach Hap Hardell failed to acknowledge the 1932 team the greatest eleven turned out at Tech during his regime. Hardell did say, however, that it was the best natured squad he ever coached.

Capt. Allison Meiklejohn presented Principal Frank Daniel with the inter-high school trophy won by the team. Col. Courtland Nixon, representing the Princeton Alumni, presented the team with the Princeton cup which now becomes the permanent possession of the school.

Among other things presented were gold baseballs to fourteen members of the squad and the manager, and one for the coach. Hardell also was given a reversible raincoat-topcoat, which may or may not be significant.

MINORS FAIL TO LIMIT SALARIES

Plan O.K., But Hedge at Approving Violation Penalties.

By JAMES L. RENICK.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—The highly controversial subject of a salary limit among the minor baseball leagues and drastic penalties for its violation, tentatively was passed up today by the National Association of Professional Leagues in convention here.

The matter has precipitated lengthy arguments all week and previous to the national meeting today, it was believed a pay roll limit, with penalties for violation would be adopted almost unanimously by the thirteen smaller circuits.

But when the subject was presented on the floor of the convention, a fresh outbreak of argument seemed almost certain, so officials accepted a motion to pass over this phase of recommendations until the next session at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Magnates More Opposed To Penalty.

A survey among the magnates revealed they were not so much opposed to adoption of the salary limit itself as to the penalty provided by the executive committee for its violation.

Under the resolution presented for the consideration of the committee, "any club" guilty of any violation of the salary-limit rule adopted for its classification shall, if the violation be not corrected within three days of notice of such violation, assign the contract of or release unconditionally the player on such club who receives the highest salary paid by such club. If more than one player is receiving an equally high salary, then the player to be released or assigned shall be determined by lot.

In addition thereto, if a club be "guilty of violation of the salary limit shall be fined 20 per cent of the maximum monthly salary limit allowed for each club in its classification," the fine to be paid into the national association treasury.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

JEFFERSON PARK, DEC. 8.

DEAR AL:

Lillybet and Chianti did their respective stuffs for Duke Bennings today, but the prices were nothing to rave about. I still think we would have had 3 to 1 on the old girl friend if Mills hadn't taken the mount. Hank was long overdue and they played him to a fare thee well. Then again, Lillybet might not have won without Mrs. Mills' boy aboard. The track should be no worse than slow for tomorrow. No more rain in sight and it was drying out rapidly late this afternoon. My old friend Mike is back on his feet after a battle with the hospitals. I've provided him with a watch and I'm going to send him out to catch a lot of early morning air, if not the goods on a prospective longshot or two or three. What's a few longshots, more or less, among friends? I'm looking over the parish tonight, pal, so I'll be seein' you.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—Nothing like starting the day off with a winner. Can't guarantee this one, but any price will be a good one on SIZZLING. Gets another chance. OLD FIELD, an old Maryland friend, for the place, and PALANTINE to take care of the show end.

SECOND RACE—There's several in this field that will go better on the off track. However, I'm stringing along with JEFF O'NEIL. Looks like the race is between him and the ancient and at times honorable MONTFERRAT. Inasmuch as I have to pick a third one, let's take PREFERRED.

THIRD RACE—I'm going to stick to POLAIRE in this maiden affair. Picked this one to beat much better than these and failed to make the grade: BRIGHT CHESTNUT and LITTLE MARCELLE for what's left.

FOURTH RACE—Well, pal, here she is. Rarin' to go and on the track she loves. I mean BLACK PATRICIA. Had a busy year, but manages to keep in shape and I believe she'll sail home. QUARTER DECK should be second after they get through applying the twitch. TRIPLE TREAT for the show. Just to have another chance, I'll warn you that I met a fellow who says he knows a fellow who knows something about EVELINE F.

FIFTH RACE—Taking FRENCH LASS despite that top weight. Several others, including Smear and Ante Bellum, haven't been treating me right.

SIXTH RACE—WATCH GIRL has made a hit with me. I don't believe I'm letting my enthusiasm run away with my judgment either when I put her on top of these. JUDGE LUEDERS has to be beaten. BILL SETH is dangerous on this kind of track.

SEVENTH RACE—BROAD AXE has shown plenty here and can hardly be passed up. Still have faith in THE ORLEANIAN. Putting him second ahead of STARCH.

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—The stock market today cut back to the slow motion performances that characterized trading a week or two ago.

Net changes were irregular and fractional after five hours of sluggish fluctuations. A tabulation showed more declines than advances, but the averages, made up of pivotal issues, finished exactly at Wednesday's final level.

Obviously, the market was awaiting definite and official developments in connection with the foreign debts. Since the question was reopened immediately after our election, Wall street has felt that Great Britain would pay on schedule, hence it might be that any official announcement to that effect would prove to have been discounted. The real problem, in the opinion of most financial observers, centers around eventual disposition of the whole debts issue, and even with next Thursday's bills met, it is pointed out, the matter in all probability can hardly be called closed.

Stocks that had extreme moves of much more than a point were exceptional. Du Pont, U. S. Steel and Bethlehem preferreds and a few less important issues lost 1 each on the day, but pressure on none was very insistent. Coppers dragged down a bit, reflecting recent heaviness of metal prices which has in turn been a reaction from uncertainties as to whether the stalemated international conference would reach an agreement. Oils were dull and motors lacked the energy to follow up an early rise. Steel common, National Biscuit, Baltimore & Ohio, Loew's, Safeway Stores, Standard Oil of New Jersey and North American returned small losses, but these were balanced by narrow net advances in American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Sears Roebuck, American Can and Westinghouse. Business amounted to 704,921 shares.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Thurs.	Wed.
Advances	151	286
Declines	217	148
Unchanged	150	160
Total issues traded	518	594

Stocks.

Trading slowed down and prices at the close were unchanged. The turnover dwindled to 704,921 shares. Fluctuations in prices were narrow, very few issues changing more than 1 point. Wall street seemed to be waiting on a war-debt solution.

Bonds.

United States loans led trading while corporate issues generally stood aside. Prices were unchanged from Wednesday's levels. The turnover mounted sharply to $9,936,000. Rhones held near the 1932 high mark.

Curb.

The volume of dealing fell off and the market closed with mixed gains and losses. The turnover was 120,000 shares, or 60,000 under Wednesday's trading. Electric Bond & Share issues closed seven-eighth of a point up. Oils also advanced.

Wheat.

Experts' statement that grains have reached the bottom shock-proof level firmed wheat prices and added small gains. Corn and oats also closed higher. Wheat finished ⅛ off to ⅛ up. December deliveries sold at 44⅞ cents.

Cotton.

Unexpected increase of 780,000 bales in the Government's cotton crop estimate had little effect on prices. March sold at 5.69. The general market was down 3 to 8 points. Liverpool reported Bombay buying and trade calling.

Suspensions of Banks Down 23.9 Per Cent

Chicago, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Rand McNally & Co., reports that in the week ended today bank suspensions were 23.9 per cent under those of the corresponding period last year.

The amount of deposits tied up showed a big decrease also, averaging but $206,900, compared with the 1931 average of $736,000 and an average of $569,300 the first half of 1932.

CURB PRICES MIXED IN LIGHTER TRADING

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Trading dwindled in the Curb Market today and prices wavered uncertainly, closing on the crest of an extremely modest, late rally, with mixed net gains and losses.

The turnover of 120,000 shares was some 60,000 less than yesterday's. Traders were apathetic and group movements were indistinct. A few issues were helped by announcements of regular dividends, among them Axton Fisher, up 4; American Superpower preferred, up 2, and American Gas & Electric common, up a fraction. Celanese preferred, recently restored to a dividend basis, rose 3 to a new high for 1932.

Electric Bond & Share ranged between a loss of ⅝ and a gain of ⅞, and closed up ⅞ net. Aluminum Co. was off a point at one time, but reduced its loss to ¼. Newmont Mining eased nearly a point, possibly reflecting the apparent impasse in the international producers' conference. Oils moved narrowly in the main, although Gulf flushed up a major fraction. National Casket preferred traded for the second time this year, showing a net gain of about 9 points.

Shell Oil Plans to Spend $8,000,000 on Coast

San Francisco, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—The Shell Oil Co. announced today a 1933 budget of $8,000,000 to be spent "largely in the extension and improvement of its producing, refining and distributing facilities throughout the Pacific Coast."

The industrial rehabilitation committee for the twelfth federal reserve district reported this program brings announced expenditures of this character to $28,000,000, with $140,000,000 additional in public and private work which is expected to be in full swing in northern California by midsummer.

Sears Roebuck Sales Drop.

Chicago, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Sales of Sears Roebuck & Co. from November 7 to December 3 totaled $22,609,104, a decrease of 15.7 per cent from the total of $26,828,020 in the same period of last year.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading started cheerfully on the stock exchange, but hesitated later pending the publication of the American debt note. Japanese bonds and oil and mining shares were lower. Gilt-edged securities and industrials were steady. The closing was irregular.

Paris—Price movements on the bourse were hesitant in face of the uncertainty over national and international problems. Some values improved slightly, although rentes showed losses. The closing was steady.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse opened strong following the advance in sterling exchange. Favorable light and power forecasts for next year was also a strengthening factor. The closing was slightly higher.

New 15 Commodities Index To Show Average Prices

Today	82.0
Previous day	81.7
Week ago	83.2
Month ago	86.6
1932 high	103.9

(Copyright, 1932, by Moody's.)

In view of the increased interest in the level of commodity prices, with its important bearing on the economic problems of the day, the Associated Press has arranged with Moody's Service to present the above daily index of the price level of fifteen raw staples, starting today, in an effort to provide a quick measure of day-to-day fluctuations.

The index was developed after months of study by the Moody statistical staff. The commodities taken include most of those raw products dealt in on principal central exchanges, in which general day-to-day business and speculative interest is centered. Furthermore, those chosen are among the most representative of the three large groups, foods, textiles and metals.

The index is computed on the basis of closing prices. December 31, 1931, was taken as 100, so the current figure may be regarded, in effect, as the percentage of the price level existing at the end of last year.

The importance assigned to each component commodity, in relation to the total index, was determined after a consideration of the value of the total United States production or consumption, whichever was larger, of the given commodity for the five years preceding 1932. Certain deviations were made to recognize relative greater world importance of certain staples, and to adjust for certain other factors.

The commodities used, together with the approximate percentage value of the whole index assigned to each, follow: Wheat, cotton and hogs, each 13 per cent; steel scrap and sugar, each 10 per cent; wool, 7 per cent; copper and hides, each 5 per cent; corn, rubber, silk and coffee, each 4 per cent; lead and silver, each 3 per cent, and coca, 2 per cent. Corn is given a somewhat low percentage in proportion to the relative value of the crop, in view of the fact that it is partly reflected in the index by hogs

Franc and Pound Continue to Sag

Japanese Yen Advances 1-2 to 21 Cents; Others Unchanged:

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Although no definite shipments of gold from Paris to New York have been reported, the French franc again sagged to 3.90⅜ cents for cables today, the point at which it is theoretically profitable for the metal to be imported to the United States.

The British pound sterling showed a reactionary tendency, losing 2 cents at a cable rate of $3.22½. Exchange authorities expect little stability of sterling until the matter of the December 15 war loan payment to America is finally settled. Some bankers are of the opinion that payment of at least the interest of around $60,000,000 on the debt will be made on schedule.

With the exception of the Japanese yen, which rallied ½ cent to 21 cents, most other foreign exchanges were either easy or unchanged.

BOND PRICES STAND AT WEDNESDAY TOP

U. S. Loans Lead Market in Trading; Sales Rise to $9,936,000.

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Corporation loans generally stood aside today and watched United States Government issues maintain their leadership in the bond market.

Federal securities enjoyed the most active sponsorship in several months, with most of the Treasury obligations recording substantial advances. The foreign department also displayed a firm tone, while domestic rails, utilities and industrials were comparatively steady with losses and gains about evenly divided.

Sales totaled $9,936,000, par value, of which $2,661,000 was accounted for by the Government list. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was unchanged.

The Federal division was spurred to renewed efforts by the recent Treasury financing announcement for December, which involves an offering of $600,000,000 of notes and certificates. The former will carry a rate of 2¾ per cent for four years, while the latter, a one-year issue, will bear three-fourths of 1 per cent, which is believed to be a record low interest for this character of paper.

Of the long-term Treasury bonds, more than $1,000,000 of the 3½s changed hands at an advance of 5-32ds of a point and there was an unusually large turnover of the 3s at a gain of 10-32ds. Treasury 4s and 3¾s were also active with advances of 6-32ds and 9-32ds of a point. In more moderate trading, Liberty 3½s and Treasury 3¾s of 1940-43 and 1941-43 reached new highs for the year. Liberty loans eased fractionally after earlier firmness.

Among the utilities, American Telephones held around their high 1932 marks. Postal Telegraphs were soft. Western Unions gained a point or more. Of the industrials Dodge Bros. 6s were up 1½ points and Shell Union and Sinclair oil issues improved. Bonds of International Paper, Lehigh Valley Coal, National Dairy Products and United Drug were heavy. The rails were fairly firm.

French government 7½s reached another new year's peak and firmness was shown by bonds of Argentine, Belgium, Colombia, Japan and Queensland. Some of the Australians and Germans eased. British 5½s were unchanged.

Industrial Building Rises Above '31 List in South

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 8 (A.P.).—A sharp rise in industrial construction contract awards in November contributed to a building and engineering total of $29,227,000 in the Southern States, which exceeded in value the contracts awarded in November, 1931, the current issue of the Manufacturers Record reports.

The awards for new industrial plants in the month rose to $2,247,000 from the total of $1,493,000 the preceding month.

"That manufacturers are taking advantage of the low prevailing prices for materials and equipment to go forward with plant rehabilitation programs so that they may be in position to promptly fill orders once a turn in business arrives is definitely indicated by the diversity of lines represented, although few outstanding new plants were reported as making up the gain over the previous month's total," the survey says.

WHEAT PRICES FIRM ON EXPERTS' SURVEY

Gains Recorded on Theory Values Stand at Low Shock-Proof Level.

Chicago, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Assertions by leading trade experts that apparently all commodities had reached a shock-proof level did much to rally grain prices today from nervous downtowns.

Transient weakness of grains was more or less associated with an unexpected increase of Government estimates of cotton production. Evidence quickly developed, however, that houses with Eastern connections were buyers of wheat on price setbacks and that many traders were becoming more and more uneasy about possible severe damage to domestic winter wheat by sufficient snow protection against low temperatures and because of persistent widespread drought.

Wheat closed irregular, ⅛ off to ⅛ up, compared with yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ to ⅜ advanced; oats, unchanged to ⅛ higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

Aid to Recovery.

Helping the recovery of grain prices was comment from influential sources that surely wheat at 25 cents, corn at 10 cents and oats at 7 cents in the producing sections of the United States did not leave very much room for declines.

Accompanying this comment were signs that recent holders of wheat future delivery contracts were reinstating sold-out lines. Another late strengthening influence was word that purchases of Canadian wheat today for shipment overseas were in excess of 1,000,000 bushels.

Notable firmness which grew manifest in the corn market did a good deal to put backbone into other cereals. Reports from rural sources indicated farmers were not disposed to sell corn at current prices, and that in some of the largest producing sections there would be no corn selling of consequence until spring. Some specialists deduced a decided possibility that immediate delivery corn at distributing points would be scarce and tightly held at even higher levels of value.

Cheaper Argentine offerings of wheat in Europe, together with reports of improved harvest weather in Argentina, were temporarily effective as bearish factors. Oats closely followed the action of corn, wintry weather being regarded as likely to increase demand for live stock feed operations.

Provisions were responsive mainly to the course of hog values.

COTTON PRICES SAG SLIGHTLY ON SALES

Increase in Crop's Report Reflected in Narrow Fluctuations.

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—An unexpected increase of approximately 780,000 bales in the Government crop report over last November estimate had little apparent effect on cotton today. The report pointed to a crop of 12,727,000 bales, compared with 11,947,000 as of November 1.

Prices sold off rather sharply before the report leaving the market in a strengthened technical condition and an additional decline of 6 to 8 points following its publication evidently brought in considerable trade buying and covering. This checked the decline at 5.53 for March contracts, or about 21 points below yesterday's closing quotation and the volume of business tapered off during the afternoon with the market holding generally steady. March recovered about 16 points of its loss, closing at 5.69, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 3 to 8 points.

The opening was 7 to 13 points lower in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. In addition to rather active prebureau liquidation there was considerable Southern selling while there was also selling here through houses with Liverpool and continental connections.

Report Cuts Prices.

The pressure continued until business was suspended to receive the Government report and proved sufficient to send prices off to 5.48 for January and 5.71 for March or about 14 to 15 points net lower. When business was resumed there was a flurry of additional liquidation which sent the market off to 5.43 for January and 5.65 for May or about 81 per bale below yesterday's closing quotations, and carried the price of March contracts back to within a point of the lowest price touched by that position on the break of last June.

Offerings were absorbed by covering and trade buying which seemed to be for both foreign and domestic account, at these figures, however, and closing quotations showed rallies of about 15 to 20 points from the lowest.

The report of the bureau showing ginnings of 11,631,361 bales prior to December 1 was also above expectations.

Liverpool cables reported Bombay buying and trade calling on the decline in the early market there. Exports today, 34,948, making 3,446,813 so far this season. Port receipts, 31,545. U. S. port stocks, 4,825,446.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Two New York Cotton Exchange memberships were sold today, the first at $10,500, off $1,500, the second at $10,000.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports October Canadian gold output at 253,057 ounces, valued at $5,231,152, compared with September production of 260,538 ounces, worth $5,385,798.

The New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange will be closed on Saturday, December 24.

Interstate Department Stores, Inc., reports November sales at $1,630,907 against $1,746,684 a year ago, a decrease of 6.6 per cent.

The Standard Statistics Co. reports net income of 390 important corporations for the first nine months of 1932 at $159,916,000, a decline of 79.8 per cent from the corresponding period of 1931. Profits of industrial companies dropped 99.4 per cent and avoided a net deficit by $2,269,000. Sixty railroads showed a net deficit of $103,135,000 against an aggregate profit of $67,070,000 last year. The best showing, according to the compilation, was made by 32 utilities, which suffered a decline of 15.6 per cent in their total net income.

Bituminous coal production last week, as estimated by the National Coal Association, was 6,900,000 net tons, compared with 6,543,000 for the the previous week and 7,226,000 for the like 1931 period.

American holders of approximately $87,000,000 of Peruvian bonds have been requested by the independent bondholders protective committee, headed by A. O. Stanley, former Governor of Kentucky, to deposit their holdings. In a statement asking for deposits the committee declared that Peru is now confronted by "war-time conditions."

A New York Cotton Exchange seat sold today for $10,500, a decrease of $1,500 from the previous sale.

Announcement was made today that the Safeway Stores Co. dividend meeting, originally scheduled for today in San Francisco, had been postponed until tomorrow. The session will be held in Salt Lake City. For several weeks rumors have been heard in Wall street of a possible reduction in the present annual rate of $5.

Bradstreet's weekly reports "a severe drop" in its wholesale food index for the week ended December 6. The loss was 5 cents to $1.67, so that in the past fortnight two-thirds of the advance between November 1 and November 22 has been erased. The index normally has a tendency to rise at this time. Largest declines were in butter and eggs, although live stock also showed weakness.

R. G. Dun & Co. today reported a rise of $1,206,624,000 in bank clearings to a total of $4,691,674,000 for the first week in December, although it was pointed out that the previous week had included Thanksgiving and that December 1 settlements figured in the turnover of funds for the past week. New York City clearings were 6.5 per cent under a year ago, but the total for leading centers outside the metropolis was off 18.9 per cent.

DIVIDEND DECLARED BY GUARANTY TRUST

New York Bank Votes to Pay 5 Per Cent for Quarter on December 31.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Dec. 8.—The board of directors of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 5 per cent for the quarter ending December 31, 1932, payable on that date to stockholders of record December 9, 1932.

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—Anchor Cap Corporation today declared a dividend of 15 cents a common share, against previous quarterly payments of 30 cents, payable January 3 to stockholders of record December 20. I. R. Stewart, president, said the company's current position was strong, with no bank loans and no funded debt, but that in view of decreased earnings conservation of resources had been thought advisable.

Commodity Exchanges Nearing Consolidation

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—A plan for consolidation of four New York commodity exchanges, under discussion for some time, is nearing completion and will soon be submitted to members of the exchanges for approval, announcement tonight said. The markets are: The Rubber Exchange of New York, Inc., the National Raw Silk Exchange, Inc., National Metal Exchange, Inc., and New York Hide Exchange, Inc.

Jerome Lewis, chairman of the joint committee which has been conducting the negotiations, in making the announcement said the proposed consolidation would "effect substantial economies in operation" and would "afford more advantageous facilities for trading in a number of commodities upon a single floor."

43D YEAR IS MARKED IN SECURITY & TRUST

Bank, Founded in 1889 With $1,250,000 Capital, Piles Up $40,000,000.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Rounding out another successful year in the history of the institution, the American Security & Trust Co. marks its forty-third anniversary today. Engaging in business at a temporary location at 1419 G street northwest, December 9, 1889, the company now is lodged in its imposing banking house at the northwest corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Fifteenth street northwest, and in part of its magnificent ten-story office building at 728 Fifteenth street northwest.

Growing rapidly, the bank entered larger quarters at 1405 G street northwest, and in 1905 completed its own building, which is now the main office of the company. Its original $1,250,000 issue of capital stock was increased to $3,000,00 in 1904, and by an additional $400,000 in 1919.

Through a merger with the Home Savings Bank in 1919, its resources and deposits rose rapidly. Its resources have grown from $1,230,082.30 to approximately $40,000,000, and its deposits from $261,489.20 to more than $31,000,000.

In 1930, it began erection of its office structure, the American Security Building, in which its activities are housed in two basements and nearly five floors. Last May the remodeling of its beautiful main office and its junction with the ground floor of the American Security Building was completed.

The company's business has expanded to all parts of the city, where it is handled by branches at Seventh street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, 1140 Fifteenth street northwest, 722 H street northeast and 445 Seventh street southwest.

Alexander T. Britton was first president of the bank and was succeeded in 1893 by the late Charles J. Bell, who was chief executive of the company for 35 years. When Mr. Bell became chairman of the board in 1928, Corcoran Thom, present head of the institution, was elected its president.

Copper Curb Deadlock Tightened by Demands

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—The deadlock in the international copper conference tightened today with the refusal of the Roan Antelope Mines, Ltd., to back down in its demand for a 78 per cent larger production quota than the Rhokana Corporation, another African producer. An early break-up of the conference was looked for in copper circles.

The Roan Antelope Co. demands a 1933 production quota of 83,000,000 pounds compared with about 47,000,000 pounds in 1932. Ralph D. Storke, managing director of Roan, and Dr. Otto Sussman, president of the American Metal Co., which is the largest shareholder of the company, were firm in their insistence for such an arrangement.

New York Bank to Sell Insull Stock on Dec. 16

New York, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—The effect of a decision by Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. to force a sale of the Insull securities which it holds as collateral was the subject of conjecture in Wall street today in connection with the plans for a reorganization of the Eastern properties of the Insull structure.

The collateral, securing loans of about $6,000,000 to the National Electric Power Co. and National Public Service Corporation, principal Insull holding units in the East, is to be sold under the hammer on December 16.

Dried Fruits Unchanged.

RESERVE BANK ADDS $5,000,000 CREDITS

Advances in Week Reach $2,209,000,000; Top Period in 1931.

(Associated Press.)

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ending December 7 was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Banks as $2,209,000,000, an increase of $5,000,0000 compared with the preceding week and of $277,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1931.

On December 7 total reserve bank credit amounted to $2,197,000,000, a decrease of $5,000,000 for the week. This corresponds with decreases of $16,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $10,000,000 in unexpended capital funds, nonmember deposits, &c., and an increase of $14,000,000 in monetary gold stocks. It was offset in part by an increase of $21,000,000 in money in circulation and a decrease of $11,000,000 in Treasury currency adjusted.

Holdings of discounted bills declined $12,000,0000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, and $10,000,000 at all Federal Reserve Banks. The system's holdings of bills bought in open market and of United States Government securities were practically unchanged since a week ago.

Playgrounds Note Fewer Accidents

District playgrounds were freer from accidents to children last year than ever before in the history of the department, it was revealed yesterday at the monthly meeting of the directors and assistant directors in the District Building.

Less than 60 injuries, all of them minor in scope, occurred on the grounds during the year. This number represents less than one injury per playground per year. The attendance for the year reached the enormous total of 3,000,000.

Miss Sibyl Baker, supervisor of the grounds, spoke at length on the preservation of the splendid record established by the watchfulness of the directors. A credit system was devised which will honor the playground which keeps its flat free of injuries for a year. As a precaution looking toward safety, the Playground Department has advised directors to appoint a safety committee, composed of children, who are to give a weekly report on the safety of the various mechanical recreation facilities.

Antisaloon Board Will Meet Today

Details of Drive Against Repeal Will Comprise Chief Business.

Details involved in the campaign against repeal will be the chief business of the meeting of the National board of trustees of the Antisaloon League to open this afternoon at the Raleigh Hotel.

In addition to official meetings and conferences there will be "resist repeal" rallies to which the general public is invited. These will be addressed by prominent speakers.

Public sessions will be held at the First Congregational Church tonight, Sunday afternoon and Monday afternoon and at the Calvary Baptist Church tomorrow night.

Capt. Shea Will Lead Ice Patrol Expedition

(Associated Press.)

Capt. W. H. Shea, commander of the Coast Guard cutter Mendota at Norfolk, will command the international ice patrol—that hazardous annual vigil to protect shipping from menacing icebergs in the North Atlantic.

Plans for the expedition were near completion yesterday after the annual conference of the interdepartmental ice patrol board, which Shea attended.

LEGAL NOTICES

T. HOWARD DUCKETT and CHARLES C. MARBURY, Attorneys, Tower Bldg.

IN THE MUNICIPAL COURT OF THE District of Columbia, Prince Georges Bank & Trust Company, a corporation, Plaintiff, vs. Robert M. Fahrney, Defendant. No. 258468. The object of this suit is to recover of the defendant certain moneys due and owing to the plaintiff and to have judgment of condemnation of certain property of the defendant levied on under an attachment issued in this suit to satisfy the plaintiff's claim. It is therefore, this 7th day of December, 1932, ordered that the defendant appear in this court on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, after the day of the first publication of this order to defend this suit and to show cause why said condemnation should not be had; otherwise the suit will be proceeded with as to law and decree pro confesso entered against the defendant. A copy of this order to be published in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post once a week for three (3) successive weeks. (Seal.) NATHAN SAYTON, Judge. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) BLANCHE NEFF, Clerk. By W. M. NEDROW, Assistant Clerk. 9,16,23

MILTON W. KING AND BERNARD I. NORDLINGER, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 419 Southern Building.

IN THE MUNICIPAL COURT OF THE District of Columbia. Randall H. Hagner & Company, Inc., Corporation, 1321 Connecticut avenue northwest, plaintiff, vs. Alfred O. Salmagzi, otherwise known as Alfred Salmasge, address unknown, defendant. No. 258534. Order of publication. The object of this suit is to recover the aggregate sum of three hundred thirty-one and 55/100 ($331.55) dollars with interest thereon from the first day of October, 1932, being rent in arrears for premises known as apartment No. 1 at 1347 Connecticut avenue northwest, in the District of Columbia, and to have judgment of condemnation of certain property of the defendant levied on under an attachment issued in this suit to satisfy the plaintiff's claim. It is therefore this 28th day of November, 1932, ordered that the defendant appear in this court on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, after the day of the first publication to defend this suit and show cause why the plaintiff should not have judgment as set forth, otherwise the suit will be proceeded with as in case of default; provided that this order be published in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post once a week for three (3) successive weeks. THE ONCE OVER

H. I. PHILLIPS

A NOVEL TAXATION PLAN.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., proposes a tax on bathing next year to help balance its municipal budget. The plan is to make every bather pay 25 cents for a season ticket. It is possible that the idea may be adopted at all bathing resorts facing a budget problem, but why a flat rate of 25 cents per bather?

* * * *

Why not classify the swimmers and tax them accordingly? Something along this line:

Dip and run bathers.....15 cents
Lingering bathers (two to four hours at a stretch).....25 cents
Lingering bathers (in excess of four hours).....35 cents
Raft hogs (those playful pests who monopolize the raft and diving platforms).....50 cents
Nuisance bathers:
(a) Women who always scream for a lifeguard.....60 cents
(b) Near-athletes who must play handball on the beach, 75 cents
(c) Inflated rubber toy bathers.....$2.50
(d) Romantic bathers....$5 a head
(e) Beach picnickers...$10 an hour

* * * *

Atlantic City hasn't made it plain just how the bathers who have paid their tax will be distinguished from the tax dodgers. Will they carry swimming registration plates front and rear? Or will they carry a registration card showing that they have done right by the city before attempting a single jack-knife dive?

* * * *

Possible Dialogue.

Lady Bather (in distress).—Help!

Bather—I'm drowning!

Life Guard—Lemme see your license.

Bather—License?

Life Guard—Your permit, your registration card, your tax receipt.

Bather (keeping afloat with difficulty).—Please * * * glug-glug. * * *

Life Guard—I'm sorry, lady, but I can't do nuthin' 'till I see your license.

Life Guard—Drowning without your operating card, eh?

Bather (about to go down for the third time).—This is the only time I ever went in the water without it * * * Please save me!

Life Guard (saving her with great reluctance).—All right I'll save you this time. * * * but don't let me catch you drowning around here again without your papers!

SOMETHING LIKE THAT.

SEEKING THE REASON.

President Hoover has been suggested for President of Harvard. Because he's been so long in the red, do you suppose?

The Brooklyn lodge of Elks went into the hands of a receiver the other day. The traditional greeting of the B. P. O. E. has presumably been changed to "Hello Bills!"

River Bulletin.

MONDAY DESIGNATED AS PERIOD IN HOUSE FOR DISTRICT BILLS

Child Actor Measure, Barber Shop Closing and Other Proposals Included.

District legislation will get off to an early start in the House Monday when a bill to permit night stage appearance of children and a dozen other local measures will be offered for enactment by Chairman Mary T. Norton.

Representative Henry T. Rainey, Illinois, House Democratic leader, yesterday sent Mrs. Norton word that Monday will be "District Day."

Measures scheduled to be called up include Representative Howard W. Smith's bill to settle the boundary dispute between the District and Virginia and Senator Royal S. Copeland's bill to close barber shops one day a week as a health measure.

Boundary Dispute Up.

The Smith bill would set up a commission to determine once and for all the boundary line between the District and Virginia. When the bill was first introduced last session the National Capital Park and Planning Commission took issue with some of the provisions, which were later revised in conference with Smith.

The child actor bill would revise local laws regulating employment of minors to permit talented children to appear in theater performances at given hours at night.

Barber Shop Closing.

The barber shop closing bill originally provided for Sunday closing, but was amended to call only for enforced closing one day a week.

Other bills to be called up would permit the issuance of congressional automobile tags to certain Senate and House officials, authorize a special appropriation for Casualty Hospital construction, regulate boiler inspection, incorporate the Big Brother movement, provide funds for the relief of Jennie Bruce Gallahan, whose husband, a fireman, was killed by a bootlegger's car, and would exempt from taxation the Sons of the American Revolution, the Colonial Dames, the Daughters of 1812.

Policeman Target Of Group Protest

Civic Association Votes on Legal Aid Before Trial Board.

Legal representation before the Police Trial Board with reference to a complaint of the Northwest Central Civic Association was authorized last night at a meeting of that association in the Garnet-Patterson Building, in the case of an unnamed policeman against whom the association has filed charges of "ungentlemanly conduct." The case arose out of an altercation between the policeman and Miss Etta Johnson, community secretary, when the policeman is alleged to have interfered with her in dismissing a group of boys belonging to the Community Center.

The association declined to give financial support to a project submitted to it for rental of a house for transient boys who come under the Travelers Aid Society, but pledged support of the movement in various charitable organizations to which the membership belongs.

Meeting nights of the association were changed to the first Thursday in each month. George W. Beasley, president, reported on his activities since his recent election as head of the Federation of Civic Associations. The association voted to join with others in the federation in a testimonial banquet tonight to Dr. George H. Richardson.

5 Shops Robbed; Loot Totals $375

Loot totaling approximately $375 was stolen from five business establishments which were broken into Wednesday night.

George Levy reported that guns and jewelry valued at $250 were stolen from his store at 639 D street northwest. He told police that a rear door was forced open.

The other burglaries were Wittlin & Dickelbaum Grocery, 500 K street northwest, $10 in cash and $5 worth of groceries; Wittlin's Beef & Provision Co., 504 K street northwest, $8 in silver; Howard Cleaning Co., 2002 Georgia avenue northwest, $8.55 in cash and $40 worth of clothing; Irving Johnson, a tailor shop, at 1627 Eleventh street northwest; five suits, valued at $50.

Crippled Boy Guest At Kiwanian Lunch

High School Cadet Shows Club Members How False Leg Works.

Guests and members present at the Kiwanis Club luncheon at the Raleigh Hotel yesterday were given visual evidence of the work the club is doing with crippled children when Roland Hayes, a Western High School cadet, showed them how well he could walk with the artificial leg furnished him by the club.

Dr. Custis Lee Hall, orthopedic surgeon and honorary member of the club, addressed the assembly and introduced Mr. Hayes. Charles W. Pimper, chairman of the club's orthopedic committee, introduced Dr. Hall and gave a brief account of the work the organization is doing.

Edwin F. Hill, president of the Kiwanis, presided and lauded Dr. Hall. David C. Maxwell, chairman of the Christmas party committee, urged members to attend this affair, which will be given at Gordon Junior High School on December 18. Guests at the meeting yesterday included two of the District Commissioners, members of the School Board, representatives of the school administration, the District Health Department, the Instructive Visiting Nursing Society, Children's Hospital and the press.

GET SET FOR WORK ON MONKEY

Dr. Thorne M. Carpenter (right) and his assistant, R. C. Lee, of the nutrition laboratory, Boston, Mass., set up their instruments with which they will measure the basal metabolism of the monkey during the exhibition representing the results of the research activities of the Carnegie Institution to be open to the public tomorrow, Sunday and Monday.

FIRE ENGINE HOUSE WILL BE DEDICATED

Special Program Tomorrow to Open New Building and Clinic at 13th and K.

Dedication of the District's new fire engine house and model police and firemen's clinic at Thirteenth and K streets will be marked tomorrow night by several addresses, music and the presentation of annual awards to police and firemen for outstanding services.

The program will be under the sponsorship of the Mid-City Citizens Association. Judge Robert E. Mattingly, Municipal Court judge, will be master of ceremonies after an introduction by A. J. Driscoll, president of the citizens' body.

District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan will dedicate the Dr. James J. Kilroy Memorial clinic, which is said to be the finest institution of its kind in the world. An address also will be made by Dr. Daniel L. Borden, chairman of the board of surgeons for firemen and policemen. The District Commissioners, Fire Chief George S. Watson and Police Chief Ernest W. Brown will be introduced.

Gold medals will be presented by Gen. John A. Johnston to Privates Thomas D. Bacon, policeman, and James F. White, fireman; silver medals will be awarded to Police Capt. Michael L. Ready and Battalion Chief J. R. Groves; bronze bars will go to Police Private Benjamin A. Dye and Capt. C. D. Bartlemes, of the Fire Department.

Two Men Injured In Roadhouse Fire

A burning cigarette, left in a celluloid ash tray, is believed to have started the fire which burned the Blue Pelican barbecue stand and roadhouse at 5840 Conduit road yesterday.

Awakened by the smoke, Irwin C. Cox, proprietor, who was sleeping on the second floor, leaped from the window and shouted for some one to turn in the fire alarm. He suffered a sprained ankle and bruises. Peyton Raiford, 19, colored, an employe, received burns on his right hand and knee before he was able to escape from a third-story room in which he was sleeping. Both were treated at Georgetown Hospital.

The fire broke out at 5:30 o'clock, several hours after the last patrons are said to have departed. The loss was estimated at $5,000.

Shoplifter Gets 90 Days.

Mrs. Louise Phillips, 24, of 648 Newton place northwest, was sent to jail for 90 days yesterday when she was convicted of shoplifting in Police Court. Testimony indicated that goods from three department stores was taken by Mrs. Phillips. She was arrested by Mrs. Cecelia Clarke, policewoman.

3,000 AT CATHOLIC U. OBSERVE HIGH MASS

Pontifical Rites Mark Feast of Immaculate Conception of Blessed Virgin.

The feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin, patronal saint of Catholic University, was marked yesterday with a solemn high pontifical mass in the crypt of the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at the university attended by 3,000 members of religious orders, laity, students and faculty members.

The chancellor of the university, Archbishop Michael J. Hurley, of Baltimore, was celebrant of the mass. He was assisted by the Very Rev. William J. Kerby. The ceremony was preceded by a procession of the student body and faculty.

The theme of the Immaculate Conception was used for the sermon, which was delivered by the Rev. Dr. John A. Ryan, dean of the faculty of theology at the university.

"A large section of the modern world," he said, "has well nigh lost all perception of sin." Declaring the world today constitutes a "perverse and destructive moral atmosphere," he declared that the only evils of which it has any definite perception are evils of the physical order.

He asserted that the lesson of the essential evil of sin as taught by the Immaculate Conception was never more needed than today.

As the ceremony was being held at the National Shrine, a similar service was held in the Immaculate Conception Church, for which the occasion is also a patronal feast day. The Rev. Francis T. Hurney, pastor, celebrated the mass, aided by the Rev. Stanley Czyz and the Rev. Peter Quinn.

Merchants Ask Aid To Cut Deliveries

Shoppers Are Requested to Take Small Bundles Home With Them.

An appeal to Christmas shoppers to carry their smaller bundles whenever possible was made yesterday by local merchants through Edward D. Shaw, executive secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

A heavy volume of early Christmas shopping prompted the appeal. Store organizations will be taxed to their capacity during the next two weeks. Mistakes in deliveries, which in normal times can be guarded against, are much more likely to occur, it was explained.

"This temporary condition can be materially improved if our citizens in general carry with them the smaller packages," said Mr. Shaw. "It's the helpful and sensible thing to do in this emergency. It not only aids the merchants, but insures the shopper against mistakes and delays."

CARNEGIE PREPARES SCIENTIFIC EXHIBIT TO SHOW ADVANCES

Discoveries in Studies of Monkeys Included; to Be Open to Public.

How facts gleaned by scientists through the close observation of monkeys have thrown a flood of light on little understood phases of human physiology will be one of several exhibits and demonstrations opening tomorrow at the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

One of the exhibits centers about studies of the monkey colony which the institution maintains in Baltimore and is designed to show how significant discoveries relate to the human species.

It has been found that there is a close resemblance between the monkey and man in many matters pertaining to structure, nutrition, development, reproduction and to secretions of ductless glands which operate to hold the developing body in a state of natural balance.

Study of Atom.

Another exhibit will demonstrate apparatus for breaking down the atom. This has been developed in the search of science for the cause, yet unrevealed, of the earth's magnetism.

For more than 300 years it has been known that the earth acts as a great magnet. Search for the ultimate cause has led the scientists of the institution's department of terrestrial magnetism back through the strucutre and internal arrangements of the atom, which are themselves small magnets.

Other demonstrations which show what is being accomplished by the investigators of the Carnegie staff relate to determining the velocity of light, the observations of sunspots, to methods used in earthquake studies and to the beneficial aspects of volcanic eruptions.

To Be Open to Public.

The Carnegie exhibition, showing progress of research, is held each year on the occasion of the trustees' meeting. After preview by the trustees, a distinguished group of men of which Elihu Root is chairman, it will be open to the public for three days.

It will be open tomorrow, Sunday and Monday from 2 to 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7:30 to 10:30 o'clock at night. The exhibits will be explained by the investigators chiefly responsible for the studies represented and illustrated lectures will be presented.

Man Held for Jury In Impersonation

$1,000 Bond Set on Charge of Answering to Name of Another in Court.

Arraigned in Police Court before Judge Ralph Given on a charge of false impersonation before a court, Stanley H. Ball, 1316 Park road northwest, yesterday was ordered held in $1,000 bond for grand jury action.

The charge against Ball is that in Police Court before Judge John P. McMahon he answered to the name of Richard Allen, who was to have been tried on a gambling charge. When the police officers who had made the arrest informed Judge McMahon that Ball was not the Allen they had arrested, Judge McMahon ordered Ball arrested.

The case was continued until yesterday when Ball was formally arraigned. The search for Richard Allen has been unsuccessful thus far. The codefendant arrested with Allen, William Sachs, is on bond awaiting trial.

Van Duzer Is Thanked For Removing Hazard

Resolutions thanking Director of Traffic Van Duzer for remedying the traffic hazard at Florida and Connecticut avenues, and commending Maj. Ernest W. James Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; George Sullivan, former vice president of the association, and Richmond Keech, people's counsel, spoke briefly at the meeting. Etta L. Taggart, presided.

Oil Station Employe Robbed by Pair of $90

Barkley B. Gough, an employe at a filling station at Fourteenth street and Maryland avenue southwest, was held up and robbed of $90 by two robbers late yesterday afternoon. Gough told police the men followed him into the office after he had finished servicing a customer's car. One leveled a gun on him saying: "Hand over the money."

They forced him to open the safe and then pushed him into a side room. They fled in a sedan.

Auto Victim Gets Jail on Rum Count

New York Barber Given 10 Days on Recovering From Injuries.

Although he suffered a broken leg and other injuries just prior to his arrest on a charge of intoxication, Rocco Socco, 51-year-old New York barber, yesterday was sent to jail for 10 days when he was convicted in Police Court.

Socco created a furore in Police Court Thanksgiving Day when he was taken into court from Gallinger Hospital to face trial. He claimed that he was unable to walk and that he should be in the hospital instead of court.

On his assertion that he was unable to walk, Judge Ralph Given ordered him sent back to the hospital, where physicians said he was entirely able to move about if he so chose. After further treatment, he was taken to court yesterday and was found guilty. Socco was hit by an automobile and when he became boisterous at Emergency Hospital, he was arrested and charged with drunkenness.

HOSTELER, 83, FREED AFTER NIGHT IN JAIL IN PROHIBITION CASE

Schladt Is Released After Paying Fine Cut to $200 by Judge.

After spending one night in the District Jail, Joseph Schladt, 83-year-old proprietor of the West Washington Hotel, on Wisconsin avenue, gained his freedom yesterday when he paid a $200 fine that had been set by Judge Isaac R. Hitt in Police Court.

Schladt was convicted of sale and possession of a small amount of liquor several weeks ago. A sentence imposed on the sale count was suspended, but on the possession count he was given the option of paying a $500 fine or spending 90 days in jail.

Unable to raise the $500, Schladt asked for and received several extensions of time, hoping that he would be able to raise the money. Wednesday his time limit was up and he went to jail to begin his sentence.

Yesterday his attorney, Daniel W. O'Donoghue, jr., further presented his arguments to Judge Hitt and the sentence was reduced to a $200 fine, which Schladt was able to pay. His attorney immediately went to the jail and effected his release.

Schladt's hotel was erected by his father in the days prior to the Civil War. It still stands on Wisconsin avenue, its old wooden exterior a reminder of the architecture of bygone days.

Date of Gas Valuation Hearing Is Postponed

The proposed gas valuation hearnig to be conducted jointly by the District Public Utilities Commission and the Maryland Public Service Commission will be held the latter part of February, instead of the earlier part, Riley E. Elgen, vice chairman of the local agency, said yesterday after a conference with Harold E. West, chairman of the Maryland body.

Mr. West affirmed the impression held by the District commission that the Maryland valuation of gas company properties was limited to Montgomery County, where subsidiaries of the Washington and Georgetown Gas Light companies operate.

TRAFFIC TOLL TO DATE.

With the advent of the Christmas shopping season downtown traffic is increasing to a marked degree, with the result that traffic congestions are more numerous than ever.

Possible property damage and injuries can be avoided, if the motorist will just keep his head and not get excited.

When making a turn, either right or left, in the busy sections, remember that the pedestrians, of which there are many at this time, have the red light with them, and most of them are in a hurry. Give them a break.

Deaths	71	114
Injuries	3,290	3,553
Accidents	7,639	7,284

"Be Careful."

Bon Voyage

Old Ironsides, Towed by Minesweeper, on Long Trip to Pacific.

Ending its extended visit to Washington, Old Ironsides, the venerable frigate U. S. S. Constitution, yesterday left the Washington Navy Yards in the tow of the minesweeper U. S. S. Grebe.

The vessel will go directly to naval base in Cuba, thence to the Panama Canal, and then to west coast ports on a schedule that will take her near the Canadian border. During its stay in Washington the vessel was host to more than 125,000 visitors.

Among those missing on the minesweeper Grebe when she pulled the old frigate from her slip at the navy yard was "Rosie," the monkey mascot of the crew, which died from natural causes last Sunday.

The vessels departed after a 24-hour delay, but the delay was doubly appreciated by Sergt. Francis J. O'Sullivan, U. S. M. C., 24 years old, in charge of the marine detachment aboard Old Ironsides. It allowed him to see his one-day bride again. The sergeant was married shortly after daybreak Wednesday morning. His bride was Miss Nora Lehman, of Norfolk, Va.

CORNER STONE LAID AT G. U. HALL WITH SIMPLE CEREMONY

Church Notables Present at Dedication of Science Structure.

With simple ceremony, the corner stone of Georgetown University's new science-recitation hall, the White-Gravenor Building, was blessed and laid yesterday afternoon by Archbishop Michael J. Curley of Baltimore.

The ceremony, which lasted only a few minutes, was witnessed by the deans of the university and members of the faculty. Archbishop Curley was assisted by the Right Rev. Mgr. James H. Ryan, rector of the Catholic University of America, and the Rev. Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, president of Georgetown, and the Rev. Gerard P. Yates.

Visiting Churchmen.

The silver trowel used was the same one used at the laying of the corner stone of the Copley Building two years ago, which formed the first unit of the newly projected quadrangle at Georgetown College. The White-Gravenor Building, the second and most important of the buildings, will be completed by February 1.

Among the visiting priests were several representatives of the Society of Jesus from the Maryland-New York province. These included the Very Rev. Francis X. Byrnes, the acting provincial, and the Very Rev. William Devlin, rector of St. Andrew-on-the-Hudson, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., two former teachers at Georgetown, and the Rev. Hugh Bihler, secretary to the provincial. The Very Rev. Vincent McCormick, rector of Woodstock College, the Jesuit house of studies near Baltimore, also was present.

School Officials Feted.

Following the ceremony, Dr. Nevils and the Rev. Vincent J. Hart, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, held a reception in Copley lounge for the deans and the faculty members. They were assisted in receiving by the Rev. Myles J. O'Mailia, dean of the graduate school; Dean George E. Hamilton, of the law school; Dean William Gerry Morgan, of the medical school; Dean William N. Cogan, of the dental school, and Dean William F. Notz, of the foreign service school. Last night Dr. Nevils gave a dinner in honor of the deans and their wives.
